Federal Marshals Join With Policemen in Making Forays.

FORMER G.U. ATHLETE IS AMONG PRISONERS

Two secretly time raids made by First Precinct police and United States marshals and Federal search warrants, and a third made by the police vice squad, on downtown gambling establishments yesterday netted the arrest of 96 persons and the seizure of a quantity of gaming paraphernalia.

Continuing the procedure begun last week after a conference between United States Attorney Leo Rover, Police Commissioner Herbert Crosby, and Maj. Henry Pratt, chief of police, the warrants were kept sealed and the location of the prospective raids were not disclosed until the marshals met the police.

The first raid was on Eighth street near G street northwest. Lieut. Frank Varney, Detective A. D. Mansfield and U. S. Marshal Walter Hutchinson, broke through two heavily barricaded doors into a large room with phones, blackkboards and a radio.

Athlete Among Prisoners.

There were 22 persons arrested at this place. One of them gave police the name of William "Mossy" Mosko, 29 years old, of Girard street northwest near Fourteenth street. Police said he told them he was a former football player at Georgetown University and was at present a senior in the law school there. He and Harry Zeller, said by police to have been the lookout, were charged with setting up gaming tables and released on $2,000 bond. Zeller, who is 27 years old, lives on R street northwest near Eighth street. The others were released as witnesses.

At a place on I street near Eighth street northwest Detective J. A. Mostyn, Sergt. H. S. Lineberg and U. S. Marshal C. B. Swann entered through a skylight and took into custody 62 persons. There was a bonfire of slips of paper in the center of a room, police said. This establishment was disguised on the front as a cigar store, it was said.

Released Under Bond.

There were allegedly two blackjack tables there in addition to the racing material. Four persons taken here were charged with setting up gaming tables. They are Robert F. Rupple, 30, of Fifth street northwest near K street; George R. Dixon, 30, Fourth street northwest near Upshur street; Clifford Vorhees, 39, I street northwest near Eighth street; Bennie Oleweck, 21, Second street northwest near C street; David Smith, 30, R street northwest near First street; Raymond Goodman, 36, Twelfth street northwest near K street, and Joseph Lin-

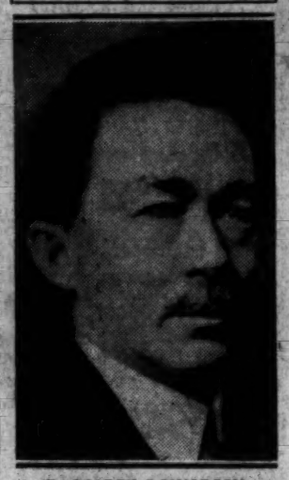
SUSPENDED



R. GOLDEN DONALDSON.

3-YEAR SUSPENSION IS GIVEN DONALDSON

'INADEQUATE,' SAYS HITZ

R. Golden Donaldson, former bank president and a member of the bar of the District of Columbia for 20 years, was suspended yesterday for three years, in an opinion handed down by a general term of the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

The opinion was written by Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat, and while three of the other justices coincided in his viewpoint, Justice William Hitz, recently nominated to the appellate bench, dissented on the grounds that the penalty was "inappropriate and inadequate in the circumstances."

Action of the court comes as an aftermath of the F. H. Smith Co. case in which three former officials recently were convicted on charges of conspiracy to embezzle and conceal records.

Donaldson was cited, but not indicted, in the mail fraud indictment in which former Smith Co. officers and Representative Frederick N. Zihlman and Daniel R. Crissinger, former comptroller of the currency, were indicted. The grand jury cited him by asking the court to have his status as a lawyer investigated. The matter was referred to the grievance committee of the Bar Association.

One hearing was held last June. Following that the justices were unable to agree, and it was decided to have another to hear arguments. Arguments were heard several weeks ago.

The chief factor in the hearing was that Donaldson was alleged to have accepted a $100,000 fee from the Boyle-Robertson Construction Co. for contracts with the Smith company while acting as attorney for both.

Chief Justice Wheat, in his opinion, says: "Upon consideration of the evidence we hold that the money received by the respondent from the Boyle-Robertson Co. for influencing the officers of the F. H. Smith Co. to award to the Boyle-Robertson Co. the building contracts while the confidential relationship of attorney and client existed between him and both companies was not a fee for legitimate services, but, on the contrary, was an enrichment of himself at the expense of one client by bartering the influence which he had with the other arising out of confidential relationship. It was professional misconduct. It tended to bring the lawyers' calling into disrepute and was prejudicial to the administration of justice.

"Instead of disbarment, however, we think that the ends of justice will be satisfied by suspending the respondent from practice for three years."

FRANCE, ITALY FREE TO BUILD BATTLE CRAFT

Expiration of Treaty Is Seen as Presaging Naval Race.

HOPE OF RENEWING PACT HELD DISTANT

Paris, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The naval truce between France and Italy has come definitely to an end, it was learned in official quarters tonight, and both countries now are free to engage in whatever warship building they wish.

So far as French official circles are aware, the hopes for pourparlers between the French and Italians at Geneva have not been resumed, following their breakdown last summer.

The French say they have not lost hope of an agreement but seem to see no immediate chance of successful negotiations.

France Wants More Tonnage.

France has been ready to accept parity with Italy in the Mediterranean, it is understood, but wants an additional 150,000 naval tons to offset the projected German fleet and another 100,000 to keep up communications with her distant colonies.

Rome, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Official sources say that Italy is prepared to build gun for gun with France in naval construction this year, since, they assert, there appears to be little hope of renewing the construction truce which expired last month.

This, it is said, is independent of Italy's normal program. The suspended 1930 program provides for 29 craft—22 submarines, and seven other units—and this will be started with the laying of the keels in a few months.

France is said here to have completed her old naval program, and hereafter anything that she builds will be duplicated by Italy.

Grandi Hints at Agreement.

Geneva, Jan. 20 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Guarded intimations by Dino Grandi, Italy's youthful foreign minister, that vital differences between Rome and Paris on naval tonnage would be settled before the coming general disarmament conference meets, was one of the most optimistic developments during today's discussion by the council of the League of Nations of the board aspects of the disarmament problem.

Grandi told the council that the view of the Italian government is that security is an essential factor in the disarmament situation, but not necessarily an essential prerequisite to disarmament. This attitude is in direct contrast with the familiar French thesis that security must precede disarmament.

Today's session of the council was taken up almost entirely with expressions in general terms of the viewpoints and policies on disarmament of the British, French, Italian, German, Polish and Japanese governments.

Arms Conference Undecided.

So much time was consumed in speeches by Arthur Henderson, Julius Curtius, Aristide Briand, August Zaleski, M. Yoshizawa and Patrick McGilligan that the council did not get around to determine the exact date of the general disarmanent conference, or to selecting the place where it is to meet or the statesman who will act as president of the conference. It is hoped that these open questions will be disposed of at tomorrow's session.

The council today accepted the final report of the preparatory dis-

JOBLESS RAID GROCERY AND RIOT FOLLOWS

26 MEN SENT TO JAIL; FIRE HOSE EMPLOYED

Governor Condemns Attempt to "Duplicate Russia;" Favors Giving Aid.

Oklahoma City, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—A crowd of men and women, shouting they were hungry and jobless, raided a grocery near the city hall here today. Twenty-six of the men were arrested. Scores loitered near the jail after the arrests, but kept well out of range of fire hose lines made ready for use in case of another disturbance.

The grocery was entered after a delegation of unemployed had demanded of City Manager E. M. Fry that city authorities furnish immediate relief.

The raiders disregarded efforts of H. A. Shaw, store manager, to quiet them.

"It is too late to bargain with us," the leaders shouted. Then they raided the shelves.

Five Women Freed.

Only those who were trapped in the wrecked store were arrested. Five women among them were released.

Windows of the store were smashed as the rioters tried to flee.

John Simmons was held on a charge of assault because he leaped on Lee Mullenix's back as the policeman tried to enter the crowded store.

Floyd Phillips was charged with inciting a riot. Police said he was one of the speakers who harangued the crowd at the city hall before they began a parade that ended at the store.

Specific charges against the others were delayed.

Parade Swells.

While leaders were conferring with Fry at the city hall the crowd numbered only about 300. When the parade started, recruits increased the number to about 500. Later the curious and others attracted by the excitement swelled the throng to about 3,000.

Police and county officers were stationed in the vicinity of a soup kitchen established by the Veterans of Foreign Wars for relief of the needy when they heard leaders of the unemployed planned to make another raid.

Francis Owens, head of the "Oklahoma City Unemployed Council" who, the police said, was the leader of the crowd, was sought.

He headed the delegation that called on Fry, but disappeared.

March on Store.

After conferring with Fry and receiving a written statement pledging city aid for the unemployed, Owens retired to the street level, mounted an improvised platform and read the statement to the crowd.

"It's the same old bunk," he shouted as he finished reading, police said.

As several of the men started to climb over the meat counter, Herman Blackberger, butcher, drew a long carving knife and held them at bay.

No serious injuries were reported.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

President Hoover was interpreted generally in political circles yesterday as having definitely taken the dry side of the prohibition controversy and to have committed his party to such a policy.

Interpretations of the report itself were varied and many, but as the argument waxed warm, particularly on Capitol Hill, there was agreement on one thing, and that was that Mr. Hoover had even gone out of his way to take the dry side. No other conclusion was possible, it was pointed out, from his action in not only opposing repeal as recommended by two members of his commission but opposing revision at any future date.

It is known that the President's message accompanying the commission's bulky report, in which he for the first time definitely took the dry side, had been in course of preparation for at least a month. During that time he has been buffeted between the two opposing schools of thought in his party.

Linked With 1932.

That in the end he took a definite stand rather than simply transmit the commission's report is regarded as highly significant in connection with the campaign of 1932.

There is one school of thought in the Republican party, the wet and the loudest school, that is convinced the party will split in 1932 on the stand taken by the President, that it will have no chance of carrying the populous States of the East.

In these States, it is contended, prohibition has been agitated to the boiling point, and, on the other hand, the Republican party has lost its great soporific of the past, prosperity.

The dry view, and it is a question as to wether after all it is not the preponderant view insofar as the Republican party is concerned, is that Mr. Hoover's only chance for reelection, at least his greatest one, is to throw his lot with the drys.

The history of these people, it is argued, is that, unlike the wets, they are willing to cast aside every other consideration and vote solely toward the furtherance of the dry cause.

It may be, it is admitted in this group, that the Eastern Republican wets will have the hardihood to split the party, but it will be the first time they have demonstrated it. The only time since the advent of prohibition that the wet Republicans have shown the slightest tendency to bolt their party, and this was among the voters and not the leaders, was in the recent congressional elections.

Even that occasion is susceptible of an honest difference of opinion as to

Text of Hoover Message Submitting Dry Report

To the Congress:

The first deficiency appropriation act of March 4, 1929, carried an appropriation for a thorough investigation into the enforcement of the prohibition laws, together with the enforcement of other laws.

In pursuance of this provision I appointed a commission consisting of former Attorney General George W. Wickersham, chairman; former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, Federal Judges William S. Kenyon, Paul J. McCormick, and William I. Grubb, former Chief Justice Kenneth Mackintosh of Supreme Court of Washington, Dean Roscoe Pound, of Harvard Law School; President Ada L. Comstock, of Radcliffe College; Henry W. Anderson, of Virginia; Monte M. Lemann, of New Orleans, and Frank J. Loesch, of Chicago.

The commission thus comprises an able group of distinguished citizens of character and independence of thought, representative of different sections of the country. For eighteen months they have exhaustively and painstakingly gathered and examined the facts as to enforcement, the benefits, and the abuses under the prohibition laws, both before and since the passage of the eighteenth amendment. I am transmitting their report immediately. Reports upon the enforcement of other criminal laws will follow.

The commission considers that the conditions of enforcement of the prohibition laws in the country as a whole are unsatisfactory but it reports that the Federal participation in enforcement has shown continued improvement since and as a consequence of the act of Congress of 1927 placing prohibition officers under civil service, and the act of 1930 transferring prohibition enforcement from the Treasury to the Department of Justice, and it outlines further possible improvement. It calls attention to the urgency of obedience to law by our citizens and to the imperative necessity for greater assumption and perform-

M'BRIDE IS PLEASED

(Associated Press.)

The Wickersham report immediately generated such conflicting comments as follows:

Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, a prohibitionist—"The report will soon take its place in the dust on the upper shelf, and the great debate will go forward on repeal or no repeal."

Senator Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, antiprohibitionist—"The report is an exhaustive indictment of prohibition. Mr. Hoover * * * takes his stand with the prohibition wing of his party and nails his own and his party's banner to the dry masthead."

Bishop Nicholson, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, president of the Antisaloon League—"So far as I have the facts in general they are most gratifying."

Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, antiprohibitionist—"The significant thing is that after two years' study a majority finds that prohibition is unsatisfactory."

Senator Jones (Republican), Washington, a prohibitionist—"I like the clear-cut, definite stand the President takes. There is no question about his position."

Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, antiprohibitionist—"The report shows the impossibility of enforcement and the noble experiment which still is a failure after 10 years and won't be a success after 20."

F. Scott McBride, national superintendent of the AntiSaloon League—"It is a good report for us, and what we had a right to expect."

Representative Tinkham (Republican), Massachusetts, antiprohibitionist—"The recommendations of the report, taken as a whole, are an insult to the intelligence of the American people."

SUMMARY SHOWS REPEAL IS OPPOSED

Restoration of Saloon to Legal Status in Any Manner Condemned.

NO LIGHT WINES OR BEER

(Associated Press.)

The Law Enforcement Commission summarized its prohibition report as follows:

"1. The commission is opposed to repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

"2. The commission is opposed to the restoration in any manner of the legalized saloon.

"3. The commission is opposed to the Federal or State governments, as such, going into the liquor business.

"4. The commission is opposed to the proposal to modify the national prohibition act so as to permit manufacture and sale of light wines or beer.

"5. The commission is of opinion that the cooperation of the States is an essential element in the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and the national prohibition act throughout the territory of the United States; that the support of public opinion in the several States is necessary in order to insure such cooperation.

"6. The commission is of opinion that prior to the enactment of the Bureau of Prohibtion act, 1927, the agencies for enforcement were badly organized and inadequate; that subsequent to that enactment there has been continued improvement in organization and effort for enforcement.

"7. The commission is of opinion that there is yet no adequate observance or enforcement.

"8. The commission is of opinion that the present organization for enforcement is still inadequate.

"9. The commission is of opinion that the Federal appropriations for enforcement of the eighteenth amendment should be substantially increased and that the vigorous and better organized efforts which have gone on since the Bureau of Prohibition act, 1927, should be furthered by certain improvements in the statutes and in the organization, personnel and equipment of enforcement

VAST EVILS CONCEDED; GREATER FUND ASKED

GROUP'S HEAD FAVORS TEST OF SENTIMENT

Removal of Restrictions on Liquor Prescriptions Recommended.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

A document of bewildering contradictions, the report of the Wickersham Law Enforcement Commission on prohibition, was sent to Congress by President Hoover yesterday, and last night it was the subject of a controversy that promises to rage for many a day.

In his message that went along with the report the President accepted all recommendations but one—the recommendation that the eighteenth amendment be revised if, after a further trial, it is found to be unenforceable.

The comment that arose on Capitol Hill and all over the land was as confusing as the report itself. Some drys praised the report; others said frankly that they were afraid of it. Some wets found encouragement in it; others were disgusted by it.

Both Wet and Dry.

If a 90,000-word document can be summarized briefly, this is a summary of the Wickersham Commission's report:

The commission itself was wet, and its recommendations were dry.

The report revealed that a majority of the commission—seven of the eleven members—believe the eighteenth amendment is doomed and must be either revised or repealed. This cheered the wets.

What disappointed the wets was the commission's failure to come right out in its recommendations and urge a change. All that it did do was to suggest a form of revision "if" the eighteenth amendment fails.

Of the seven in favor of a change, five suggested immediate revision of the eighteenth amendment.

Under the form of revision proposed, Congress would be given power to continue or abolish prohibition in its present form. A wet Congress, for example, could, under strict regulations, authorize the sale and distribution of liquor in any State that wanted it.

Two for Repeal.

Two of the seven members in favor of a change came out for immediate and absolute repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Thus, while seven, or a majority, of the members of the commission were in favor of a change, only five were able to agree on the same kind of immediate change. This is one less than a majority of the commission.

The remaining four members urged a further trial for the eighteenth amendment. Only two of them, however, could be described as adamant. The other two agreed that, if after a year or so, conditions are no better, the eighteenth amendment should be revised.

The five members in favor of immediate revision were Henry W. Anderson, of Richmond, who suggested a plan for revision; Ada L. Comstock, of Cambridge, Mass., the only woman member; Frank J. Loesch, of Chicago; Judge Kenneth Mackintosh, of Seattle, and Dean Roscoe Pound, of the Harvard Law School.

Baker Would Kill Act.

The two members who came out unequivocally for repeal of the Georgia Bishop to Preside at Hearing Into Prelate's Market and Political Activities and Personal Conduct; Senate Investigation Also Looms.

Plans have been perfected to bring Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Church South, to trial before an ecclesiastical jury here within the next two weeks on charges relating to his stock market activities, his handling of political campaign funds in 1928, and his personal conduct, it was learned last night.

The accusations against the bishop are those which were filed several months ago by four traveling elders of his church, Dr. Forrest J. Prettyman, of Baltimore; Dr. J. T. Marsten, of Richmond, Va.; Dr. Costen J. Harrell, of Richmond, Va., and Dr. I. P. Martin, of Abingdon, Va.

Bishop W. H. Ainsworth, of Macon, Ga., with whom the charges were filed, will preside at the trial here which will be held in the Mount Vernon Methodist Church. Bishop Ainsworth has invited Bishops Edwin DuBose Mouzon, of Charlotte, N. C., and U. V. W. Darlington, of Huntingdon, W. Va., to sit with him. The jury will be composed of twelve elders of the church whose identities have not yet been revealed. This proceeding will be in the nature of a preliminary trial. If two-thirds of the elders decide that the evidence is such as to give plausibility to the charges they are authorized to suspend the bishop immediately and to refer his case to the next quadrennial conference of his church which meets in 1934.

Bishop Cannon was at Marlin

Calvin Coolidge

Says: The country is not in good condition. Considering our reserve powers it is not as bad as some of those assert who are loudest in proposing fantastic plans to save it. But it is bad enough.

That condition always invites bickerings and recriminations. We all claim the fault rests on the other fellows. Such quarreling only makes matters worse. It is useless to stop now to try to assess blame. What is needed is tranquillity, moderation and constructive action.

When the Congress convened there was much hope that the public statement of several party leaders would prove a statesmanlike basis for such needed cooperation on the part of official Washington. That result is not being secured and the country is suffering. The President can not abdicate. If there is any cooperation it must be in helping him in his executive capacity to give the country relief and in speedily passing the appropriation bills. No other program can benefit the people. It is no time for politics on the part of any public officials. The country wants action and action without factious opposition. A quiet, candid conference disinterestedly seeking the public welfare would be worth more than many pages of rhetoric.

Howell Home-Raid Bill Hit By Wickersham Committee

Report's Words, "Commission Is Opposed to Legislation Allowing More Latitude for Federal Searches," Held Blow to Measure for District.

The Howell home-raid prohibition enforcement bill for the District was dealt a direct blow by the report of the Wickersham committee made public yesterday.

"The commission is opposed to legislation allowing more latitude for Federal searches and seizures," the report declared.

Extreme broadening of the existing powers of search and seizure is the essence of the bill, drafted by Senator Robert Howell (Republican), of Nebraska.

The measure has been placed by the Republican steering committee of the Senate first on the program of legislation for consideration at this session and it is to be made the unfinished business of the Senate as soon as opportunity offers. The Interior appropriation bill is before the Senate at present and may be for some time.

The blow struck at the Howell bill by the Wickersham Commission report is the second delivered from high quarters. Attorney General Mitchell vigorously denounced the search and seizure provisions when the bill was introduced last session.

Despite the condemnation of those provisions by the Attorney General, Senator Howell said that he did not intend to yield unless he had to yield to a vote of the Senate. The eighteenth amendment were former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, of Cleveland, and Monte M. Lemann, of New Orleans.

Judge William S. Kenyon, of Iowa, and Judge Paul J. McCormick, of California, asked that the eighteenth amendment be given a further trial, but added that, if at the end of the trial period, enforcement conditions were no better, the amendment should be revised in accordance with the Anderson plan.

George W. Wickersham, of New York, chairman of the commission, and Judge William I. Grubb, of Birmingham, Ala., urged a continuance of the present system. Chairman Wickersham, however, said he would be in favor of a national referendum to determine sentiment on the eighteenth amendment.

Concedes Evils.

In the first part of its report the commission recited observations that read like a statement from the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

It conceded that prohibition has led to graft and corruption; it conceded that the number of drinkers is increasing; it conceded that there have been too many dreadful killings; it conceded that the courts are congested and that the prisons are overcrowded; it conceded all these things, and then it recommended that more money be spent, that more prohibition agents be appointed to enforce the law.

Report Against Wine.

In its "conclusions and recommendations," the commission said it was opposed to repeal of the eighteenth amendment; opposed to the return of the saloon, and opposed to modifying the law so as to permit the manufacture of wine and beer.

It concluded that there is yet no adequate enforcement or observance of the law, and it recommended that greater appropriations be allowed so as to improve enforcement.

It recommended that the present irritating restrictions that now limit the amount of liquor a doctor may prescribe and the number of prescriptions he may write be removed.

It also recommended that the "anomalous provisions" in the law which condone the traffic in grape concentrates be removed, a recommendation that must be bad news to Mabel Walker Willebrandt.

Rum Agency Proposed.

Then, as has been said, it recommended that if, after a further trial, the eighteenth amendment is found to be unenforceable, the amendment should be so revised as to allow Congress to set up a private corporation to supply wet communities with liquor.

President Hoover, who sat up until 11 o'clock Monday night studying the report and drafting the message to go with it, accepted all of the commission's recommendations, except the one last mentioned.

Although the drys and the wets were divided among themselves in commenting on the Wickersham report, the drys, for the most part, approved it and the wets for the most part disapproved it.

Drys Find Comfort.

The drys, while they may have been alarmed by the wet views of a majority of the commission members, nevertheless were cheered by the fact that no plan for an immediate change could be agreed upon, and that recommendations were made for a more vigorous enforcement drive in the future.

The wets, although getting a kick out of the fact that a majority of the President's own commission should turn out to be opposed to the eighteenth amendment, were angry because the commission didn't go farther and do something about it.

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment reserved judgment on the report last night, but it is expected to have a statement ready today.

The Antisaloon League of America and the Methodist Board of Prohibition, Temperance and Morals both got out statements.

League Has Say.

"The most significant thing about the Wickersham committee report," said the league's statement, "is the fact that after long and thorough study they were able to discover no better solution of the liquor problem than better enforcement and more general observation of prohibition laws.

"In general, their conclusion is the same as that reached by the people when they adopted the eighteenth amendment, after a hundred years of experimenting with various methods designed to decrease the evils of liquor."

The league praised the commission's suggestions for better enforcement, but frowned on the proposal for revising the eighteenth amendment. No method proposed, it said, would bring about a decrease in the amount of liquor consumed or the evils resulting therefrom.

Liquor as "Bad Element."

"Liquor," the statement said, "was the essentially bad element in the saloon system, once universally approved and now universally condemned by the opponents of prohibition. The question of what would be the effect upon the consumption of liquor and not what difficulties of prohibition might be evaded or escaped, is the real test of the value of the commission's conclusions and the various individual opinions contained in the report."

The Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church South approved seven of the commission's conclusions, or recommendations, including those opposed to the saloon, governmental participation in the liquor business, and sale of light wines and beer.

Agrees on State Cooperation.

It agreed with the commission that cooperation of the States is essential to proper enforcement; that prohibition enforcement is improving, but is not yet adequate, and that agents should be allowed access to the premises of denaturing plants.

On the question of revision and on the remaining questions the board reserved comment. It wound up its statement with a tribute to the Wickersham Commission.

The Wickersham report was delivered in the Senate and the House a few minutes after noon. Immediately thereafter, Senator Blaine, wet Republican of Wisconsin, introduced a resolution to carry out the commission's suggestion for a revision of the eighteenth amendment.

The Blaine resolution, however, differed from the commission's draft in that it was entirely positive. That is, it would authorize Congress to allow the manufacture, importation and sale of beer, but would not allow it to prohibit such traffic.

Majority Leader Watson had the Wickersham report referred to the judiciary committee, which is headed by Senator Norris, dry Republican, of Nebraska. Norris now has pending a resolution for a sweeping investigation of prohibition enforcement.

Wickersham Opposes Repealing Amendment; Asks Further Trial

(Associated Press.)

George W. Wickersham, chairman of the commission and former Attorney General, said:

George W. Wickersham

"I have signed the report of the commission, although, as is probably inevitable when 11 people of different antecedents and temperaments endeavor to agree upon a contentious subject it is more or less of a compromise of varying opinions. * * *

"I can not believe that an experiment of such far-reaching and momentous consequence as this of National prohibition should be abandoned after seven years of such imperfect enforcement and only three years of reorganization and effort to repair the mistakes of the earlier period. The older generation very largely has forgotten and the young never knew the evils of the saloon and the corroding influence upon politics, both local and National, of the organized liquor interests. But the tradition of that rottenness still lingers, even in the minds of the bitterest opponents of the prohibition law, substantially all of whom assert that the licensed saloon must never again be restored.

"It is because I see no escape from its return in any of the practicable alternatives to prohibition that I unite with my colleagues in agreement that the eighteenth amendment must not be repealed and, differing with some of them, I have been forced to conclude that a further trial should be made of the enforceability of the eighteenth amendment under the present organization, with the help of the recommended improvements. * * *

"I think that if a proposed amendment to the Constitution simply repealing the eighteenth amendment were to be passed by the requisite majorities in both Houses of Congress and submitted to the States, to be considered by conventions called for the purpose in each State, the delegates to be chosen in an off year and the conventions to be held in a year when there is no presidential election, we should have intelligent discussions of the question and a result which would reflect the sober informed and deliberate opinion of the people. Such a procedure might remove the issue from party politics."

Abolition of Open Saloon Is Held Law's Only Moral Improvement

Judge Paul L. McCormick, of Los Angeles, said:

Paul J. McCormick

"The outstanding achievement of the eighteenth amendment has been the abolition of the legalized open saloon in the United States. Social and economic benefits to the people have resulted, and it is this proven gain in our social organization that has justified the experiment of national prohibition.

"I am unable to find that there has been any further general moral improvement shown. It has been so clearly established that contemporaneously with national prohibition there has been developed such a widespread spirit of lawlessness, hypocrisy and unprecedented disrespect for authority that in fairness and candor it must be stated that in the final analysis of conditions now, no other national moral improvement can be credited to prohibition. Nevertheless, the gain should not be jeopardized until it has been demonstrated after the fairest possible trial that the experiment is completed and has proven to be a failure.

"The evidence has raised the doubt in my mind as to whether the enforceability of this law has been conclusively determined. * * *

"My study of the systems of liquor control in other countries and of plans that have been submitted to the commission to supplant present conditions in the United States, leaves me in doubt as to whether any of them would be adaptable to our diversified, populous and extensive Nation or to the heterogeneous aspect of its people. The plan developed by Mr. Anderson, and presented in his statement, seems to be the best, and if after further trial prohibition is not enforceable, I should favor serious consideration of this system. I believe that the experience in one of the States of the dispensary system has demonstrated the insufficiency of such a solution as a national institution.

"Absolute repeal is unwise. It would, in my opinion, reopen the saloon. This would be a backward step that I hope will never be taken by the United States. The open saloon is the greatest enemy of temperance and has been a chief cause of much political corruption throughout the country in the past. These conditions should never be revived.

"* * * It is my belief that a solution of this vexatious problem would be accelerated by ascertaining the majority sentiment of the citizenry upon the desirability of prohibition as a national policy. This public attitude has never been directly expressed through legal processes. It could be learned by direct submission of the repeal of the eighteenth amendment through State conventions and under Article V of the Constitution. I favor and recommend such action. The submission processes should be arranged and timed so as to avoid confusing the prohibition question with party or other issues or campaigns."

Lemann, Who Advocates Repeal, Would Tighten Enforcement

Monte M. Lemann, a prominent New Orleans attorney, who did not sign the report, said he saw no alternative but repeal of the amendment.

Monte M. Lemann

But, he added, since he saw no hope of repeal by constitutional methods, "it seems to me to be the duty of Congress to make reasonable efforts to enforce it, however grave the doubts as to ultimate success."

He concurred in the recommendations for increase of personnel in the various branches of enforcement.

Lemann held, also, that consistency demanded that fruit juices and cider be put upon the same basis as intoxicating liquors, and that several other changes should be made with regard to industrial alcohol and medicinal liquor.

He found evils attached to Federal dispensary systems and proposed if a Government control experiment were to be made it should be done by the individual States rather than the Federal Government. He said enforcement "is and always has been inadequate." But that enforcement machinery without disproportionate expense be made adequate to cope with industrial alcohol and smuggling.

Breaking up the operations of stills, the manufacture of home brew, beer and wine, and their distribution, he said, would require "many thousands of enforcement officers."

Frank E. Loesch for Revision To Destroy Murderous Gangs

Frank J. Loesch

Loesch said a "strong reason" why he favored immediate steps toward revision was in order to destroy "the murderous, criminal organizations flourishing over the country upon the enormous profits made in bootleg liquor traffic."

The attorney said gangsters had grown audacious because of their long immunity from prosecution and did not hesitate to seek to make bargains with law enforcing officers, or even with judges.

"Those organizations of murderers and arch criminals can only be destroyed when their bootleg liquor profits are taken from them," he said. "So long as the eighteenth amendment remains in its present rigid form the Nation, the States, the municipalities, the individual citizen are helpless to get out of reach of their poisonous breaths and slimy tentacles.

"If not soon crushed those criminal organizations may become, as they are now seeking to become, supergovernments and so beyond the reach of the ordinary processes of law."

Judge Grubb Asks Experiment Be Continued for Fair Trial

William I., Grubb, of Birmingham, Federal judge of Northern district of Alabama, said:

Judge W. I. Grubb

"My reasons for thinking that prohibition under the amendment is entitled to a further trial are twofold," he said. "The first is that it is an experiment which has not been completed and has not yet had a fair trial, and the second is that no satisfactory substitute for it has been presented or shown to exist."

He agreed that law enforcement and observance were not adequate or satisfactory "and do not warrant its continuance unless a change is probable within a reasonable time."

"Improvement in the machinery alone will not accomplish satisfactory enforcement," he said. "It will require also a favorable change in the attitude of the public toward the law. Voluntary observance of a law of this nature is essential. So long as the majority of the people do not observe it, the law is powerless to enforce it." * * *

"So long as improvement continues, the experiment can not be considered completed and should not be abandoned."

18,000 Copies Sought Of Wickersham Report

(Associated Press.)

The Wickersham report is bound by no garishly illustrated cover and carries none of the earmarks of the modern novel, but some members of Congress expect it to develop some of the propensities of a best seller.

Representative Beers, of Pennsylvania, introduced a resolution yesterday to print 18,000 copies of it to meet the demand.

Influenza Is Reported Doubling in 19 States

(Associated Press.)

Influenza almost doubled last week in 19 States reporting to the Public Health Service. The report showed 2,022 cases, as compared with 1,046 the previous week. A year ago the total was 559 cases in the 19 States.

In New York City 1,005 cases were reported. New Jersey reported 282 cases, Maryland, 113; North Carolina, 112, and Arkansas, 101.

Danger Is Seen by Anderson In Keeping Present System

Henry W. Anderson, of Richmond, Va., in urging revision of the eighteenth amendment to permit Government controlled sales of liquor, said he regretted he could not concur in the view that the existing system be given a further trial.

H. W. Anderson

He said the abolition of the saloon was the greatest step ever taken in this country looking to control of liquor, but that "we are in grave danger of losing all that has been gained."

The Virginian added that the effort to make all the people total abstainers ran counter to fundamental social and economic principles that "are beyond the control of government."

"The fruitless efforts at enforcement are creating public disregard not only for this law but for all laws," he said. "Public corruption through the purchase of official protection for this illegal traffic is widespread and notorious."

Mr. Anderson said that the enormous revenues, "estimated at from two to three billion dollars per annum," gave criminals weapons which enabled them not only to continue their business but to organize and develop "other lines of criminal activity to an extent which threatens social and economic security."

The country is growing restive under such conditions, he said, and the situation demanded some definite and constructive relief.

"Confidence in the integrity and capacity of government is shaken," he said. "It is no time for tampering with this problem. A definite solution is demanded."

Newton Baker, Urging Repeal, Would Give Issue to States

Newton D. Baker

"In my opinion the eighteenth amendment should be repealed and the whole question of policy and enforcement with regard to intoxicating liquors remitted to the States.

"If, for practical reasons, immediate repeal be thought unattainable, a submission of the amendment suggested in the report of the commission would test the present sentiment of the country and, if the amendment were adopted, would accomplish the double result of removing an arbitrary and inflexible police regulation from the Constitution, where, it seems to me, it should never have been put, and of giving Congress the power to adapt Federal legislation on the subject, from time to time, to the realities of the situation as they may develop.

"I have signed the report of the commission because it is a fair finding of the facts disclosed to us by such evidence as was available and because it is clear that so long as the Constitution and law remain as they now are, the recommendations of the report should be carried out to aid the Executive, charged with the duty of enforcement.

"The efforts now being made to enforce the law are sincere and intelligent and aided and supplemented, as recommended in the report, a higher degree of effectiveness will be certain to follow, but, in my opinion, the problem is insoluble so long as it is permitted to require a Nation-wide Federal enforcement of a police regulation, at variance with the settled habits and beliefs of so large a part of our people."

Pound Urges Change in Dry Act But Retention of Saloon Ban

Roscoe Pound, dean of Harvard Law School since 1916, said:

Roscoe Pound

"As I interpret the evidence before us it established certain definite economic and social gains following National prohibition. But it established quite as clearly that these gains have come from closing saloons rather than from the more ambitious program of complete and immediate universal total abstinence to be enforced concurrently by National and State. Thus the task is to conserve the gains while finding out how to eliminate the abuses and bad results which have developed in the past decade. * * *

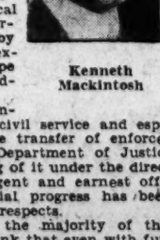
"While making enforcement as effective as we may, so long as the amendment as it is remains the supreme law of the land, we should be at work to enable the fundamental difficulties to be reached. This, it seems clear, can only be done by a revision of the amendment. It can be done only by so redrawing the amendment as, on the one hand, to preserve Federal control and a check upon bringing back of the saloon anywhere, and, on the other hand, allow of an effective control adapted to local conditions in places where, as things are at least, it is futile to seek a National enforced genetal total abstinence.

"Federal control of what had become a Nation-wide traffic and abolition of the saloon are great steps forward which should be maintained. * * *

"It requires an unwarranted lack of faith in American political ingenuity to assume that no such forms of control may be worked out. Mr. Anderson has proposed a well-thought-out plan, based on study of systems of liquor control and their operation. His plan deserves careful consideration as to the best and most complete which has been brought to our attention. This or some like plan for adapting National control to local conditions may well be the next forward step."

Judge Kenyon Asks Referendum, With Further Trial of Law

William S. Kenyon, of Iowa, judge of the Eighth district, United States Court of Appeals, favored a further trial of the dry laws, and if they were demonstrated a failure, a modification of the eighteenth amendment and placing the power in Congress to deal fully with the subject.



Judge W. S. Kenyon

"In the meantime, the feeling of the people on the subject should be registered on repeal of the eighteenth amendment in the manner suggested herein," he said.

His plan for a referendum called for the proposal of an amendment to the Constitution to repeal the eighteenth amendment and the provision by Congress that it be ratified by State conventions, to which delegates would be elected.

Judge Kenyon argued that prohibition had never had a fair trial. He enumerated as reasons that enforcement first was in the hands of the Treasury, "skilled in finance but not in law enforcement;" the part politcs played before Enforcement Bureau appointments were put under civil service, and corruption which he said permitted speakeasies to operate and other traffic in liquor.

Public sentiment against the laws had been stimulated, he said, by abuses of search and seizure processes and the entrapment of witnesses. Present methods, he argued, would tend to alleviate some of this irritation.

In giving his views on the plan for Government control advanced by Col. Anderson, Judge Kenyon said it reflected in part the Bratt system of Sweden, and was "based in part on a paternalism which would be rather odious to citizens of this republic." He urged it be "carefully studied," however, if any change is made.

Anderson's Plan for Control Best Offered, Says Mackintosh

Kenneth Mackintosh

"It is not to be wondered at that failure marked the first years of the effort to enforce the eighteenth amendment by inefficient and violent means, with an inexperienced personnel suffering from political and other interference and by attempting to exceed the scope of practical Federal authority.

"Since the introduction of civil service and especially since the transfer of enforcement to the Department of Justice and the placing of it under the direction of intelligent and earnest officials, substantial progress has been made in some respects.

"And while the majority of this commission think that even with further increase and raising of standards in personnel and added equipment reasonable satisfactory enforcement can not be attained in view of the opposition thereto in the populous centers of the country, and that the eighteenth amendment therefore can not become nationally effective, yet those holding this view recognize that some time must elapse before any revision of the amendment can take place and agree that during such time every effort should be made to secure such enforcement as is possible.

"* * * If a general public sentiment can be aroused throughout the Nation for prohibition the law can be enforced as well as any other police law. This is a 'consummation devoutedly to be wished' and worked for. But if unattainable, nullification can not be tolerated if we are to continue to have constitutional government. Such a condition means not government, but chaos.

"If such further effort is not productive of reasonable enforcement and observance and private and State cooperation, the revision of the eighteenth amendment should take the form of making it more flexible, so that there can rest in the Congress the power to meet changing conditions and differing situations in different localities.

"* * * The bartender has given place to the bootlegger, and the latter, with more cunning and cash than the former had, must not be allowed to succeed by reason of society confining itself to but one inflexible way to thwart him. If the Constitution made it possible to deprive the bootlegger of his profits and to promote the doctrine of temperance, the possibility for Nation-wide prohibition would be rendered a reasonable actuality.

"Mr. Anderson has presented in his statement a plan for control under the proposed revision of the amendment, which is the result of careful and scientific thought, and seems to meet the necessities of the situation more adequately than any other that has been so far suggested. * * *

"Though the eighteenth amendment has not produced all that some may have dreamed it might, yet the fact should not be overlooked that it has marked a long step forward. It is now time to take the next step in the same direction. To stand still now would mean final loss of all that has been so far gained."

REPORT CONFUSING, IS VIEW OF PRESS

MORE COURAGE IS ASKED

(Associated Press.)

Extracts of editorial opinion from representative newspapers in the United States on the Wickersham Liquor Commission report follow:

NEW YORK EVENING POST—The commissioners should have gone further in taking into their hands the courage and candor which Mr. Hoover tried to deny them. * * * They are wet in their separate reports and dry in their general report. * * * It is not a pretty exhibition by honorable men supposedly seated around a table to solve a great national problem.

NEW YORK MORNING WORLD—The commissioners are unanimous in sweeping away the pretension that the experiment of constitutional prohibition is within sight of success. There is apparently not one commissioner who believes that the eleven years' trial thus far has given positive evidence that the revolutionary experiment can succeed.

NEW YORK TIMES—The fact of outstanding interest in the entire report is that six out of the eleven commissioners are of one mind as to the form of modification that should be adopted, if any. It is, in brief, that Congress should be given power either to prohibit or to regulate the traffic in intoxicating liquor.

HERALD TRIBUNE, NEW YORK—It takes little study of the Wickersham report to realize that the first item in its summary of conclusion and recommendation is entirely misleading. This reads: "The commission is opposed to repeal of the eighteenth amendment." Even President Hoover has accepted this statement at its face value, thought the fact is that nine of the eleven commissioners actually favor the amendment's repeal.

PHILADELPHIA RECORD—The prohibition inquiry mountain was in labour and brought forth a litter of mice. Revising the old metaphor doesn't impair its comic effect. It remains a masterpiece of anticlimax.

PHILADELPHIA PUBLIC LEDGER—Prohibition is where it was before. The Wickersham Commission couldn't agree with its members. Neither, it seems, could the President. * * * The report was finally evolved in a mood of desperation and weariness.

BALTIMORE SUN—Taking the report as a whole, the public is not very far from hte starting place. The commission has told us facts that we already knew. Perhaps it has improved the setting of these facts by bringing them together and giving them a concrete, official form. But that service can easily be overestimated. Beyond that presentation of the fact the report signed by ten members of the commission has the value that would be attached to the opinions in this matter of any other ten respectable and intelligent men and women. As to opinions, the millions of Americans have their own.

BOSTON TRANSCRIPT—The effect upon Congress and upon the country of the Wickersham pronouncement, intended by a high-minded President to be a guide and counselor, can be only a matter of speculation. Congress can not fail to read, however, that at heart the overwhelming majority are convinced that the present rigorous system is unacceptable and must be modified.

PROVIDENCE (R. I.) JOURNAL—The report paves the way for an amended political attitude toward the whole quetsion in this country, and particularly on the part of the Republican party in the national campaign of 1932. * * * The commission has reached conclusion which will offer the convention of 1932 an opportunity to put itself at least more closely in accordin with the public sentiment of the present day than adherence to the dry attitude of 1928 would permit.

THE HARTFORD (CONN.) COURANT—We are presented with the anomaly of a report upholding the status quo of prohibition but with which eight of the eleven members of the commission disagree. The reservations of the individual commissioners blow prohibition to smithereens.

CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER—Victory on Capitol Hill goes to the drys on points. The Wickersham conclusions present one picture; the text present another. After all is said, the country finds itself exactly where it was before.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH—To give Congress control over the liquor business would be to makek it a cockpit and expunge from our public life every other consideration. Rather than to adopt some impracticable makeshift while public opinion is in such a fluid state would be a mistake. It is far better to wait until the eighteenth amendment can be repealed. The Federal Government must be taken out of this field. States are competent to handle their own liquor problem and they must be permitted to do so.

so as to give to enforcement the greatest practicable efficiency.

"10. Some of the commission are not convinced that prohibition under the eighteenth amendment is unenforceable and believe that a further trial should be made with the help of the recommended improvements, and that if after such trial effective enforcement is not secured there should be a revision of the amendment. Others of the commission are convinced that it has been demonstrated that prohibition under the eighteenth amendment is unenforceable and that the amendment should be immediately revised, but recognizing that the process of amendment will require some time, they unite in the recommendations of conclusion No. 9 for the improvement of the enforcement agencies.

"11. All the commission agree that if the amendment is revised it should be made to read substantially as follows:

"Section 1. The Congress shall have power to regulate or to prohibit the manufacture, traffic in or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into and the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes.

Recommendations Listed.

"12. The recommendations referred to in conclusion No. 9 are:

"1. Removal of the causes of irritation and resentment on the part of the medical profession by:

"(a) Doing away with the statutory fixing of the amount which may be prescribed and the number of prescriptions.

"(b) Abolition of the requirement of specifying the ailment for which liquor is prescribed upon a blank to go into the public files.

"(c) Leaving as much as possible to regulations rather than fixing details by statute.

"2. Removal of the anomalous provisions in Section 29, national prohibition act, as to cider and fruit juices by making some uniform provision for a fixed alcoholic content.

"3. Increase of the number of agents, storekeeper-gaugers, prohibition investigators and special agents; increase in the personnel of the customs bureau and in the equipment of all enforcement organizations.

"4. Enactment of a statute authorizing regulations permitting access to the premises and records of wholesale and retail dealers so as to make it possible to trace products of specially denatured alcohol to the ultimate consumer.

Denaturing Plants Attacked.

"5. Enactment of legislation to prohibit independent denaturing plants.

"6. The commission is opposed to legislation allowing more latitude for Federal searches and seizures.

"7. The commission renews the recommendation contained in its previous reports for codification of the national prohibition act and the acts supplemental to and in amendment thereof.

"8. The commission renews its recommendation of legislation for making procedure in the so-called padlock injunction cases more effective.

"9. The commission recommends legislation providing a mode of prosecuting petty offenses in the Federal courts and modifying the increased penalties act of 1929, as set forth in the chairman's letter to the Attorney General dated May 23, 1930, H. R. Report 1699.

Individual Reports Made.

"There are differences of view among the members of the commission as to certain of the conclusions stated and as to some matters included in or omitted from this report. WICKERSHAM GROUP RAPS HOWELL BILL

Wickersham report is not expected to change the tall senator's determination.

The report places an additional weapon in the hands of those opposed to the Howell bill. The bill has a long way to go before it becomes a law, and apparently there is no prospect of it going far enough this session, if ever.

Several senators are ready to pounce on it the minute it is pressed for consideration. One of them emphasized his opposition to the home-raid provision with the declaration that "I'm damned if I want my home raided ten minutes after the bill becomes a law."

So far no member of the House has espoused the Howell bill by introducing it in that body, and Senator Howell said he had not conferred with any House member looking to its introduction there.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN NEWS (Denver).—The flood of Wickersham reports simply adds fuel to the raging prohibition fire. The members finally signed one compromise document which points out the failure of prohibition enforcement efforts, yet urges their continuance. The drys have the satisfaction of knowing that the recommendations of the main report favor their position. The wets can jubilate because a majority of the individual members belong to the repeal of modification groups. In the words and logic of the old banana song: "Yes, We Have No Conclusions; We Have No Conclusions Today."

Ada L. Comstock Urges Change To Check Disrespect for Law

Ada L. Comstock

"The material which has been brought before the commission has convinced me that adequate enforcement of the eighteenth amendment and the national prohibition act is impossible without the support of a much larger proportion of our population than it now commands. Moreover, the conditions which exist today in respect to enforcement and which, in my opinion, can be modified only slightly by improvements in administration, tend to undermine not only respect for law but more fundamental conceptions of personal integrity and decency. For these reasons, I am one of the members of the commission who favor an immediate attempt at change. As I still hope that Federal regulation of the liquor traffic may prove more effective than that of the States, I favor revision of the amendment rather than its repeal."

CLARK RUM DECISION TO BE ARGUED TODAY

Supreme Court to Be Scene of Wordy Battle Over 18th Amendment.

BOTH SIDES CONFIDENT

(Associated Press.)

An all-day battle will be waged in the Supreme Court today around the citadel of prohibition—the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution.

The Supreme Court, which up to this time has consistently upheld the amendment against all attack, will hear arguments supporting and opposing the recent decision of Judge Clark, of New Jersey, holding it invalid.

The attacking forces claim they have a weapon new to the warfare which has been waging for eleven years and will be able to battle down the bulwarks.

The defending forces, with equal confidence, declare the battering rams which will be used are not new, and defeat will attend the assault.

Held Indictment Invalid.

When William H. Sprague and William J. Howey came to trial before Judge Clark on a charge of possessing and transporting 50 half barrels of beer, he quashed the indictment on the ground the eighteenth amendment was invalid because ratified by State legislatures instead of by State conventions.

Solicitor General Thacher, formerly a district judge in New York City, is to present the argument supporting the validity of the amendment, while Julius Henry Cohen and Seiden Bacon will be heard in opposition.

Since Judge Clark's famous decision on December 18 another Federal District judge and a Federal Circuit Court of Appeals have rendered decisions sustaining the prohibition amendment against similar attacks.

Attorneys Submit Brief.

Whether the appeal presents new ground for attacking the validity of the amendment, or old issues already decided by the court, will hold a prominent place in the arguments.

Cohen and Bacon yesterday submitted their brief, in reply to that of the Government. It follows closely the line of reasoning of Judge Clark's opinion.

Numerous attorneys have sought permission to intervene and file briefs in connection with both sides of the controversy.

Among these were counsel for the Association for the Advancement of Colored People, which contended that if the eighteenth amendment was invalid bcause ratified by legislature, then the amendment ending slavery also was invalid.

Carmelite Fire Quiz Lacks Results.

Fplice investigation of the blaze which Sunday night damaged the former Carmelite retreat house, 200 Todd place northeast, to the extent of $15,000, was continued yesterday without result. Police suspect that the fire may have been started by tramps, as several had been seen loitering in the vicinity.

Five-eighths-inch steel armor protects the machine and crew of two men and its armament consists of a one-pound cannon and a .30-caliber machine gun.

Caucus of House Mniority Delayed

(Associated Press.)

The caucus of House Democrats was postponed yesterday until a few days prior to the next session of Congress, whether it be the regular meeting in December or an extra assembly.

The announcement was made by Minority Leader Garner after a conference of outstanding House Democrats.

Garner said the tentative date of February 28 had been abandoned because of the inconvenience it would occasion 51 new members elected to the new Congress in bringing them here at their own expense. Some Democrats also felt prospects of their organizing the House in the next Congress would be greater if caucus action was delayed.

The Republicans will caucus February 26.

Prohibition Seen Failure.

Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, antiprohibitionist—"The first 100 pages demonstrate conclusively that prohibition is a failure."

Senator Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, author of the eighteenth amendment—"I am delighted with the substantially dry recommendations coming from the commission."

Representative Igoe, Republican, Illinois—"It is wishy-washie."

Chairman Snell, of the House rules committee—"It leaves the situation as confused as ever."

Among those who refused to comment were Chairman Wickersham, of the commission; Federal Judge William Clark, of Newark, who recently held the amendment invalid; Democratic Leader Garner, of the House; Senator La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, and the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

Seen as Handwriting on Wall.

Representative Celler (Democrat), New York—"The handwriting is on the wall. If I were the owner of securities in a brewery or distillery I would hold on to them."

Representative Dyer (Republican), Missouri—"There's some hokus-pokus somewhere. The report is of no benefit to Congress or any one else."

Dr. F. W. Buck, executive secretary Federal Dispensary-Tax Reduction, Inc.—"We must give them (the commission) credit for the thought they have given the subject which has led them to the same conclusion as practically all thinking citizens."

Albert J. Kummer, president Congressional Districts Modification League—"The report is a mare's nest and simply demonstrates that prohibition laws are not enforced today and never have been."

CANNON'S TRIAL PLANS PREPARED

In addition to his impending arraignment before the ecclesiastical jury, Bishop Cannon faces the possibility of another Senate inquisition on the subject of his use of funds entrusted to him for political purposes in 1928. Last spring when the lobby committee sought to find out what he did with $48,000 of the $65,300 given him by E. C. Jameson of New York, for anti-Smith campaign work, the bishop told the committee that was none of the Senate's business. Because of doubt as to the jurisdiction of the lobby committee over political subjects the bishop was successful in his defiance then. However, a recent Senate resolution sponsored by Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, has conferred retroactive jurisdiction upon the Nye investigating committee permitting it to delve into 1928 political maneuvers.

The Nye committee is directed to make such investigations on complaints by any responsible persons and yesterday Representative George Holden Tinkham (Republican), Massachusetts, announced that he will ask the committee to inquire into the Cannon case. As soon as it can be arranged, Mr. Tinkham said, he will appear before the Nye committee and reiterate in substance the charges he made against the bishop last spring.

In a speech on the floor of the House June 17 Mr. Tinkham reviewed the lobby committee's attempts to obtain information about the missing $48,000.

Last November in a letter to Attorney General Mitchell, Mr. Tinkham again reviewed the Cannon case and said: "I bring again to your attention the case of Bishop James Cannon, jr., and I formally and officially demand that you place before a Federal grand jury the evidence of his violation of the Federal corrupt practices act, a criminal statute, during the political campaign of 1928."

Mr. Tinkham said yesterday that so far there has been no response to his letter to the Attorney General save a perfunctory acknowledgement that it had been received.

Parking Light Rules For Autoists Loosened

Motorists who use the streets in front of their homes for garages no longer need turn on parking lights if they live on thoroughfares that are properly lighted, under an amendment to traffic regulations approved yesterday by the District Commissioners.

The new regulation proposed by Traffic Director W. E. Harland, states that parking lights are not necessary so long as a vehicle is visible at a distance of 200 feet; otherwise the former rule stands.

The old rule was drawn up at a time that unlighted streets were the rule, it was explained.

Text of President's Message to Congress

ance by State and local governments of their share of responsibilities under the "concurrent enforcement" provision of the Constitution if enforcement is to be successful.

It recommends that further and more effective efforts be made to enforce the laws. It makes recommendations as to Federal administrative methods and certain secondary legislation for further increase of personnel, new classification of offenses, relief of the courts, and amendments to the national prohibition act clarifying the law and eliminating irritations which arise under it. Some of these recommendations have been enacted by the Congress or are already in course of legislation. I commend these suggestions to the attention of the Congress at an appropriate time.

The commission, by a large majority, does not favor the repeal of the eighteenth amendment as a method of cure for the inherent abuses of the liquor traffic. I am in accord with this view. I am in unity with the spirit of the report in seeking constructive steps to advance the national ideal of eradication of the social and economic and political evils of this traffic, to preserve the gains which have been made, and to eliminate the abuses which exist, at the same time facing with an open mind the difficulties which have arisen under this experiment. I do, however, see serious objections to, and therefore must not be understood as recommending, the commission's proposed revision of the eighteenth amendment which is suggested by them for possible consideration at some future time if the continued effort at enforcement should not prove successful. My own duty and that of all executive officials is clear to enforce the law with all the means at our disposal without equivocation or reservation.

The report is the result of a thorough and comprehensive study of the situation by a representative and authoritative group. It clearly recognizes the gains which have been made and is resolute that those gains shall be preserved. There are necessarily differences in views among its members. It is a temperate and judicial presentation. It should stimulate the clarification of public mind and the advancement of public thought. HERBERT HOOVER.

armament commission, which it took nearly five years to prepare, simply as a tentative framework for the projected treaty for limiting land, sea and air armaments throughout the world. This action automatically legislated the preparatory disarmament commission out of existence.

Dr. Curtius declared that the draft treaty would raise, rather than lower, the level of armaments and denounced its implied restatement of thedisarmament obligations imposed upon Germany by the treaty of Versailles.

Awaits Parity of Security.

In protesting the inequality of disarmament responsibility, the German foreign minister said:

"It is of no use to talk disarmament until the parity of security is nearer realization."

Arthur Henderson, British foreign secretary, denounced alliances for warlike ends, declaring:

"On behalf of my government I say withuot hesitation that I know no alliance and can know no alliance except that of the covenant itself."

This was interpreted in league circles as a reference to France extensive system of military alliances, France having grouped herself with Belgium, Poland, Jugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Roumania in defensive military agreements negotiated since the World War.

Peace Work Is Reviewed.

Briand, reviewing the peace work of the league, asserted that France has materially reduced her armaments and declared that the cuoncil would be acting in bad faith if it delayed fixing the date for the general disarmament conference. Turning toward Curtius, the veteran French foreign minister said:

"All nations assumed definite obligations under the covenant. Article 8 (the article in which the victors in the World War pledged themselves to make some agreement for reducing their armaments) can not be made a dead letter. We can not use security as a pretext for doing nothing."

HOOVER'S DRY REPORT STAND WEIGHED IN LIGHT OF 1932

how pronounced was the wet bolt. About the only fair conclusion from the November elections, in fact, was that Republican wets were not held to their party by that old tie of allegiance, prosperity. And it is not believed there will be any such tie of allegiance in 1932.

But against the possibilities of what may happen in 1932, if the administration takes the dry side, is the virtual certainty that there will be a split if it should take the wet one.

The split and the candidate to lead it in this eventuality are not elusive, intangible or contemplative somethings. Gov. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, sits at Harrisburg teeming with ambition and just itching for the administration to take the wet side.

Morrow Viewed as Unlikely.

There may be some one just itching to lead the Republican wets off the reservation, the dry wing of the party admits, but certainly no very formidable such person appears in sight. The name of Senator Dwight W. Morrow suggests itself, of course, but the general belief is that the New Jersey senator has no thought of seeking the Republican nomination under the uncertain and troublous conditions of 1932.

And it may be said that the respective arguments presented herewith have been made in one form or another and at one time or another to Mr. Hoover since the November elections. Those elections are considered as having brought the matter to a head, insofar as he was concerned.

Again, concerning the lessons that might be drawn from these elections, there is ground for the belief that one which made a deep impression on Mr. Hoover was that straddlers do not fare very well.

Looking Backward.

At any rate, shortly after these elections were tucked away, observers around here professed to see many little changes in the administration's attitude, not necessarily on the part of Mr. Hoover himself but around in various spots in his administration. These little observations are believed to have been the basis for cynical reports several weeks ago that the commission's report would be dry.

Perhaps, the most pronounced shift in the administration's attitude came in its attitude toward the professional dry representatives. Without Mr. Hoover himself having said so, there seemed to be a chorus on one thing when he came into office, and that was that while honest effort would be made to enforce prohibition, the professional drys would not be coddled as they have been by past administrations.

Indeed, up to a short while ago the only professional dry leader to get in the White House was Bishop Cannon, and he went with a delegation bent upon other matters.

Dr. Wilson's Stand Changed.

The professional drys were not blind to what they considered to be a slight, either, and Dr. Clarence True Wilson, of the Methodist Board of Temperance and Morals, sat down some time ago and prepared a very indignant report about the administration's enforcement policy. He made particular complaint that the administration never called the professional dry leaders into consultation.

It has been printed that since Dr. Wilson perpared that report he went to see Amos W. W. Woodcock, in charge of prohibition enforcement, and that it was surprising how much these two men found they had in common. In fact, it has been reported Dr. Wilson learned that he had known Woodcock's sister for years; that many times they had met in dry work.

It is a fact that Dr. Wilson's report, made later to a gathering of drys, was considerably modified. It mentioned not a complaint in the world. These meetings of the professional drys also marked the passing of Mr. Woodcock's hitherto aloofness to them. He went behind closed doors and what he said to them was most gratifying.

Observers ever since have been trying to find out what it was, because Mr. Woodcock's outlook on prohibition enforcement theretofore had been anything else but what the drys would consider gratifying.

HOOVER TRANSMITS 12 VARYNIG REPORTS

Wickersham Group's Findings, All in Conflict, Sent to Congress.

DISAGREE OVER REMEDY

(Associated Press.)

Unable to agree unanimously on a specific remedy, the Wickersham commission and its eleven members embodied their views in an even dozen conflicting reports. All were laid before Congress yesterday by President Hoover.

The commission, as a whole, rejected repeal of the eighteenth amendment or restoration of the legalized saloon. It expressed opposition to Federal or State governments as such going into the liquor business. It opposed modification of the Volstead act to permit light wines and beer.

In the individual conclusions, two commissioners asked outright repeal, four others favored modification, two were for a further trial with some form of referendum meanwhile, and the remaining three advocated continued trial with intensified enforcement.

Both Sides Considered.

Separately and collectively, the members condemned many of the conditions under the dry laws while at the same time noting its benefits. They declared better observance and enforcement imperative if prohibition is to survive.

With one exception, the whole commission agreed that if the Constitution is to be revised, the best way would be to strike out the present absolute banning of liquor and to give Congress the responsibility of finding a new solution.

The exception was Monte M. Lemann, of Louisiana, who did not sign the main report. He and Newton D. Baker, of Ohio, recommended repeal.

One commissioner, Henry W. Anderson, of Virginia, advanced a proposal for Government liquor control, somewhat after the method in effect in Sweden. Commissioners Kenyon, Loesch, Mackintosh, McCormick and Pound recommended consideration of the plan.

Further Trial Urged.

The endorsements of Kenyon and McCormick were qualified by statements that they favored further trial of the present law.

Besides Mr. Anderson, those proposing modification of the eighteenth amendment were Ada L. Comstock, of Massachusetts; Frank J. Loesch, of Illinois, and Roscoe Pound, of Massachusetts.

William S. Kenyon, of Iowa, and Paul J. McCormick, of California, favored further trial with a canvass of public sentiment by referendum or through State conventions.

Those who advised going ahead with the present system under stricter enforcement were Chairman George W. Wickersham, of New York; William I. Grubb, of Alabama, and Kenneth Mackintosh, from the State of Washington.

Observance Held Inadequate.

After declaring "There is yet no adequate observance or enforcement," the commission recommended increase of the Justice Department and Customs Bureau personnel to prosecute violators.

The law should be amended, the commission said, to clarify the status of cider and fruit juices "by making some uniform provision for a fixed alcoholic content."

New laws were proposed to do away with the fixing of the amount of liquor and the number of prescriptions which a doctor can prescribe.

Legislation allowing more latitude for Federal searches and seizures was opposed.

Revision Suggestion Made.

If the dry amendment is to be revised at all, the commissioners agreed it should be made to read substantially as follows:

"The Congress shall have power to regulate or to prohibit the manufacture, traffic in or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into and the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes."

As it now stands, the amendment reads:

"The manufacture, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into, or the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes is hereby prohibited. The Congress and the several States shall have concurrent power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation."

Act Codification Reurged.

The commission renewed its recommendations made just a year ago for codification of the national prohibition act and for legislation for making procedure in padlock injunction cases more effective.

"Cooperation of the States is an essential element in enforcement," it held, and "the support of public opinion in the several States is necessary in order to insure such cooperation."

Mr. Anderson's opinion was by far the most exhaustive of the 11 individual papers, covering 42 of the 286 printed pages of the combined report. His plan for Government-controlled liquor sales would be based on the amendment suggested to replace the present eighteenth amendment, if such a revision should be, entered into.

The Virginian called the Swedish system "by far the most successful of any existing system of liquor control."

Commission Is Suggested.

Under his plan, Congress would create a bipartisan liquor-control commission—similar to the Interstate Commerce Commission—which would regulate all liquor dealings. Congress also would create a national corporation, all stock of which should be privately owned, to manufacture, import, export and transport in interstate commerce, all beverages of alcoholic content to be legally sold in the United States.

Prices should be so fixed by the corporation with the consent of the commission, in order that manufacture and sale of liquor by bootleggers would be unprofitable.

The corporation would not be allowed by the commission to ship liquor into States which desire prohibition. The States would have to enforce the law within their own borders. The corporation would sell and transport only to State agencies created for the purposes of local distribution under State commissions. Local option for communities desiring prohibition could be established at will by the State.

Sales Would Be Limited.

"Actual sales of liquor to individuals would be limited to persons holding license books, issued by State agencies. The amount would be limited. Upon conviction for violation of the law—for drunkenness or other cause provided by the State—the license of the individual would be canceled for such time as might be prescribed.

Profits made by the national corporation, after paying a reasonable dividend to its private stockholders would go to the Federal Government for developing schools, eliminating slums and educating the people away from intemperance, and to the States. Profits from the State agencies would go to the States for use as the legislatures might designate.

The report of the commission as a whole embodies a review of the voluminous evidence taken over a period of more than a year and a half. It includes a frank discussion of conditions.

Change in Attitude Seen.

"It is safe to say," said the commission, "that a significant change has taken place in the social attitude toward drinking. * * *

"It is evident that, taking the country as a whole, people of wealth, business men and professional men and their families are drinking in large numbers in quite frank disregard of the declared policy of the national prohibition act."

Turning to the sources of illicit liquor, the commission asserted that "importation is chiefly from Canada, both directly and indirectly." It touched also upon rum coming from the West Indies, "brandy from France and gin from Holland."

The diversion of industrial alcohol, the report said, presented a "grave danger" in certain phases, adding: "Much as the present situation is an improvement upon the bad conditions of some years ago, it is still far from satisfactory from the standpinnt of prohibition. There are too many opportunities for leaks."

Illicit Distilling Chief Source.

Nevertheless, the commission said, "illicit distilling has become for the time being the chief source of supply.

"In place of the small still operated by the individual moonshiner, there are plants of a capacity fairly comparable to the old-time lawful distillery. * * *

"The business of maintaining and operating them is well organized, has found how to shift locations systematically, and has learned to calculate for seizures and destructions of stills as part of the overhead. The employes are assured of counsel in case of prosecution. If convicted, their fines are paid for them. If imprisoned their families are cared for and they are reemployed on release."

The commission concluded that as a consequence of this "high development of illicit distilling," a "steady volume of whisky, much of it of good quality, is put in circulation." It added that the "prices at which it is obtainable are a convincing testimony to the ineffectiveness of enforcement against this source of supply."

Home Enforcement Discouraged.

As for the making of wine and beer in the home, the commission concluded that "necessity seems to compel the virtual abandonment of efforts for effective enforcement at this point," adding, however, that "this is done at the price of nullification to that exent." A recommendation was made for:

"Removal of the anomalous provisions in section 29, national prohibition act, as to cider and fruit juices by making some uniform provision for a fixed alcoholic content."

It is under section 29 that grape concentrate concerns are selling their product.

"Why home wine making should be lawful while home brewing of beer and home distilling of spirits are not, why home wine making for home use is less reprehensible than making the same wine outside the home for home use and why it should be penal to make wine commercially for use in homes and not penal to make in huge quantities the material for wine making and set up an elaborate selling campaign for disposing of them, is not apparent."

Medicinal Proposal Explained.

In explaining its medicinal liquor recommendation the commission said:

"We are satisfied that in several particulars the causes of resentment on the part of the medical profession operate against a favorable public opinion to such an extent as to outweigh the advantages to enforcement."

The commission hit out strenuously at the failure of the Federal prohibition forces to entrap the real leaders of the bootlegging business.

"It is common knowledge, and a general source of dissatisfaction with enforcement of the national prohibition act, that the big operators or head men in the traffic are rarely caught," said the report. "Those who are found distilling, or transporting, or selling, are merely employes. Behind them are the heads of an organization, supplying the capital, making the plans and reaping the large profits.

"To catch them calls for a much higher type of enforcement organization and a higher and more experienced type of agents than have been available in the past."

PINCHOS SWORN IN; UTILITIES ATTACKED

Plans Fair Rate Board to Displace Public Service Commission.

WILL BE DRY GOVERNOR

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Gifford Pinchot, aggressive Independent Republican, who was elected Governor of Pennsylvania despite defections in the ranks of the regular Republican organization, was inaugurated amid picturesque ceremonies today.

Wearing his battered brown campaign fedora, he drove with the retiring chi feexecutive, John S. Fisher, from the executive mansion to the Capitol in an open victoria of the vintage of 1899, drawn by two spirited white horses.

Repeat Campaign Pledges.

In a characteristic speech he reiterated his attacks on the public utilities, which he accused throughout his campaign of attempting to dominate the government. He pledged to exert every effort to abolish the Public Service Commission and set up in its place a fair rate board to be elected by the voters.

On prohibition the governor said: "On the wet and dry issue my record speakes louder than any words. It is well known not only that I believe in obeying and enforcing the eighteenth amendment because it is the law, but that I am a convinced supporter f the amendment itself. I repeat the declaration made in my first inaugural—this administration will be dry."

Smashes Old Precedent.

A picturesque National figure since his days as Chief Forester of the United States, Pinchot smashed a precedent of 40 years in returning to the office of governor.

His previous term ended in 1927, when he failed to regain the Republican nomination. In the recent election he defeated by more than 50,000 votes his Democratic and liberal opponent, John M. Hemphill, who also received support of a large section of the regular Republican organization.

First-Degree Murder Indictment Returned

Charles E. Brown, Negro, was indicted yesterday by the District grand jury on a charge of first-degree murder in the death January 2 of William Sedgwick, another Negro.

At the same time the grand jury indicted Margie Davenport, Negro woman, on a charge of manslaughter in the death of John Speaks, Negro. Speaks died January 4. She had been held on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon, but as Speaks died later the grand jury ignored that charge.

Indictment of Woman Charges $1,705 Fraud

Alleged to have defrauded Miss Jane D. Pierson while posing as the widow of Henry M. Flagler, railroad magnate, Mrs. Zora M. Howe was indicted yesterday by the District grand jury on a charge of false pretenses. She is alleged to have obtained $1,705.

Mrs. Howe is said to have defrauded Miss Pierson while the latter was nursing her between October 10 and November 7 last. The indictment charges that the money was obtained on representation that the defendant soon would receive money from the estate of her husband.

HOOVER WILL ASSIST AT HARDING SERVICE

MAY DELIVER ADDRESS

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover will participate in the long-deferred dedication of the Harding Memorial in Marion, Ohio, some time after June 1.

Former Senator Joseph Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey, president of the memorial commission, yesterday formally invited the President to attend the ceremonies, and the latter accepted. Plans are not complete, but he may deliver the dedicatory address.

Several months ago doubts arose over whether Mr. Hoover would participate in the ceremonies dedicating the structure, where the bodies of President and Mrs. Harding lie.

Mr. Hoover made it known last month that he would participate in the dedication ceremonies if a formal invitation were extended. An official of the commission then said the President had been invited, and it was doubtful for a time that the invitation would be renewed.

The misunderstanding was cleared away early in the year at a meeting of the commission officials and a decision was made to have Mr. Frelinghuysen extend the formal invitation.

Calvin Coolidge also will be asked to participate in the ceremonies. He was at one time the honorary president of the Harding Memorial Association and was expected to participate in the dedication arranged for August, 1928.

Delays and differences caused postponement, and now the ceremonies are set for some time next summer, probably in June.

Some Specialists In Excess Fat Make Thousands Thin
Since this new discovery

In old days, doctors were not often consulted in obesity. People simply assumed that excess fat meant too much food, too little exercise. They feared the doctor would prescribe starvation.

Now that has changed. Science has discovered that a scanty gland secretion is a great cause of excess fat. Doctors the world over know how to correct it. And some of them are telling thousands the way to normal figures.

The factor they use is employed in Marmola prescription tablets. A world-famous medical laboratory prepares them to fit the average case. Thus anyone can now deal with obesity in the right way at small cost. This way supplies a lacking factor which largely controls nutrition. It helps turn food into fuel and energy when too much goes to fat. No help in all medicine is more widely accepted today.

Marmola has been used for 24 years—millions of boxes of it. Users have told others about it, and the use has spread. Now you can see its results in every circle. Excess fat has been fast disappearing. Slender figures are everywhere the vogue.

Now excess fat is folly. It takes so little to correct it. No abnormal exercise or diet. Combat the gland cause. Think what the results will mean in beauty, health and vim.

All druggists supply Marmola at $1. A book in each box gives the formula and explains the reasons for results. It means doing what doctors do, instead of something harmful or absurd. Go start today.

Beck Is Indicted As Housebreaker

Already Under Probation in Robbery of Bank Messenger.

Morris Carlton Beck, now under a three-year probationary sentence, and James de LaFayette Carpenter were indicted jointly by the grand jury yesterday on charges of housebreaking and larceny.

Beck and Carpenter are alleged to have broken into a drug store at 5017 Connecticut avenue northwest earlier this month and to have stolen cash aggregating $200 and approximately 50 pints of prescription whisky, and cigars and cigarettes.

Beck was placed on probation in connection with the robbery of a messenger of the Mount Vernon Savings Bank last summer. At the time he was a first offender, and the justice exercised the probationary sentence.

Parking Light Rules For Autoists Loosened

Motorists who use the streets in front of their homes for garages no longer need turn on parking lights if they live on thoroughfares that are properly lighted, under an amendment to traffic regulations approved yesterday by the District Commissioners.

The new regulation, proposed by Traffic Director W. H. Harland, states that parking lights are not necessary so long as a vehicle is visible at a distance of 200 feet; otherwise the former rule stands.

LUCAS EXONERATED IN WOMAN'S CHARGE

GETS RECTOR'S SUPPORT

The District grand jury refused yesterday to indict T. Guy Lucas, choirmaster at St. John's Episcopal Church, on a charge of embezzlement, preferred by Mrs. Edith L. Townshend.

Lucas was accused of having embezzled $4,500 of the woman's money. He contended he had helped her to negotiate a real estate transaction and that the money it was alleged he had retained was his 50 per cent commission.

Mrs. Townshend, on a writ of replevin, had deputy United States marshals strip the musician's apartment on Christmas Eve, insisting the furnishings were hers.

Lucas' arrest followed. Then came a suit in District Supreme Court in which the woman sought to recover the $4,500.

Exoneration of Lucas came after the Rev. G. G. Johnson, rector of the church, and others had testified concerning the choirmaster's reputation.

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

TEXTILE STRIKERS COMING TO CAPITAL

DISORDERS BREAK OUT

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Jan. 20.—The management committee of the textile strike was to leave late tonight for Washington, it was announced at union headquarters this evening. Buford Nash and four other of the committee members were to go, it was stated. Their purpose was to see Secretary of Labor Doak and John Barton Payne, president of the American Red Cross.

New disorders broke out at Schoolfield late this evening. The family of Thomas Gilreath, striker, was evicted under warrants issued by Magistrate R. S. Fitts. Constable T. J. Oakes, who went to the scene, says that Mrs. Gilreath raised objection to being put out, but the effects were placed in the street. The officers had hardly left the scene when a crowd, estimated at 200 by observers, swept down on the dwelling on Jackson avenue and bombarded it with stones. Within a few moments all the windows had been broken. Soldiers and civil police hastened to the spot but the crowd had dispersed. No arrests were made.

Constables today found a yard of dynamite fuse and nine dynamite caps in some bushes close to Bishop avenue. Children had found them while playing, also a bottle containing a thick fluid. They broke the bottle against a tree and none of the fluid was recovered for testing.

Brig. Gen. Samuel G. Waller came to Danville this evening as acting adjutant of the State. He was ordered by Gov. Pollard to report on the necessity for maintaining militia on strike duty in the textile village of Schoolfield.

Waller was under instructions to confer with the civil authorities whose suggested policies have been carried out by the militia, martial law not having been proclaimed.

The official will make no report on his findings until he has returned to Richmond and presented them to Gov. Pollard.

Next Saturday the troops will have been on duty 60 days and, under the law, are entitled to be relieved by other contingents.

Man Kills Wife, Self; Sons Hurt

Crazed Baltimore Father Turns On Gas Jets and Stabs Family.

Baltimore, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Closing all windows and turning on four gas jets in the kitchen of his home today, a crazed man stabbed and killed his wife, seriously wounded two youthful sons who tried to subdue him, and then ended his own life.

The man, Andrew Thompson, 45, had been receiving treatment here for recurrent fits of insanity, ascribed to an automobile accident, for several years. He came here three years ago from Norfolk. His wife was Mrs. Christine Thompson, 44.

Wintie Thompson, 18, and Arnold, 19, were wounded by their father as they grappled with him, and another son, Leonard, 12, was overcome by gas.

Confederate Veteran, Of Shepherdstown, Dies

Special to The Washington Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., Jan. 20.—Benjamin S. Pendleton, 88, last surviving Confederate veteran of Shepherdstown, Jefferson County, died yesterday.

At the outbreak of the Civil War he enlisted in Company A, Second Virginia Infantry, Stonewall Brigade, commanded by Capt. George W. Chambers, of Bolivar, Jefferson County, and was later transferred to Butler's Company, organized at Shepherdstown. Mr. Pendleton was the oldest merchant in Jefferson County and conducted a store until a few weeks ago.

School Principal Is Fatally Shot

E. M. Cogle Is Believed to Have Accidentally Injured Self in Car.

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Jan. 20.—E. M. Cogle, 39, for the last three years principal of the Woodlawn School, Prince George County, accidentally, it is believed, shot and fatally wounded himself yesterday afternoon while seated alone in an automobile on Halifax street near a gunsmith shop. The bullet is said to have been fired from a 22-caliber rifle and to have entered the head.

The wounded principal was taken to the Petersburg Hospital, where he died last night. So far as the police have been able to ascertain on investigation there were no eyewitnesses to the shooting and they are of the belief that it was accidentally done. The rifle, it appears, was the property of another man at Woodlawn and Cogle had brought it to Petersburg to have repairs made to it.

Before coming to Woodlawn Cogle had been principal of a school at Burrowsville, Prince George County, and at the time of his death he was also a supply teacher in the Presbyterian Chapel at Woodlawn. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Myrtle Pearman Cogle; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Cogle, of Disputanta, and several brothers and sisters.

J. W. Stafford Killed Self, Certificate Says

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 20.—A certificate of suicide was issued in connection with the death of John W. Stafford, 40, Celanese plant worker, whose body, with a bullet wound through his heart, was found on the road near his home in Homewood late yesterday.

No motive is known. He is survived by his wife, having wedded last August, and four stepchildren. He was twice married, as was his wife. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon with the rites of the Patriotic Order Sons of America.

Three Relays Carry Body Down Icy Slope

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Jan. 20.—How it required three relays of eighteen men to carry the body of the Rev. Bailey Nicholson, a minister, down the icy slopes of the Blue Ridge Mountains for burial near Skyland, Page County, was related here today. The home-made coffin was carried down the snow-covered, almost perpendicular, path for two miles.

Nicholson was a minister of the Plymouth Church. He was killed when a tree his 14-year-old son was chopping crashed upon him. The lad said that the tree fell up the mountain slope instead of down grade as the father had expected.

BYRD FAVORS WORK INSTEAD OF CHARITY

DROUGHT AREA HARD HIT

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Jan. 20.—Virginia farmers, hard hit by drought, do not want charity, but only an opportunity to work, according to a telegram tonight from Harry F. Byrd, State drought committee chairman, to Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Arkansas, appealing to him for an appropriation by Congress to construct farm-to-market roads.

"Virginia farmers do not want charity but only an opportunity to work. The only work to help them is such work as they can perform in the proximity of their homes. In no other way can this work be provided except on farm-to-market roads wherein human labor is largely utilized and not machinery. Nothing in Hoover unemployment program gives work to drought-distressed farmers as additional road appropriation must be expended on construction of Federal-designated roads and using machinery and constructing public buildings in the cities.

"Drought conference of 21 States indorsed unanimously a proposal to advance $50,000,000 to drought States to be repaid to the Government in ten years and expended for road construction to use principally human labor. Secretary Hyde, on behalf of the administration, pledged his support but has failed to recommend this legislation. If Virginia could be alloted $50,000 per county to employ labor for this work our requests to Red Cross would be negligible and same condition prevails in other States. Our only hope now appears to be in Congress to provide this relief and we appeal to you as you have already introduced bill for this appropriation."

Special to The Washington Post.

GRAND JURY SCORES COUNTY POLICEMEN

Officers Are Winking at Law Violation in Anne Arundel, Report Asserts.

FREE RACE PASSES HIT

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 20.—Scoring police officers, deputy sheriffs and constables for apparent "winking" at law violations, particularly as regards liquor selling and gambling, the grand jury of Anne Arundel County today completed its fall and winter investigations and filed a report with Judge Robert Moss in the local circuit court.

The inquest, of which Joshua S. Linthicum, prominent farmer and real estate dealer of the Fifth District, was foreman, had been in session intermittently since last October.

"There is a profound disregard for the local option law," the jury said, and adds that gambling, such as operating slot machines, selling lottery tickets and bookmaking on horse races, flourish in the county. The jury said it was unable to get information from police officials who were called before it as witnesses, and it seems as if these officials are accepting pay to "say or know nothing."

The jury urges that the county commissioners and sheriff, who have the appointment of these officers, should see that more competent men are named. Such a condition of affairs, the jury points out, greatly hampers the work of the investigating group, the State's attorney and the court. The jury recommends that police officers and constables be made one group and that a responsible man be appointed as their chief.

The jury investigated conditions at the Laurel Rack Track, and had several officials of the plant before it. The report says that while the track generally is operated in an orderly manner, the practice of officials issuing a great number of free passes, "particularly to political powers," is condemned.

Thieves at Orange Get $1,300 by Looting Safe

Special to The Washington Post.

Orange, Va., Jan. 20.—Thieves last night entered the office of the Orange Motor and Equipment Co. here, broke open the safe and made good their escape with cash and checks totaling between $1,300 and $1,400, $1,080 of which represented funds due the State motor vehicle department for auto license fees.

FEAR OF REVENGE CONCEALS ROBBERY

Former Baltimore Woman, Now Bride, Lost $75,000 in Gems at Chicago.

HELD UP LAST NOVEMBER

Chicago, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The Chicago Tribune said today it had learned Mrs. Cornelia Fox, of the Majestic Hotel, Philadelphia, had been robbed of $75,000 in jewelry in a holdup November 25. No police report of the robbery, which took place at Montrose avenue and the Outer Lake Shore Drive, was made at the time. A necklace of 36 pearls was listed among the stolen articles, which were insured.

Philadelphia, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Mrs. Cornelia Fox, reported to have been robbed of $75,000 in jewelry at Chicago last fall, was married at New York two weeks ago and is now Mrs. Edward Powell, whose husband is associated with a brokerage firm. They are on their honeymoon in Florida. Mrs. Powell was formerly the wife of Morton Fox, of Baltimore.

Moses Weinbeck, jr., of this city, Mrs. Powell's brother-in-law, with whom she lived here, said she was taking a motor ride with her then future husband last November and that when they reached Montrose avenue and the Outer Lake Shore Drive, two men leaped from a motor car and held them up.

Weinbeck said a report was made to the Chicago police; several suspects were arrested but could not be identified. Fearing revenge by the hold-up men, Weinbeck said, the police were asked not to give out any information. Weinbeck also said that most of the jewelry was insured.

Miller Loses Suit Against Tom Mix

Cross-Action by Cowboy Is Also Dismissed in Mississippi Court.

Natchez, Miss., Jan. 20.—Chancellor R. W. Cutrer late today denied a suit for $50,000 damages brought by Col. Zack T. Miller, owner of the 101 Ranch Shows, as a libel action against Tom Mix, motion picture cowboy.

Miller said Mix had agreed to travel with his shows in 1929, but had failed to fulfill his agreement, and had libeled him in publicly denying the tentative contract. The crux of the libel action was based on this remark, attributed to Mix: "I never considered going with the 101 Show. This was just a nightmare of Zack's."

Chancellor Cutrer, in denying the suit, held these words did not constitute libel. A $150,000 cross-bill filed by Mix was dismissed.

Cuban Paper Ban Held Necessary

"Seditious Campaign" Laid to Suppressed Sheets by Machado's Aid.

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Suppression of Havana newspapers by the government of Cuba was declared today by Ricardo Herrera, secretary to President Machado, to be a necessary step against "a seditious campaign" and in complete accord with Cuban laws.

Senor Herrera made the response to a protest by the press congress of the world. His message was addressed to President Walter Williams, of the University of Missouri, honorary president of the Press Congress, and it was made public by James Wright Brown, president of the Editor and Publisher and member of the executive committee of the Press Congress.

Senor Herrera said:

"The suppression of these papers is in effect solely for the purpose of putting a stop to a seditious campaign which the papers have maintained and which has seriously menaced the peace and tranquillity of the country, as well as seriously affecting commerce and industry from which thousands of Cubans earn their living."

Robbery Stopped As Trio Is Shot

Rifling of Brooklyn Store Halted When Police Kill One, Wound Two.

New York, Jan. 2 (A.P.).—Police ran down and shot three men they said they found rifling a Brooklyn drug store early today. One man was killed, another was critically wounded and the third was shot through the hand.

A telephone message told of the robbery and three policemen were sent in an automobile. As they approached the store a man drove away in a motorcar, escaping under fire.

At the sound of the shots three men dashed through the side door of the store and scattered. Arthur O'Toole, 25, was shot through the hand. The other two sought refuge in a vacant building.

Police found the two crouching in a corner on the upper floor and as one of them moved his hand a patrolman fired twice. Robert Pizzo, 26, was shot through the heart and died immediately. Rudolph Coghe, 28, was taken to a hospital with a bullet in his back.

Police believed the men broke into the drug store in search of liquor or narcotics.

Loudoun Teachers Ask 4-Year Terms

County Session Is Held at Lucketts; Canvassing Is Opposed.

Special to The Washington Post.

Leesburg, Va., Jan. 20.—The Loudoun County Education Association, in session at Lucketts yesterday, attended by 125 teachers, adopted a resolution requesting the county school board to appoint teachers for a term of four years after a two-year probationary service in the county.

The meeting also favored asking the county school board to prevent agents from soliciting teachers during school hours. The association approved of a resolution passed by the county school board that beginning with the school session 1931-1932 the payment of salaries of teachers shall be made by deposit in banks in the county designated by the teachers.

The body favored a recent resolution passed by the county board to prohibit teachers from taking up prize contests during school hours except when arranged by school authorities. A report was made on the committee on a standard method of disciplining children, advocating making a list of misdemeanors, valuating each one and determining the deportment grade by reducing the maximum of 100.

War Veteran Found Dead in Norfolk Flat

Norfolk, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Harry Moss, 55, Spanish-American War veteran, was found dead today with numerous wounds about the head, lying upon the floor of a second-story flat. Detectives armed with a warrant charging murder were searching this afternoon for Guy Mitchell, whom they were told was with Moss yesterday.

Police learned that Moss had been in a fight Sunday. He was taken to his room, where his wounds were bathed. That was the last time he was seen alive.

Montana Woman Lost 17 Pounds Weight in 4 Weeks

Here's a letter written October 21, 1929, by Mrs. Fred Barringer, of Lewiston, Mont., that ought to be read by every overweight woman in America.

When stout women can lose fat and at the same time gain in energy and vigor.

Gain in charm and vivaciousness.

Gain a healthy complexion and have eyes that sparkle with buoyant health.

And at insignificant cost—isn't it time to use common sense?

Please read this letter carefully:

"Gentlemen: I started taking Kruschen every morning as directed as I was very much overweight and wanted to reduce.

"I had tried going on a diet but would get so hungry that my diet would not last long, so I decided to give 'Kruschen Salts' a fair trail. The day I started to take them I weighed 256 pounds, and at present, which has been just four weeks, I weigh 239 pounds. And I must say, I feel better in every way, besides looking much better.

"May all large people, both men and women, who want to reduce in an easy way, give Kruschen Salts a fair trial. Just try one bottle and by following directions, I am sure it will convince any one. I bought my second bottle today."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts four weeks costs but 85 cents at Peoples Drug Stores or any drug store in America.

Why not try one bottle—if not joyfully satisfied—money back. When taking Kruschen you can reduce more swiftly by cutting out pastry and fatty meat—go light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar—its the safe way to reduce.—Adv.

NO SOLUTION.

No one expected the Law Enforcement Commission to hand President Hoover a solution for the prohibition problem on a silver platter. The President could not have chosen eleven citizens who would have agreed on all phases of the subject. The fact that all but one of the commissioners concurred in the report makes it worthy of serious consideration, even though the individual commissioners differ radically as to what the ultimate solution should be.

The commission is unanimous in finding present conditions unsatisfactory. Prohibition is neither adequately observed nor enforced. Most members of the commission are unwilling to see prohibition abandoned without an earnest attempt at enforcement. On this view President Hoover takes his stand, urging "constructive steps to advance the national ideal of eradication of the social and economic and political evils" of the liquor traffic.

A comprehensive and unprejudiced view of the situation can lead to no other conclusion for the present time. To move in the opposite direction would be to accentuate evils which are already intolerable. The President is charged with enforcing the laws. The facilities for making prohibition effective are inadequate and the machinery for enforcement needs overhauling in some particulars. Mr. Hoover would be lax in his duty if he did not recommend legislation that will correct these abuses, and Congress would be utterly inconsistent if it should fail to act on this advice.

Repeal of the eighteenth amendment would, in the opinion of the commission, lead to conditions "quite as bad as those we are seeking to escape." The country will never tolerate the return of the saloon. Even the most ardent wets do not suggest that. But how is the present system to be changed without a restoration of the saloon? On that question the commission split, just as individuals and members of Congress have split. The commission bumped into the same stone wall that has obstructed every other group studying this problem. After prohibition, what?

Henry W. Anderson submits a plan for control of liquor traffic by a Federal commission. Some other members of the commission recommend his plan "for consideration," but it does not have the indorsement of the group. Five members favor revision of the eighteenth amendment, but the revised amendment would give Congress power to "regulate" or prohibit liquor traffic. So long as Congress retains its present sentiments on the subject this proposal means nothing. It is very obvious that this commission of experts has no solution for prohibition.

The commission does not even give hope that the law can ever be enforced effectively. Prepared materials for making liquor at home are manufactured in large quantities. Much of this liquor gets into circulation. But the commission finds that resentment against any invasion of the home makes enforcement against manufacture of this kind virtually impossible. Therefore, it concludes:

> Necessity seems to compel the virtual abandonment of efforts for effective enforcement at this point, but it must be recognized that this is done at the price of nullification to that extent.

This is not a pleasant picture. Complete enforcement is out of the question. The commission has not agreed upon a substitute proposal. Repeal of either the amendment or the Volstead act would leave the country in a worse condition than now exists. If there is a solution for the prohibition enigma it is not yet apparent. The problem will have to be subjected to a further evolutionary grind before the ultimate course of the country can be determined.

In the meantime, Congress ought to revise the law which restricts the medical profession to arbitrary requirements. The prohibition forces ought to be strengthened, and an honest effort should be made to enforce the law so long as it remains on the statute books. The people voted this law upon themselves. They can repeal it. But to violate it is madness.

NATIONAL SHIPPING CONFERENCE.

The fourth national conference on the merchant marine, which opens today in this city under Shipping Board auspices, promises to stimulate thought and action on a number of outstanding questions now confronting American shipping. Chief among these is the all-important problem of securing for American lines a greater share of patronage.

Under the provisions of the Jones-White act the merchant marine is being enlarged and strengthened by the addition of new and fast ships of modern design. This gratifying development, coupled with the fact that the Shipping Board has made excellent progress in disposing of its tonnage to American citizens, brings nearer the day when the entire merchant fleet will be operated by private American interests.

Fully realizing that future success depends entirely on themselves, American owners and operators at today's conference will seek to devise ways and means whereby they may be favored with a greater portion of the ocean freight and passenger business which now goes so largely to ships of foreign flags.

The sums paid by American exporters, importers and travelers to foreign competitors are stupendous, amounting to approximately $700,000,000 annually. If a reasonable portion of this vast sum could be diverted to American carriers the future of the American merchant marine would be assured.

The development of the modern American merchant marine is but the extension of the American land transportation system to all the markets reached by the seven seas; it serves as an insurance against interruption in the transportation of exports and imports, with resultant benefits to mines, farms, forests and factories.

Government aid to help offset the higher building and operating costs of American ships is essential, but this alone will not solve the problem. The vital element, the greatest contributing factor, and the one necessary to insure an adequate and permanent merchant marine is the liberal patronage and support of American ships by all American exporters, importers and the traveling public.

To the Shipping Board is due full credit for its constructive work in bringing about these annual conferences. The board has succeeded in harmonizing the divergent views of various branches of the industry and has thus developed a spirit of solidarity among shipowners and allied interests that will go far to enable the American merchant marine to compete with its maritime rivals.

PINCHOT CALLS TO NORRIS.

In taking office as Governor of Pennsylvania, Gifford Pinchot yesterday declared war upon the "public utilities," which he asserted was making a "carefully planned, elaborately financed, and powerfully directed attack upon the rule of the people under the law. It aims to substitute government by the public utilities for government by the people. It is not confined to Pennsylvania. Not a single State in the Union is free from a similar attempt. With few exceptions the men who would thus transfer the government of this Commonwealth to great special interests are not Pennsylvanians. Their seat of power is in another State."

Obviously the Governor of Pennsylvania is not clothed with sufficient power to cope with this stupendous conspiracy. The whole Union must be the field of battle, and the champion of the people must have Nation-wide authority. Therefore he must be President of the United States.

Gifford Pinchot for President; issue, the people vs. the power trust. Take sides all! Choose ye this day whom ye shall serve.

The first volunteer in the Pinchot army should be George W. Norris, of Nebraska. At least he has found a leader—a man whose clarion call is louder than his own. The feeble alarms sounded by the Nebraskan are now reinforced by the siren of Pennsylvania. Senator Norris can not doubt or hesitate. He must cast off Al Smith, and come out for Gifford Pinchot. It is true that Gov. Pinchot declares himself an uncompromising dry, while Al Smith's wetness seemed to be rather lickerish to Senator Norris' taste in 1928. But there must be no quarreling, and no backsliding on the main issue. Minor issues must be swept aside. The question is: Shall the people of the United States govern themselves, or become slaves of the power trust? The answer is: Get behind Gifford Pinchot for President, and help him to kill the power trust.

The people are a lot of sheep, as is conclusively proved by the new Governor of Pennsylvania in his exhortation to them to pluck up courage and throw off the oppressor. But they must have a bellwether. They listen to Gov. Pinchot, and are delighted, and would take the plunge after him if some one would only make the break. In this situation Senator Norris can lead the sheep. Let him declare for Gifford Pinchot for President, and immediately a clamor as of many waters will acclaim the beginning of the redemption of the people.

Why hesitate, Senator Norris?

BEWARE OF STREET BEGGARS.

In comparison with other cities Washington has little street begging. Nevertheless, the existing economic situation has given professional mendicants a rare opportunity, and a considerable number are taking advantage of it. Unemployment and the drought have softened the public heart. Professional beggars find it easy to prey upon the public.

Begging is not justified under any circumstances. Persons who are really in dire need seldom resort to that form of charity. When their own resources fail they seek aid from a charitable organization. There is no need for any one to beg on the streets to save himself from hunger. Those who do accost pedestrians and ask for the price of a meal are usually professional beggars.

The practice of giving money to street beggars indiscriminately is especially to be deplored when so many deserving people are in need. The individual who is accosted on the street has no means of knowing whether or not he is contributing to a dissolute professional beggar. In New York and other large cities beggars grow rich in their trade. It is estimated that professional beggars of New York City collect about $50,000 per day, which amounts to approximately $15,000,000 annually. The only way in which this charity can be reserved for deserving people is to put an end to begging.

For this reason a statute making begging unlawful was enacted for the District. To give money to a beggar here is to make him liable to arrest. The law seeks to protect the public and at the same time to take care of those actually in need. If the money that is handed to questionable mendicants annually were given to charitable organizations it would doubtless be sufficient to relieve the suffering and distress of all worthy applicants for aid. It is especially unwise to waste charity when legitimate needs are numerous.

The death rate in American cities during 1930 was lower than ever before. It may be taken for granted that Chicago was not included.

If the Senate really wants to stir up a fuss, why doesn't it try recalling the Wickersham commission?

THE MERCHANT MARINE AND NATIONAL DEFENSE

By Commander HOLLOWAY H. FROST, U. S. Navy.

Today there assembles a national conference on the merchant marine. At this conference primary consideration will be given to the commercial reasons for its development. It is entirely correct that emphasis should be placed on these reasons. They alone offer sufficient, and more than sufficient, arguments for a merchant marine second to none.

But it may be well not to forget that there are other national needs which the merchant marine must fill. For centuries merchant ships and their sailors have been reckoned one of the essential elements of any scheme of national defense. It is of this additional reason for the development of the merchant marine which we propose here to speak.

It requires only the most superficial knowledge of American history to show what an important part the merchant marine has played in the defense of our country. In the War of the Revolution it was from merchant ships and merchant sailors that our Continental Navy was improvised. It was from a similar source that our great privateering fleets were created. It was with an old Indianman that Paul Jones won his famous sea fight off the English coast.

In the War of 1812 it was from the merchant shipping that we recruited the sailors for our famous frigates. In fact, it was with a crew of such men—enlisted after war was declared—that Isaac Hull manned old Ironsides and won her first victory over a British frigate. And it was of such sailors that Gunner Smith said, "Every man stood firm to his post." These same seamen, under their own merchant ship officers, made the most devastating privateering cruises recorded in the annals of the sea. Under Boyle and Reid they contended with honor and success against even the cruisers of the royal navy.

In the Civil War great numbers of merchant steamers of every description were hastily converted into auxiliary cruisers and gunboats. The Navy's five-fold expansion of officers and men was possible only because of our large and efficient merchant service. It is true that these merchant vessels were not so efficient as naval vessels would have been. But when our Navy was so weak its efforts had to be reinforced from any source available—and armed merchant vessels proved very much better than nothing.

After there had been time for the building of regular vessels of war the merchant vessels began to perform duties for which they were better suited. One of these was the supply of the blockading squadrons with fuel, water, provisions and supplies. Another was the transport of troops. In the spring of 1862 121,000 men with all their artillery, animals and trains were carried from Washington to Fort Monroe in an incredibly short period. It was only eighteen days from the time the first man embarked until the last man disembarked. Large military expeditions were sent from Northern ports to the North Carolina Sounds, Wilmington, Charleston, Port Royal, Fernandina, Pensacola, Mobile and New Orleans. Other ships, operating under private ownership, ran the sea routes to every part of the world, brought in materials necessary for the prosecution of the war and the support of the civil population, and maintained the country's industrial prosperity.

In the Spanish War some few steamers were converted into auxiliary cruisers. But a far greater number were used to transport troops and supply the naval squadrons. Large military expeditions were transported to Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines. Unfortunately, the very poor condition of our merchant shipping greatly delayed these expeditions and jeopardised their success.

In the World War merchant ships were useful to some degree as auxiliary cruisers. But ever since the advent of the steamer, with its thin sides and vulnerable machinery, the merchant ship's value as a fighting craft has diminished. The World War showed that its primary function was to continue the tasks for which it was built: the transportation of men and material. We all remember its tremendous value in transporting troops and their supplies overseas to the war zones. It was equally as important in the transportation of material necessary for the life of the civilian population. In fact, the Germans estimated that sea transportation was the weakest link in the chain binding together the Allied Powers—and it was against this link that their attack came closest to success. Had their submarines succeeded in cutting sea transportation routes from America to Europe the position of our 2,000,000 soldiers in France is not pleasant to contemplate. Not even the unpreparedness of our Army and Navy was such a menace to our success as our lack of an adequate merchant marine. This is a fact which it would be most unwise for us to forget.

Not only is the merchant shipping itself indispensable in war, but the officers and men who man it and the shipyards which build it are essential to any adequate and economical system of national defense. The personnel must continue to operate it in wartime and the shipyards must convert it to wartime uses. In fact, the term "merchant marine" should include ships, men and yards.

Therefore, in considering the merchant marine as an element of our industrial organization essential to national prosperity—as it certainly is—let us remember that it is equally essential to the security of our country and its interests should war ever be forced upon us.

Still at It.

TO THE SLAM BIDDER

At contract bridge, the game's the thing
To which all hopes of fortune cling,
I like to move by easy jumps
From clubs perhaps to three no trumps,
But off that sporty friend I am
Who grins and says: "I'll bid a slam!"

This flinging hard-earned games away
For premiums that slams will pay
Is like the dog that stopped to look
Upon his shadow in the brook
And dropped the bone he couldn't spare
To grab for one that wasn't there.

If bird in hand is worth the two
Which in the bushes hide from view,
Then he who lets escape the one
To grab for three and end with none,
Betrays a lack of judgment cool
And violates life's soundest rule.

So, partner, let's on this agree,
Content to take the game we'll be
When in our hands a victory lies,
Let us at least in this be wise:
'Tis better certain gains to take
Than go for slams we can not make.

If He Eats Everything Set Before Him, He Seldom Knows What He Is Eating.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN a caller persists in telling you something you already know, only long training in good manners enables you to conceal your boredom. When a book tells you something you already know, you nod in solemn approval and say: "How true that is!"

The ordinary reader gets little profit from his reading because he refuses to venture beyond paths he has trodden smooth.

Reading the work of an author whose opinions agree with his own is pleasing to his vanity, but is no more profitable than talking to himself or nodding approval at his reflection in a mirror.

Yet he will not open his mind to an author who invites him to examine a new idea or challenges him to defend his faith. "Bosh!" he cries, and hurls the book across the room.

Thus he throws away the only advantage he has over the illiterate, for the illiterate also can review the thoughts to which he is accustomed—and do it without straining his eyes.

There are two kinds of readers: those who read to escape boredom and those who read to acquire wisdom.

The first read without hope of remembering—which is well, perhaps, since the stuff they read seldom is worth remembering. If they can forget themselves for an hour, they have their reward.

The others, who read in the hope of "improving their minds," frequently fail of their purpose because they regard their minds as bags to be filled rather than fields to be cultivated.

And the filling they insist upon is one to which they are accustomed, so that their only net gain is approval of their own judgment. Their author merely rocks their minds to sleep.

The writer who gives me the greatest return on my investment of time is a renowned critic with whom I never agree. I read him because he is wrong and because he advocates and defends the wrong so adroitly and plausibly that he awakens in me a spirit of antagonism that sharpens my wits.

If you write to an author and say: "I enjoy your work, though I sometimes disagree with you," never fear the second part of your sentence will displease him. It is the part that compliments him. It tells him that he has made you think.

Thinking readers are the ones an author covets. The others will swallow what agrees with him, but reject an idea that is new despite logic that would convince a clod.

If the writer doesn't make you think, he probably hasn't done much thinking himself—or else his thinking suffices for both, in which case you should stop reading until you learn to think for yourself.

The Free State's Governor.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The people of Maryland heard the fourth inaugural address of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie the other day—the only man in the State's history to be honored with so extended a tenure of the office. Everything he said on this latest occasion could have been said at any of the previous ceremonies, and, in truth, was said. Every principle he enunciated might have been expressed by Thomas Jefferson. For the pattern and content of Mr. Ritchie's Democracy is faithfully and studiously Jeffersonian.

Here is a believer in State's rights, in the dignity and sovereignty and indispensability of local self-government if the American concept of a representative democracy is not to perish in a centralized federal empire.

To this end he has appointed a national fund-raising committee, with Calvin Coolidge and Alfred E. Smith at its head.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is unfortunate that The Post does not require of its editorial page the same standard of accuracy that prevails in its news columns. Not even the newest cub reporter, I believe, would use such assurance in approaching a situation about which he knows nothing as does the writer of your Monday's editorial, "States as Beggars."

A minimum of reportorial enterprise would have answered before it was made your statement that the State of Arkansas has "not lifted a finger" to care for its drought-stricken citizens, and that it is capable of floating a bond issue to provide relief. You would have found, for instance, that only last Thursday the State sold $15,000,000 in 4¾ per cent highway notes, adding them to its already tremendous indebtedness. Although the proceeds, par and a $4,500 premium, are to be used at once, and will provide work for many, the money will be but a drop in the bucket.

Just a slight inclination to learn the facts would have also disclosed the reason why the State can not float more bonds. From a population of 1,800,000, the State in the last fiscal year obtained a revenue of $22,334,721. Exclusive of the $15,000,000 bond issue just referred to, its indebtedness on its progressive highway program is $213,930,353. Educational projects, hospital building, pensions and other matters bring the total debt to $227,839,520, more than ten times the annual income.

These figures can be readily verified at the State auditor's office in Little Rock. Arkansas can and will pay that debt in time. It should be obvious, however, that she can not increase it safely. Hit by the blackest times since reconstruction by reason of an unforeseen and unpreventable drought, she can only hold her own in the matter of State indebtedness.

Her representatives in Congress, faced by that situation, asked of the Federal Government a loan that might keep the people alive until crops can be planted again. That was an honorable request, like that of any business man, temporarily short of cash, applying to his banker. But the cry of "Dole!" went up, and the loan was blocked. Eastern ignorance of the conditions and a natural reticence of the sufferers themselves to stress their extreme need resulted only in insults.

A starving family either eats or it doesn't. There can be no abstract argument there. It must swallow pride if necessary. So, with a loan blocked, the only move left was a plea for charity, however repugnant it might be to the pleaders. Perhaps the Red Cross alone would be adequate to the situation, as it claimed before reversing itself and asking for $10,000,000, but the cold fact is that it has not been adequate yet. It is already late in the winter, and some of this drought aid is going to arrive too late to save lives.

So let The Post spare Arkansas these gratuitous insults. Its editorials are often comic in their partisan blindness, and those dealing with the drought situation would be were they not so tragic. If The Post will not help a starving man, it will find no glory in kicking him in the stomach. Even the priest and the Levite, although they passed by on the other side, did so without comment before the Samaritan came along.

Pedestrians Entitled to Enjoy Parks Without Danger of Death—Pathways Should Be Provided.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I heartily agree with W. T. T. and C. A. Baxton in regard to footpaths or sidewalks along public highways, to insure safety to pedestrians and hikers who take long walks for their health. Rock Creek Park affords many hikers moments of delight, because of the beautiful scenery, but when walking along any of the roads traversed by automobiles it is necessary for the hiker to devote all of his attention to approaching traffic, hence the benefits of the scenery are entirely lost.

If sidewalks were built along all the roads throughout the park it would be a paradise for hikers. There is really not much pleasure in taking a brisk walk when one's mind is centered upon dodging death. Pedestrians like to enjoy the scenery of the parks in and about Washington as much as the motorists like to enjoy it, so the walks should be built to give pedestrians a chance.

Cause and Cure of Motor Car Deaths Might Be Considered, but Subject Not "Dramatic."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The reassembling of the good ladies discussing the Cause and Cure of War is a rather amusing commentary on our lack of humor and proportion.

While they grow hysterical over the casualties of conflict, the papers daily carry a long casualty list of deaths and injuries inflicted by careless drivers of automobiles, which kill more people than war, and spare neither childhood, old age, male or female, strong or weak. Yet nobody is in the least concerned, and no councils are called to save the victims.

When they have quite finished denouncing the military, I suppose the good ladies aforesaid will go home and give another car to their 16-year-old sons.

Why is it that things only seem terrible when they are sufficiently dramatic?

COMMITTEE POSTS GIVEN IN ANNAPOLIS

Montgomery, Prince Georges Members Are Assigned Important Jobs.

BUSY SESSION IS HELD

Special to The Washington Post.

State House, Annapolis, Jan. 20.—Reconvening tonight after a recess since last Wednesday following the inauguration of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, the General Assembly of Maryland gave indication of settling down to business with a rush. President Walter J. Mitchell, of the Senate, and Speaker Francis A. Michel, of the House, had their committee assignments ready and they were read before the respective houses in course of a brief session.

There was decidedly more activity on the Senate side, where a batch of 20 bills was dumped into the legislative hopper. Most of them were sponsored by Senator S. Scott Beck, of Kent County, who was made chairman of the committee on Judicial proceedings.

Nine of the measures affect the general election and registration laws of the State, almost to the extent of marked revision. Several deal with certain revisions of the State's law department.

Sasscer Gets Berth.

As had been foreshadowed, Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer (Democrat), of Prince Georges County, was named to the chairmanship of the Senate finance committee, the most important assignment in that chamber, carrying with it majority floor leadership. Senator Sasscer also was named on the committee on corporations, another important post. His other committee assignments are rules, Federal relations and retrenchment in expenses of State government.

Senator Robert G. Hilton, of Montgomery County, was given no fewer than eight committee berths. He did not land a chairmanship. His assignments are agriculture and labor, contingent expenses of the Senate, elections, Federal relations, finance, inspections, library, pensions, railroads and canals.

Dr. George Edmonds, chairman of the Montgomery County delegation in the house, was designated chairman of the committee on article 3, section 24, of teh constitution, which delegates powers of a grand inquest to the House. Kent Mullikin, chairman of the Prince Georges County delegation, landed the chairmanship of the railroads and canal committee.

Other assignments of the Montgomery and Prince Georges County delegates are:

Currency—Dawson, of Montgomery; Zantziner.

Education—Engle, Edmonds, Dawson.

Elections—Edmonds and Dawson.

Expiring laws—Bell, Prince Georges.

Insolvency—Keys, of Prince Georges

Insurance—Mullikin.

Insolvency—Farrington.

Inspections—Zantziner.

Labor—Marbury.

Militia—Mullikin.

Printed bills and resolutions—Keys (chairman).

Public buildings—Bell.

Rules—Metzerott.

Temperance and regulation of the liquor traffic—Keys.

Ways and means—Edmonds and Metzerott.

The ways and means committee is the most important group in the House, and as forecast, Speaker Michel designated James J. Lindsay, Baltimore County, chairman. As with the finance committee fo the Senate, this chairmanship carries with it majority floor leadership.

Three bills of a local nature made their appearance in the House. One was pretsented by Geys, of Prince Georges. It provides for extending the time of payment of assessments for improvements in the town of Brentwood from 4 to 10 years, and payments to be made in 20 semi-annual installments.

Both Houses adjourned until noon tomorrow.

Cartoonist's Wife Accuses Actress

Mrs. Bairnsfather Links Constance Collier With Her Divorce Suit.

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Divorce proceedings brought by Mrs. Bruce Bairnsfather, wife of the British cartoonist, in which the actress, Constance Collier, is named as corespondent, were heard today in supreme court by Justice Glennon, without a jury.

Neither Bairnsfather nor Miss Collier was in court, but at the outset the cartoonist's counsel withdrew Bairnsfather's denial of unfaithfulness.

Mrs. Anna MacDowd, apartment house superintendent, said that while Mrs. Bairnsfather was in England last May she admitted Miss Collier to the suite by a side door late one night and was told by the actress "not to allow any one in while she was there." Next day, Sunday, she heard the actress and Bairnsfather walking about in the apartment, she testified.

Filibuster Arises On Dry Fund Bill

Moist Members in House Make Moves to Gain Time to Speak.

(Associated Press.)

A frank filibuster developed yesterday in the House against prohibition enforcement appropriations.

Representative Blanton (Democrat), Texas, charged that modificationists conducted it to hold off debate until newspaper headlines were cleared of the Wickersham report.

An attempt by Blanton to get consideration of the $11,000,000 appropriation met instant objection. Clancy drafted a resolution to print 1,000,000 copies of the Wickersham findings for distribution "in those dry States where the newspapers will not print all of it."

Representative Celler (Democrat), New York, offered frequent amendments to gain time to speak. At last Representative Shreve, of Pennsylvania, in charge of the appropriation measure, gave up and told the anti-prohibitionists they could all go home.

96 ARE ARRESTED IN GAMBLING RAIDS

The others were released after questioning by police.

The raid made by the vice squad under Policeman F. O. Brass swooped down upon an establishment on Eleventh street northwest near E street. There were twelve persons arrested, three of whom wre hld on charges of permitting gaming. They are Carl Joseph Simonton, 19, East Capitol street near Third street; Charles H. uinn, 28, D street southeast near Third street, and George Littlefield, 23, Massachusetts avenue southeast near Eighteenth street.

All the persons charged with setting up gaming tables were released on $2,000 bond. Those charged with permitting gaming were freed on $500 bond.

The raids are a continuation of police cleaning activities. Commissioner Crosby has resolved to close the gambling places.

Cites Strong Barricades.

Lieut. Varney said that the establishment on Eighth street near G street was the most securely barricaded house of any such character raided by police. The whole basement of a building was given over to gambling activities and there were in all six armored doors, he said.

Seven men arrested last Saturday in raids were indicted yesterday by the District grand jury on charges of setting up gaming tables.

The indictment is one of the swiftest ever returned in the District, and is said to be the forerunner of many others expected to follow planned police and Federal agent raids. The indictments follow decision of Commissioner Crosby and United States Attorney Leo A. Rover to clean up Washington's gaming and liquor resorts.

Named in Indictments.

Commissioner Crosby and Mr. Rover launched last Saturday's raids on warrants sworn out before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

Those indicted yesterday are: Benjamin Livingston, Samuel T. Piper, Samuel Fricter, Frank J. Claybourne, Dean Johnson Kennedy, Rufus Joyner and David Rones.

Joyner and Rones were named in one indictment in connection with a raid on E street northwest near Twelfth street, while the others were charged in regard to a raid on premises on Eleventh street northwest near E street.

Several Streets Will Be Widened

Norht-South Routes in New Mall Triangle to Be 70 Feet Across.

Most of the streets which run north and south through the Federal building triangle between Pennsylvania avenue and the Mall are to be widened to 70 feet during working out of the Capital beautification programe, it was learned yesterday at the Treasury Department. Of the thoroughfares between Seventh and Fifteenth streets, it is likely that only broad Fourteenth street will not be materially altered.

The Fifteenth street east curbing probably will be brought back in alignment with the curb alongside the west entrance of the Washington Hotel. Plans for Tirteenth street center on the proposed vehicular entrance into the grand plaza. Twelfth street will run into a circle approximately 300 feet in diameter.

The remnant of Eleventh street through the triangle will be eliminated by the structure which will be built to join the north end of the Internal Revenue building. Tenth, Ninth and Seventh streets also will get the 70-foot width. B street is to lose its cobblestones and be transformed into a smooth, straight avenue.

SOVIET PAPERS POKE FUN AT FISH REPORT

Is Impudent, Ridiculous and Based Upon Forgeries, They Declare.

DUMPING CHARGE DENIED

Moscow, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The Soviet press turned shafts of ridicule against the American Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., in long editorials denouncing his recent report to the Congress of the United States on his investigation of Communist activities in that country.

The newspaper Izvestia calls the report a "skyscraper of insolence," and the newspaper Pravda says of it, "of all anti-Soviet documents in the recent past, the Fish report is the most impudent, insolent and ridiculous. It is 90 pages of absurdity based on forged documents."

The report, says Izvestia, indicates the "fright of the bourgeoisie" that the Soviet republic may succeed in its industrialization plan, and that if American economists do not deny its charges, it will indicate that "fear is making the American people blind."

"Development of Soviet industry," the newspaper says, "should make for better economic relations between the United States and the Soviet union. If American capitalists think otherwise we shall find other countries which will regard Soviet purchases from a business viewpoint. There can be no imports without exports, and we can't believe that the United States, the world's most capitalistic country, should be afraid of the growth of socialism in Soviet Russia against which Fish and his committee are howling. If it is afraid, it indicates that the breakdown of capitalism in the United States is closer than the most optimistic ever dreamed."

The newspaper, in denying charges of "dumping" in American markets, asserted that Russia still imports more than she exports. It declares that the charges of the Fish report are a preparation for economic embargo against Russian goods.

"When he asks an investigation of the Soviet timber industry," the editorial continues, "we can tell him to take his feet off the table because he is not at home. We are accustomed to insults from the United States, but we never expected such insolence as this demand that America withhold recognition from Soviet Russia and at the same time investigate economic conditions in the Soviet Union."

Astor to Close Cliveden Estate

Taxation Burden Is Too Heavy, He States While Explaining Act.

Taplow Bucks, England, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Viscount Astor's beautiful estate, Cliveden, in whose gardens some of America's war dead are buried, is to be closed because the burden of taxation weighs too heavily upon the viscount's purse.

He announced today he would close the historic estate because "for every 100 pounds sterling I receive, I have to pay 60 to the state."

Cliveden is one of the loveliest places in Buckinghamshire, a district famous for its beauty. There Lord Astor and his wife, the former Nancy Langhorne, of Virginia, have entertained extensively. The estate lies on the left bank of the Thames.

There was a hospital at Cliveden during the World War and in the sunken Italian garden lie some of the British, American, Canadian and Australian soldiers.

Cannon Lauds Portion Of Wickersham Report

Marlin, Tex., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the board of temperance of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, here for his health, said of the Wickersham report:

"It is impossible to make satisfactory comments without a full report, but from the summary presented I would say the core of the report—that Federal appropriations should be substantially increased and the vigorous, better organized efforts since 1927 should be furthered to give enforcement the greatest practicable efficiency—is eminently sound."

TEACHER MYSTERY PARTIALLY SOLVED

SUSPECT MAKES BOND

Fort Morgan, Colo., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The mystery of the disappearance of Miss Enid Marriott, Wiggins, Colo., school teacher, was partially solved tonight.

Seven bullet holes were discovered in her body today when it was thawed from the tomb of ice in which it was found yesterday in an irrigation canal near Fort Morgan.

The motive for the murder and the person responsible for the crime were still unknown.

Road Worker Released.

Harry E. Moore, northern Colorado road worker, charged with abduction, was released today on bond of $2,000. His preliminary hearing was set for January 30.

Charges of abduction pending against Melvin G. McClanahan, Mitchell, Nebr., farmer, probably will be dropped, Sheriff Rufus Johnson said. McClanahan and Moore were the only persons arrested in connection with school teacher's disappearance, November 16. McClanahan's case was set for February 10.

Gun Ownership Denied.

Authorities said evidence against Moore is wholly circumstantial. Moore denied knowing Miss Marriott and has supplied officers with an exhaustive alibi, portions of which have been checked and found to be substantially correct as verified by witnesses. Moore also claims he never has owned a .38-caliber special revolver, such as officers say was used in the slaying of the young woman.

An inquest has been set for Wednesday morning.

As the woman's arms were folded across the breast when the body was found in the ice, authorities believe she was shot to death after being attacked, her body carried to a hiding place, probably a beet stack, left there for some time and then thrown into the canal. This theory was supported by the autopsy finding that rigor mortis set in before the body reached the water.

Venus at Midday Excites Mexicans

Atmospheric Conditions in Valley Permit Planet to Be Seen.

Mexico City, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Thousands of Mexicans were excited today and a few were made fearful by the appearance of a brilliant white star, which shone brightly in a sunlit sky just before noon.

But the Tacubaya Observatory settled their wild conjectures, announcing that the object seen was the planet Venus. Scientists said the peculiar atmospheric conditions in the valley of Mexico at this time of the year make it possible to see the planet in sunlight.

The frightened remembered the strange weather which preceded the severe earthquakes of last week, and thought the phenomenon was the forerunner of more trouble.

EXPERT ON HELIUM DIES IN NEW YORK

Dr. Richard Bishop Moore Was Former Chemist at Bureau Here.

URGED GAS MONOPOLY

Dr. Richard Bishop Moore, 59, dean of science at Purdue University, and former Government chemist here, died yesterday at Memorial Hospital, in New York, following an illness of several months.

A native of Cincinnati, Dr. Moore received his education in England and France. A great deal of his life was spent in radium research work, and the development of helium for airships. At his suggestion three experimental plants for the production of gas in quantities were erected in Texas. He urged that the helium monopoly of the United States be used for military purposes. He was opposed to exporting the gas.

In 1911 Dr. Moore came to Washington and became a chemist in the United States Bureau of Soils.

Dr. Moore resigned as chief chemist in the Bureau of Mines in 1923 and joined the Dorr Engineering Co., of New York. He is survived by his wife and a 4-year-old daughter.

Commissioners Abolish Hacking License Board

The advisory board created by the District Commissioners to examine applicants for hacking licenses was abolished yesterday by the Commissioners upon an opinion rendered by Corporation Counsel William W. Bride that this jurisdiction resides solely in the hands of the superintendent of licenses.

Applicants have been examined by the board for five years before the legality of the method was questioned by an attorney for a taxi driver whose request for a license was rejected.

Death of Dr. Johnson Is Declared Accident

The death of Dr. Allen Johnson, 60 years old, who was killed Sunday night by an automobile at the intersection of Connecticut and Rhode Island avenues, was an accident, a coroner's jury decided yesterday in the inquest held at the morgue.

Samuel Cheresky, driver of the car which struck Johnson, was absolved of blame. Dr. Johnson, a historian and author of note, died a short time after being struck by the car.

GAS relieved

WHAT most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. Food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention, it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate with no harmful after-effects.

Once you learn this perfect way you'll never deal in any other manner with the headaches, gas, bloating, nausea, dizziness, indigestion, biliousness, &c., due to an over-acid stomach and bowels.

Be sure to get genuine Phillips'. It is always a liquid; never made in tablet form. Look for the name Phillips on the bottle. All drug stores—25c and 50c.

Man Claiming Birth in 1931 Facing Jail in Theft of Wire

Whether Horace Lee Williams, Negro, who claims he was born January 6, 1931, will go to jail or be given a probationary sentence depends on the finding of the probation officer of Police Court.

Williams faced Judge Gus A. Schuldt yesterday on a charge of petit larceny in connection with the alleged theft of lead wire. He pleaded not guilty.

Judge Schuldt asked the man how old he was. "I don't know," said Williams.

"You don't know?" the judge asked.

"No, sir!"

"When were you born?"

"January 6, 1931."

Judge Schuldt asked the probation officer to look into the case. However, Williams' age was entered on the court records as 39.

A fact you should not overlook

MORE red-cells in the blood! Good health and resistance to infection and disease, depend on that. If a lowered red-cell count is allowed to continue, ANEMIA often results.

S.S.S. should be your safeguard. A hundred years of experience has proved its usefulness in building red-cells in the blood. Take it before meals. Millions of people have found it the easiest and surest way to restore their red-blood-cells. The appetite picks up, the whole body is strengthened, invigorated! Get S.S.S.—take it and possess a wonderful power of new life and vitality. Ask for the large size. At all drug stores. © S.S.S. Co.

How to recognize a low blood count

Blood is Life! You cannot count your own red-blood-cells—that is technical! But you should know that they are the "ships" that sail in the blood and carry nourishment to all parts of the body. Also, they remove impurities from the tissues.

You can recognize a lowered count by the way you look and feel—such as body weakness, lack of appetite, underweight, paleness, sallow complexion, boils and pimples. They may indicate that you need S.S.S.

S.S.S.—the great blood tonic—stimulates the blood-building organs to supply the necessary red-cells. If your vitality and clear skin are slipping away from you, try S.S.S.

(Right) Anemic red-blood-cells—only 60 per cent of normal strength—they lack the power to resist infection and disease or to rebuild flesh.

There's a lot you can do about the Weather

In spite of the wise-cracks as to nobody doing anything about the weather—there's something you can and should do.

For the good of your car, do something about the weather—and do it quickly! Don't be too sure of yourself because everything's been all right so far. The cold months still ahead will produce many a spell of way-below-freezing weather—but cold days and zero nights will have no terrors for the car that's properly prepared.

Oil and Grease CAN'T do the Job Alone

Do these things, too—or have a good mechanic do them for you.

1. Check cooling system thoroughly and keep radiator filled with proper anti-freeze preparation.
2. Have your carburetor adjusted for colder weather conditions.
3. Check and clean fuel lines and make sure oil is reaching all points that it should.
4. Check ignition system throughout—and have charging rate set up to meet increased drain on battery during short winter days.
5. Have battery inspected—and be sure it is kept in first class condition during the time you'll put it to its hardest service.
6. Have brakes checked, tightened and equalized to avoid skidding on frozen streets and icy roads.

Here's what you should do---

See that you have the proper grade of Amoco Motor Oil in your crankcase. At any garage or filling station where Amoco Motor Oil is sold a chart is available showing just the proper grade of oil for your particular car. Have your oil changed now—and don't make your starter battle against an unfair handicap on freezing days.

Change to the right grade of

Amoco Transmission Oil

Gears should shift as easily in winter as they do in summer. There is no need for two-handed pulling if you have the right lubrication in transmission and differential. Using summer grades of oil and grease means loss of power—loss of acceleration—and puts a severe strain on every part of your motor and transmission.

Give a thought to

Springs—Body—Chassis

Chilly weather always brings out squeaks that keep modestly quiet in the summer-time. When you have your motor and transmission properly lubricated for winter driving—have your springs sprayed and spring shackles and other chassis points greased. And then you're all set to laugh at the weather-man!

Envoy Forbes Soon to Move Into Embassy

Abode for Ambassador in Tokyo Has Cost Million.

The United States Ambassador to Japan, Mr. W. Cameron Forbes, will give up his headquarters at the Imperial Hotel in Tokyo this month to become established at the spacious new million-dollar embassy, which is nearing completion.

Among the beautiful and commodious buildings in Tokyo, the embassy will contain rooms for the office and quarters for the ambassador and his staff.

It is located on the site of the old embassy, destroyed in the earthquake and fire of 1923. When Ambassador Forbes went to Japan to assume his duties about a year ago, it was thought the completion of the embassy would be a matter of only a few weeks. However, construction was delayed by the enlargement of the embassy grounds and by delay in Washington in the approval of architectural plans.

Additional land was acquired adjoining the original plot of ground, extending the embassy compound. For the last seven years the embassy has been located in the Imperial Hotel and office buildings. It was there that the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. William R. Castle, jr., lived when the former was serving as ambassador pro tem, before Mr. Forbes was appointed to the post.

Chapins Plan To Make Home In Georgetown

Old Residence Is Being Done Over by State Official.

Combining a bit of foreign atmosphere with the colonial charm so characteristic of old Georgetown, Mr. Vincent Chapin, of the Department of State, and Mrs. Chapin are having "done over" the house at 3318 O street, which they have taken from Miss Genevieve Hendricks. Mr. and Mrs. Chapin are now at the Galleon, but will take possession of the house in a week or two.

Returning from Prague in October, Mr. Chapin rejoined Mrs. Chapin in Massachusetts, where she had been for a short time with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aldus Chapin Higgins, in Worcester. Mrs. Chapin had preceded her husband last summer from Prague, where he has been serving as United States consul, having been appointed in May. During their stay abroad Mr. and Mrs. Chapin spent some time in London, where the former was in attendance at the London Naval Conference.

The definite return of the Chapins to Washington marks a happy chapter for a large circle of friends who enjoyed their stay here two years ago. Mrs. Chapin was formerly Miss Elizabeth Higgins and a popular member of the resort colonies on the North Shore.

Mrs. Joseph A. Massie, of Winchester, Va., is at the Shoreham Hotel.

The decorations and favors were carried out for Valentine. Miss Mabel Rosenberger, chairman and toastmistress, introduced the Rev. Lawrence Kilkenny and Miss Dorothy Crosby, moderator and president, respectively, of the Mackin Club, who welcomed the members and guests. The Rev. Leo J. Fealy, of Berwyn, Md., founder of the club, also had a message for those present. Miss Grace Sprucebank gave a dramatic reading. The banquet was followed by dancing.

Mrs. Virginia White Speel was hostess at luncheon yesterday in the crystal room of the Willard.

Divorce More Strict By Hungary's Law

Budapest, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Hungary is tightening up its divorce laws more than ever in 1931.

A law of 1930 provided for a "public attorney for the protection of matrimony" at divorce trials, to try to reconcile the two parties.

But in addition to this, the law effective in 1931 requires that legal proof must be produced as to the cause of a divorce—even when both parties declare their intention to be divorced. In "scandalous" cases the sentence is to be delivered behind closed doors.

Capt. Frank E. Chinn was fined $5 for directing No. 5 Engine Company to Mount St. Albans, Cathedral grounds, when he counted wrong an alarm from Connecticut avenue and Legation street. The fine was light because it was the first time that Capt. Chinn had been cited before the Trial Board in 24 years.

Pasedena, Calif., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Twice a year the giant 100-inch lens of the Mt. Wilson astronomical study room gets its face cleaned. It is no small task and requires a new makeup of nitrate of silver. Special machinery is required to lift the 4½-ton mirror from the telescope tube.

Scientist Finds Ant Has Tumor on Brain

Dr. Staeger observed an ant in his home running madly around in circles, a symptom similar to that of human beings affected with brain disease.

The physician killed the ant and performed a postmortem examination under the microscope. He says he found the ant's trouble was a tumor on the brain.

Jungle Massacre Of Whites Told

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Bearing fresh details of the massacre of three Americans, including a baby girl, by Indians in Brazil, the Rev. William E. Hasker, missionary, has returned from South America because of a nervous breakdown.

The Rev. Arthur F. Tylee, of Worcester, Mass., and Miss Mildred Kratz, of Wheaton, Ill., missionaries of the Inland South American Missionary Union, and his daughter, Marion, were killed along with three Brazilians, last November at Juruena. Mrs. Tylee, of Memphis, was wounded.

The Rev. Hasker, a resident of Philadelphia, was taken to Bellevue Hospital for observation. The tragedy was the result of the jealousy of native witch doctors, it was said. The Rev. Hasker had spent nearly five years in the jungles.

What Today Means to You

"AQUARIUS."

IF January 21st is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 9 a. m., from noon to 2 p. m. and from 4:30 p. m. to 7 p. m. The adverse periods are from 10:30 a. m. to 11:30 a. m., and from 8 p. m. to 10 p. m.

January 21st astrological indications point to a condition of passivity and lethargy. Routine work should be essayed. There is a remote possibility of some unguarded remark acting as a boomerang.

Children born on this January 21 will lack all material ambition, and will always seek that which will give happiness, rather than possessions or position. They will be sound at heart and extremely kind. They will be satisfied with little, provided they are sure of sunshine, and can escape storms.

If you were born on January 21 you are both meticulous and punctilious. In fact, your friends look upon you as a "fusser." You make everything as difficult as you can and worry those around you as much as you can. You always fear the worst, and discount the best, and get ready for everything an hour too soon. As a natural result, your business efforts are cramped, and your life is more of a dirge than a song of praise. It is well to be insured against misfortune, but always imagining only the dire things that can happen is too heavy a premium to pay.

Your work is always conscientiously done, and you rely more on accuracy than on speed. Notwithstanding the moroseness of your disposition, you are not, at heart, a bad sort, and will always go a long way to help those who appeal to you for advice or assistance. You, too, are constant, and faithful in your attachments, and take all your obligations very seriously. They, in your mind, figure as duties, never as pleasures. You never build castles in the air, and your imagination is tinged with pessimism, rather than colored with optimism.

In later years, the signs indicate that you will acquire a philosophy of life, free from lugubriousness, and only at that time will you really begin to enjoy life and realize what it holds in store for those who bask in its sunshine, as compared with those who seek only its shadows.

Successful people born January 21:

1—John C. Fremont—Explorer and soldier.

Jane Corbett INTERPRETS the MODE

Paris, Jan. 20.

NOW we really feminine women can go in for sportswear * * * was a day when you just were a sportswear type or you weren't. And being a hundred and one per cent feminine (yeah, it's the one per cent that gives me all the trouble!) I never looked half myself in sports togs before.

But now, I and all my contoured sisters can be as boyish as the rest for our winter sports, our tennis and golf, our riding, safe in the surity of reverting to type and ruffles and clinging lines for the evening. The sportswear type of woman is no longer 'rangy' at night, ill at ease in her evening things, either. A kindly fashion that always looks out for the bettering of womankind, optically at least, has definitely made up its mind to let us be right for the time and the place. Winter sportswear for instance, is just as masculine as it can be * * * sweaters, berets, shoes and socks, mittens and scarfs * * * hard to tell the men from the women. The less active ladies, to be sure, wear outfits in knitted materials with skirts full and short hiding the trousers, which stop at the knees. But style magazines to the contrary, the real sports devotee still wears her long jodphors, and still looks like her brother, even a little more so.

In the evening, she is transformed into an elegante, showing off the most ravishing ensembles in a blare of jazz and lights and * * * er, lights, and showing them off no less well than her fragile sisters who warm their toesies before the open fireplace while she skis and skates. In fact, the added sparkle to her eye and cheek make these fragile ones determine to fare forth on the morrow for gobs of snow and ozone * * * yeah, even the hundred and one per cent female who writes this from St. Moritz!

* * * *

Nif this hotel didn't have screens, I would surely freeze at night, what with my aversion to heated bedrooms, and my liking for open windows. Because you just can't let the pine-scented breezes blow in on your marcel and last week's facial, now can you? That's another reason why I know you will like the leaflet you can have this week for a stamped self-addressed envelope * * * telling you how to make good looking screens out of Chinese wallpaper remnants for a song * * * and oh yes, for the letters mailed to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the directions for making them.

There's a shop on the Avenue des Champs Elysees (Shons-a-lee-see) that specializes in a certain type of ultra feminine frock. Their evening gowns come too close to the negligee, in my estimation, gobbed all over with spiderweb-like lace and wee rosebuds. Which simply reminds me that there is a pitfall to the long evening gown, that of being too great a cotnrast between trim daytime wear and evening wear elegance. If one is not very careful, one is ont 'chic in evening wear, nor even elegant * * * one is 'boudoir-ish' and you know, you just can't do that. It's in the accessories, the corseting and the carriage of the individual that one must overcome this atmosphere.

Tailleur (tie-yoor)—tailor made.
Tapisserie (tah-pee-seu-ree) tapestry.

* * * *

That was unusual * * * the long, quite to the ankles gown of Lenief creation in black crepe de chine * * * so I sketched it for you today. The little bow was ermine * * * the line gracious, and it was a gown for that moment * * * you know, Sunday night if you will, or a very formal afternoon, or at home in the evening?

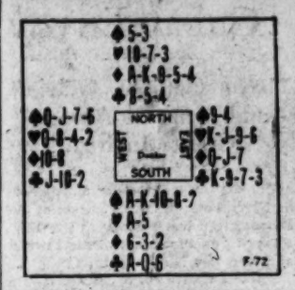
WORK ON BRIDGE



PICKING THE RIGHT SUIT TO ESTABLISH.

With the above hand the Auction Bridge bidding would be: South one Spade, North two Diamonds, and South two No Trumps; East and West would not bid.

At Contract (East and West similarly passing), South would bid two Spades and his 6½ tricks, of which 4½ are high-card tricks; North would call three Diamonds, and South three No Trumps.

When the hand was played at Contract, West (because of South's first bid) did not open with a Spade but led a Heart. South won the trick and, appreciating that his 5 Spades were somewhat stronger than North's 5 Diamonds, put North in with a Diamond and led a Spade toward South. South finessed and that let in West; the adversaries then ran their remaining Hearts. After that a Club was won by South, and the Spades continued; but West won another Spade trick and Declarer failed to make his contract as the adversaries won two Spades and three Hearts.

THE CORRECT PLAY.

The reason why Declarer failed was that he did not attempt to establish his eight-card Diamond suit rather than his seven-card Spade suit. After winning the first Heart he should have led a Diamond and passed the trick. The adversaries in that case would have won three Heart tricks in addition to their one Diamond, but would not have made any more; South would have discarded a Club and three Spades on the Hearts and Diamonds, and the Club finesse would have been good in the end.

The original lead of the Heart Deuce showed Declarer that the adversaries could win only three Hearts, so he could lose one Diamond and still make game.

Work's Radio Bridge Game

Presenting the ninth Radio Bridge Game of the season from Station WRC yesterday afternoon, Milton C. Work introduced as the exhibition players Mrs. Helen M. Hubbard, of San Francisco; Mrs. John E. Fontaine, of Cincinnati; Mrs. Virginia Tubbs, of Chicago, and F. E. Bruelheide, of New York City.

Mrs. Hubbard, as Dealer, South, held Spades, A, K, J; Hearts, A, K, Q, J, 10; Diamonds, A; Clubs, K, Q, 10, 3. Mr. Bruelheide, as West, had Spades, Q, 8, 4; Hearts, 8, 3, 2; Diamonds, J, 10, 9, 5, 4; Clubs, 9, 5. Mrs. Fontaine, in the North, had Spades, 6, 5, 2; Hearts, 7, 6; Diamonds, Q, 8, 7, 3; Clubs, A, J, 4, 2. Mrs. Tubbs, as East, held Spades, 10, 9, 7, 3; Hearts, 9, 5, 4; Diamonds, K, 6, 2; Clubs, 8, 7, 6.

Mrs. Hubbard, the Dealer, with a hand of overpowering strength, bid only one Heart. While she was prepared to bid Hearts to almost any height, there was no need to preempt with so strong a hand. She selected Hearts in preference to No Trump because of the honor score, and also because the game was somewhat surer at that declaration. Mr. Bruelheide, West, passed. Mrs. Fontaine, North, having less than normal support for her partner's Hearts, and some slight assistance for No Trump, considered game more probable at the latter call; so she bid one No Trump, risking the chance that her partner would have the Spades stopped. Mrs. Tubbs, East, passed, and, of course, Mrs. Hubbard, South, went to two Hearts, which held the bid.

Lack of Diamonds.

To the first trick, Mr. Bruelheide, West, led the Jack of Diamonds. From North's hand, which became Dummy, Mrs. Hubbard, Declarer, played the Trey; East played the 6; and Declarer the Ace. Not wishing to take the most remote chance of having an adverse trump win, Declarer led out the Ace, King, and Queen of Hearts. West and East followed suit, and on the third lead Dummy discarded the Deuce of Spades.

The trumps being exhausted except for two remaining in the closed hand, Declarer then played to make up an extra entry in Dummy. To trick five, therefore, she led the King of Clubs, playing the Deuce from Dummy, both West and East following suit. She continued by leading the Queen of Clubs, overtaking with Dummy's Ace. She knew she would not lose a Club even if West happened to hold four; and if the adverse Clubs were divided normally, 3-2, this play would give her an extra entry in Dummy. When East also followed to Clubs, she was assured she could get into the Dummy hand twice.

To trick seven Dummy led the 7 of Diamonds. Mrs. Tubbs, East, did not cover, as she was sure her partner had led conventionally from Jack-10-9. Mrs. Tubbs expected Declarer to trump this Diamond trick; and with another Club entry in Dummy, it was very important that she keep the winning Diamond in her own hand. Declarer did trump, with the Jack of Hearts; Mr. Bruelheide, West, followed with the 4 of Diamonds.

Ten of Clubs Led.

To trick eight Declarer led the 10 of Clubs; West discarded the 5 of Diamonds; Dummy won with the Jack of Clubs, and East followed suit with the 8. Mrs. Hubbard then led the 8 of Diamonds from the Dummy hand. Mrs. Tubbs, East, could hold up no longer; she was obliged to play the King. Declarer ruffed with her last trump, the 10, and West followed suit with the 9 of Diamonds. With her Grand Slam assured, Mrs. Hubbard put Dummy in by leading the Trey of Clubs from closed hand, and overtaking with Dummy's 4. Then by leading Dummy's good Queen of Diamonds, Declarer got a discard of the Jack of Spades from closed hand, thus avoiding the risk of a Spade finesse. A lead of a Spade from Dummy cashed Declarer's Ace and King of Spades, giving her a Grand Slam with a score of 56 for tricks, 100 for honors and 100 for the Slam. At Progressive or Duplicate, she also would have scored 125 for game in one hand.

The bidding of this hand called for no particular comment by Mr. Work; but he did compliment Mrs. Hubbard, the Declarer, very highly upon the way in which she handled the play. When the Jack of Diamonds was led to the first trick, Declarer deduced that the lead was not made from King-Jack-10, as it is only in the most unusual hands that such a lead would be made against a suit contract; therefore Mrs. Hubbard planned her play upon the basis that the original lead by Mr. Bruelheide, West, was from Jack-10-9, and that the King was held by Mrs. Tubbs, in the East.

Small Slam Assured.

With the Ace and Jack of Clubs in Dummy, a Small Slam was assured at a glance; and to the ordinary player, it would seem that a Grand Slam depended upon whether the finesse of the Jack of Spades would be successful. Mrs. Hubbard, however, was keen enough to perceive that there was a possibility she could avoid the risk of a finesse. If Mr. Bruelheide had led from a five-card Diamond suit, a trick could be made with Dummy's Queen of Diamonds, as Mrs. Tubbs would have to play the King on the third round. So Mrs. Hubbard manipulated her Clubs most skillfully to produce three Dummy entries with an Ace-Jack-4-2, although the closed hand held King-Queen-10-3; still holding the Spade finesse in reserve in case the Diamonds did not work out as she hoped.

For bidding this hand at Contract, Mr. Work said that South could count her hand as worth five Heart tricks, two Spade tricks, one Diamond, and almost certainly at least two Club tricks. Under these circumstances she would not wish to play with a Heart contract of less than four. Bidding under the Common Sense system, South would start with two Clubs—an artificial bid to announce a desire to bid again and to find out whether North had at least an Ace and a King. North might possibly have the Ace of Clubs and King of Diamonds.

Answer From North.

North would answer the two Clubs with two Diamonds, which would show that she did not hold the Ace and King; had she held them, North would have answered with two No Trumps. After North's two Diamonds, South would bid four Hearts, to show that her two-Club bid was not made to give North a choice between two declarations, but to show a hand worth fully ten tricks. After which, North, having a sure trick in the Ace of Clubs and probably another trick either in the Queen of Diamonds or the Jack of Clubs, would bid five Clubs or five Hearts to indicate slam help. South could be sure that North's five Clubs was an Ace shower, and that North had the Ace of Clubs, and probably some other assistance. This apparently would assure South four Club tricks; and she would bid six Hearts, not risking the Grand Slam bid.

The reason why South would not try to show the exact character of her holding by bidding four Hearts on the first round is that an original bid of four in these days is considered to be a peremptory bid, and if it were made initially, North would not jump and a slam would not be bid for.

In closing his talk, Mr Work gave these hands for Problems 15 and 16 in his Handicap Test Series: South—Spades, A, Q, 10; Hearts, Q, J; Diamonds, A, Q, 10, 7, 6; Clubs, A, J, 7. North—Spades, 7, 4, 3; Hearts, 9, 5, 2; Diamonds, J, 9, 5; Clubs, K, Q, 10, 4.

South, the Declarer, is playing a No Trump contract. To trick one, West leads the 5 of Spades, East playing the Jack of Spades.

Question 15—What Spade should Declarer play from the South hand on trick one?

Question 16—Which suit should be led to trick two?

Mrs. Heinl and Marine Band on Radio Tonight

Helen Corbin Heinl, Washington pianist, will be the soloist with the United States Marine Band at 8 o'clock tonight in a Nation-wide Columbia broadcast through Station WMAL.

In the final rehearsals yesterday, because of the acoustics Capt. Taylor Branson ordered all available flags to be put up in the Marine Barracks auditorium in order to absorb some of the sound. This hall has been especially treated by the Bureau of Standards for broadcasting the Marine Band concerts.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

CANTERBURY BELLS.

FOR the last few years the Canterbury bells have been irresistible. The campanula family of hardy garden plants can not have too much said in their favor, and the plants are not hard to raise. Should you have a rock garden you will want some of the dwarf varieties, but for general planting in beds and borders, the Canterbury bells are the kind you will want.

Each color is so lovely that I have been unable to decide which I like the best, the white, the pink or the blue.

My advice is always to have a few of each color, since they never clash with their neighbors or with each other. The plants are just the thing for the back rows of a border—because healthy ones attain a height of three feet and, being compact growers, form a background of green for the lower growers of the front rows.

Always plant your Canterbury bells as early in the spring as possible. Early in the season stake them with thick yet strong canes to prevent all damage from winds.

Never leave the work of staking or tying until the shoots have become top-heavy and begin to droop, or have become broken in high winds or dashing rains. For, you know, damage done by storms to neglected plants often cripples them for the entire season.

Always avoid tying your Canterbury bells in shapeless bundles. It is much more natural to have them laced up neatly, or a stake given to each strong stem and placed in the ground at an angle which will keep the plant open and thus permit light and air to penetrate.

Keep the surface of the soil around your Canterbury bells frequently stirred up during the entire season. This will aerate the soil and encourage growth, and at the same time keep down the weeds.

Should you be wondering where you could grow some Canterbury bells, do make them, if possible, nextdoor neighbors to some early phlox, as these varieties combine beautifully. The Canterbury bells have a long flowering season and produce their blossoms in profusion.

What Should She Do?

Lucy asks today, "What difference does it make if you do have to wear the same clothes for ten years if you have love?" Lucy, as you may have guessed, has never yet worn the same clothes for ten years. She is merely contemplating doing so. And the prospect seems to please her. But would the actuality be equally thrilling? We will grant, for the sake of the argument if for no better reason, that love is all the poets claim for it. But can it make last year's hem line and last year's hat really satisfy?

Listen to Lucy and if you are one of the girls who gave up everything for love spelled out in caps, write and tell the child what's what. Personally we find privation depressing and it is our experience that most people do. Would Lucy be different? What should she do?

Dear Frances McDonald—Is this infatuation? It is so called by my friends but that is because any love that comes before 20 is called puppy love while any that comes after that magic age is expected to result in a wedding with all the trimmings. Well, I fell in love when I was 14 and was piled into a convent school as a result. But that socalled puppy love left scars. In fact, I think it was far more real than most of the love people marry for. However, as a result of what I went through, I avoided all thought of men from then on. However, I became quite popular and have had many chances to marry since.

Only one person has ever appealed to me since. It happened two years ago. And mother and all the interested by-standers assured me that he is worlds beneath our notice and that if I marry him I will regret it all my life. This presumably because I am under 20. He is poor. Which is another of the unforgivable crimes. I could marry someone in our own sacred set and be bored to death. But should I? And if so just why? I have gone to all the affairs, dances, shows and all the rest with the boys who meant nothing to me. Must I go on? I could marry some proper young person with all the earmarks of success and live our stupid life always doing and saying the right thing, living in the usual style to which I have become accustomed. Should I do so? Or should I choose love? After all what do all the other things matter compared to love? If we have that and understanding we will be happy. What does it matter if we do have to wear the same clothes for 10 years. LUCY.

So now if anyone would like to tell Lucy what it feels like to marry at 20 and appear in the same hat at 30 we will supply the space for the broadcast.

Personally, we believe that Lucy should see a little more of life before settling down with anyone, and have a lot more hats before picking one to last 10 years. Are we just cold-hearted?

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

The family name "Bond" (also spelled "Bonde") is found in the earliest English documents. It is of Scandinavian origin, its ultimate source being the Old Norse "bondi," meaning "farmer." In Anglo-Saxon times this word took on the extended meaning of "householder." The rather common old personal name "Bonda" appears to have had that secondary meaning. In Middle English times "Bonda" became "Bonde," and by a further extension in meaning it came to signify a peasant in a servile condition. A Walter le Bonde and a Robert le Bonde are mentioned in the Hundred Rolls.

The family name "Husband" has come into English from the Scandinavian. Its ultimate source is the Old Norse "husbondi," which means "the master of a house." The variation "Younghusband" is still found in England and on this continent. A certain Walter le Husebund is mentioned in the Hundred Rolls, and a Roger le Yonghusband is mentioned in an English document of the year 1300.

The family name "Shute" is derived from the Old English "scytta," and its full significance is "he who lives at the narrow street." However, it is believed that in a few cases "Shute" was first given as a nickname to expert archers. Many families which bear this name have received it because of a former residence in the village of Shute in Devonshire. It appears to be first recorded in the thirteenth century. Common early spellings are "Shoete" and "Sheote."

The family name "Holzapfel" appears to be first recorded in a German document of the year 1210. It means "the crabapple" or "the wild apple," and indicates that the persons who were first so called lived near such trees.

2 cups milk.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
2-3 cup broken almon macaroons.

Blend sugar, flour and salt. Add eggs and milk. Cook until creamy (in double boiler). Add rest of ingredients. Pour into baked pie shell and cover with almond meringue.

Almond Meringue.

3 tablespoons sugar.
1-3 cup shredded almonds.

Beat egg whites. Add sugar and beat until creamy. Spread over filling. Sprinkle with almonds. Bake 12 minutes in slow oven.

To set the color in black wash material, dissolve 1 cup of salt in a gallon of cold water and soak the article for half an hour. Hang up on the line and let drip dry.

To remove strong game flavor in wild duck, which is not liked by some, soak duck overnight in a quart of water to which 4 tablespoons of vinegar have been added.

The Life Story of Gen. Wood

By HERMANN HAGEDORN

XVIII—The Kaiser's Army.

Wave upon wave they come across the wide, level reaches of green pasture. Breaker upon breaker, majestic, irresistible, the ultimate word in force, not to be flung back by arguments or any King Canute's outstretched scepter. The infantry in goose step; stiff, unhuman legs, outstretched; stiff, unhuman hands turned toward their sovereign; not men at all, but a machine, the sublimation of discipline, creatures born not of women, but of a laboratory, soulless, appalling. Banners, gorgeous, imperial; bands, bands, bands, automatons also, blaring forth the hymns of the laboratory. Now the cavalry—cuirassiers in breastplate and helmet dazzling in the sunlight, white dragoons, blue uhlans, black and scarlet hussars. Forty thousand troops * * * wave upon wave, wave upon wave, wave upon wave sweeping past William the Second, King of Prussia and German Emperor, in this year of our Lord, 1902.

Lord Roberts, in England's traditional scarlet, turns in his saddle toward the American officer in drab at his side. "General Wood, what is going to happen if this machine is turned loose on us? It may be some day."

Wave upon wave, wave upon wave, wave upon wave * * * The Emperor exalted. * * * My army! Are they not splendid? * * *

Gen. Wood is there with Gen. Henry C. Corbin, adjutant general of the United States Army and Gen. S. B. M. Young, his old chief in the Guasimas fight, invited by the Emperor to attend the Kaisermanover. Wood is celebrating the end of the Cuban adventure with a vacation, the first in five years, traveling with his family, seeing Europe for the first time. McCoy is with him as aid and they have been prancing over Europe like boys let out of school.

It is a dazzling audience which has come together to view the Kaiser's pageant. English officers, Italian, French, Russian, Austrian, German and the princes of the Empire in gorgeous uniforms glittering.

The Emperor rides up, followed by the Empress and her retinue. There are introductions. The Emperor is skillful in finding the right word for each guest. It is old time with Lord Roberts, the Boer War with French, the Philippines with Young, Cuba with Wood.

"Come over to the Empress," says the Kaiser to McCoy.

Praises Empress's Smile.

"And I saluted the most kindly-looking, the most simpatica empress I've met yet," McCoy wrote his mother. "I got a charming smile and backed away.

"My horse I could hardly get away—I think he cast his eyes on the flowers in the Kaiserin's bonnet—while the general couldn't get his horse near their carriage, so he bowed and said, 'My horse seems embarrassed, Your Majesty,' and that was his interview."

The next morning the Emperor startled Wood's German aid by himself telephoning to invite the American and British officers to a Sunday supper in the family.

"Count Eulenberg, the Chamberlain, led the party through the famous shell-room into a small billiard room where the Kaiser was striding about alone, uniformed as a British Field Marshal," McCoy wrote. "He wears his clothes well, and always looks very well groomed, especially his well known Ward Lord moustachio. * * *

"The Empress looked her part as she entered, followed by three ladies-in-waiting, and the Emperor did his. He is a wonderful stage manager. Meeting the Kaiserin, he kissed her hand most formally and gracefully. * * * His bearing toward the Empress, and his family life, appeals most strongly. He is the only sovereign who gives precedence to his consort. * * *

"It was just such a dinner as might be served in any great house at home and a very jolly, infirmal one."

Emperor at His Best.

After the coffee, the ladies retire, and the emperor brings out his maps of the maneuver-country. "He is at his best, talking soldier," McCoy wrote, "and full of enthusiasm and interest."

Wood asked him whether he and his military advisers are concerned about the new French .75s. The emperor admits a certain apprehension. It introduces into warfare an entirely new factor—indirect fire and no recoil. He is not yet convinced, however, that so delicate a mechanism will be able to stand the wear and tear of war.

The maneuvers take place in the rolling country around Frankfurt on the Oder, east of Berlin. The emperor is in his element.

"He looked his part again, uniformed as a red hussar and mounted upon a splendid white Arab," McCoy wrote home. "There he stood upon a little knoll just as Napoleon used to stand with his brilliant staff, the heralds and imperial standard, like a picture of 1806. And we in our plain khaki had a little smile to ourselves as we looked at the emperor, his officers and army, in one way at least as far behind the times as the picture he made. Right here, though, you make a sad mistake if you judge the kaiser and his army by this picture.

"We had hardly arrived when he rode over and said 'Good morning! How is the khaki brigade this fine day?' We remained with him until he gave the signal to end for the day."

Battle Is Resumed.

Early the next morning the battle is resumed. The hillocks and woods bristle with infantry. The red army, attacking, is well handled and, as the blue seeks to outflank it, presses in weakened center. The day is sunny and crystal clear.

"Dear kaiser was so pleased with everything," McCoy wrote, "that he ordered cessation of hostilities while he dismounted to smoke and talk over the day's doings, and the talk was mostly with the chief. Everybody else withdrew and they had a heart to heart talk."

"It was quite evident," Wood wrote in his diary, September 10, "that he wanted this repeated to the President, although he did not say so in so many words.

"He laid especial stress on the desirability that most friendly relations be maintained by England, Germany and America, saying they were the three greatest Christian powers, with more or less similar ideas, and that it would be a very great misfortune for them to have any falling out; the result would only be to the advantage of less progressive nations and the disadvantage of the better type of civilization."

Denies Wanting War.

"The people who say that Germany wants war," the kaiser goes on, "are absolutely in error." He speaks of the wonderful economic progress of Germany, her rapidly increasing wealth, the necessity of binding the new empire together by stronger bands than at present exist, before becoming involved in further international differences.

"He emphasized the attitude of France, on the one hand, and of Russia, on the other, and pointed out the fact that the German empire was a very new creation. * * * not yet thoroughly shaken down and settled into place."

There is only one matter on which all Germany is united. "That," says the emperor with great emphasis, "that is the German navy." "The navy represents the whole empire and no particular part of it, and the navy is mine. I have made it."

The emperor spoke of the Germans in America. How were they getting along?

"Your majesty, am I to give you a conventional answer or a direct answer, an entirely frank answer? May I do this?"

"You may."

"We look upon our German people, the newcomers, as among the most dependable of our people."

The emperor does not quite like that and the color rises in his face. "Do you mean to say they have forgotten the Fatherland?"

Proud of Homeland.

"No, sir, they have not forgotten the Fatherland, but like those of us of English descent, they admire the literature and the music of the Fatherland and they are proud of the traditions of their homeland, but they have taken the oath of allegiance to the United States."

The emperor straightened up. "If they have taken the oath of allegiance they no longer belong to us. They are yours."

"Then, in order to be a little more agreeable," the Wood diary continued, "I stated that the loyalty to the government which the German learned at home made him an especially desirable citizen in America; that he was thrifty, hard working and dependable."

The emperor asks about Roosevelt; what sort of man he is. Wood tells him that the President and the emperor are much alike.

"The emperor laughed and said he had heard this before. He then went on to ask questions a little more in detail as to Mr. Roosevelt's peculiarities. I told him that, like himself, he was interested in everything going on, and wound up by saying that he, the President, had directed me to say to him, unofficially, if I had an opportunity, that nothing would please him better than a chance to see the German army. Thereupon, the emperor said, with a great deal of enthusiasm, "I should like to have him over here and hope I can sometime."

Impressions of Army Asked.

The Emperor asked Wood his impression of the German army.

"I told him very frankly that I thought our ideas of the use of cavalry were, in view of modern arms, much more practicable than the European idea. In other words, the cavalry ought to be thoroughly instructed in fighting on foot and that we should not expect to use them altogether on horseback."

"The impression the Emperor made upon me was an extremely favorable one," Wood wrote in his diary September 10. "He spoke with an air of sincerity of his desire for peace and certainly his arguments were logical and conclusive as to the desirability of it from the German standpoint. Germany is making such tremendous progress now that anything which interrupts it would be a misfortune. He expressed himself as very anxious to visit America. . . . He speaks English without an accent, speaks rapidly and correctly."

The Emperor, as McCoy had written home, was a great stage manager. The show he put on was immense, in color, in action, in romance, in sheer human interest; having all the traditional glamour of war and none of the reality's impertinent intrusions of hardship and pain, horror and death. But Lord Roberts, just home from a bitter victory over the Boers, looked on it all with cold eyes and an apprehensive heart. Wood was thrown much with him. The American officers and the British felt drawn toward each other. They spoke at least approximately, the same language, and seemed to each other in that environment equally alien to both, almost countrymen.

British Officers Puzzling.

The attitude of the British officers toward the German war machine puzzled Wood and McCoy. In Berlin one evening after their return from the maneuvers they found the Englishmen up in arms because the emperor had conferred decorations upon them, and they did not want to be under obligations. They were looking backward, and they were looking forward; backward to the famous telegram which the emperor had sent to President Kruger of the South African Republic encouraging him in his defiance of England; forward to a struggle between England and Germany, which, they told the Americans, was inevitable.

Wood and his young aid were amazed. To them a European war appeared unthinkable. Yet these men—hard-headed, unromantic realists, who had had enough war in South Africa to satisfy them for the rest of their lives, were all talking of the coming war. They were frank, and they were certain. A new world opened to Wood's eyes; and when Roberts said to him that he was going back home to devote his life to establishing in England some rational economic system of national defense, the seed fell on soil which the emperor himself had prepared.

Tomorrow's installment of the Life Story of Gen. Leonard Wood deals with his visit in 1902 to King Edward, the fight of the general's enemies at home to prevent his confirmation as brigadier general, and the beginning of his work as governor of Moro Province, in the Philippines.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

With the baby lying across her lap, the mother pours out the cold-liver oil in a spoon held in her right hand. With her left hand she opens the baby's mouth by pressing the cheeks together with her thumb and fingers. The oil may then be poured little by little into the baby's mouth. If his mouth is not held open until the oil entirely disappears, baby will expel what is left. The mother must not let him know by her facial expression that she does not like the smell of the oil, because that will teach the baby not to like it. She must take for granted that he will like it even if she does not. The cod-liver oil may be followed by orange juice, but it is better not to try to disguise the taste of the oil by adding anything to it. If it is given regularly, the baby will accept it and like it as he does other foods. As he grows older he can be given the oil sitting up.

Keep a special towel or two for protecting baby's clothes, as cod-liver oil leaves a stain; or, better, give the oil when the baby is undressed for the bath and again when he is undressed for bed.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

RICHARD HALE, playing this week at the National in "Green Grow the Lilacs," is a Washington boy—a former Central High School dramatic star. After leaving the old home town he spent several seasons in the operatic field and then went into dramatics. His sister is Ruth Hale, wife of Heyward Broun, the columnist, and he has a brother, Shelton Hale, well known as a man-about-town.

* * * *

Miss Helen Westley, who plays a leading role in "Green Grow the Lilacs," is one of the founders of the Theater Guild. Continuously active in its productions, Washington has seen her act only several times, because the particular plays in which she was featured came this way after she had gone into other productions. Thus, two years ago she played an important role in Shaw's comedy, "The Apple Cart," but had gone into another play when the Shavian vehicle rolled onto the local stage.

* * * *

On next Monday night Washington will get the grand opening of "America's Sweetheart," a new musical comedy by Fields, Rogers and Hart—a triumvirate that has given the country some of the best jingling tunes and lyrics turned out of Tin Pan Alley in the past decade. "America's Sweetheart" comes to town under the chaperonage of Laurence Schwab and Frank Mandel, young producers whose past successes number into the twenties, amongst them being "Good News," "Follow Through," "Desert Song" and "New Moon." Hitherto, all the Schwab and Mandel productions played the Shubert houses, but this season the young firm has switched over to the Erlanger circuit, which means the opening of "America's Sweetheart" takes place in the National. The new musical features Jack Whiting, Gus Shy and Jeanne Aubert. It is having its "try-out" this week in Pittsburgh.

* * * *

Whereas, the Belasco Theater now has an entire troupe of players, putting over Thomas Kilpatrick's production, "In the Best of Families," next week the boards of the Lafayette Square playhouse will be trod by a single performer—Miss Ruth Draper. She comes back to Washington after an absence of several years—five or more—in which time she has so perfected her art of monology, that critics wherever she appears do not hesitate to call her a genius. Certainly, no one person in the American theater is able to hold audiences like this artist who, nowadays, puts on one piece that approaches the domain of a complete play. This is called "Three Women and Mr. Clifford." It comes mighty near being a classic, played in three scenes with Miss Draper effecting the characterization of the three women involved in the life of a business man. She begins a week's engagement next Monday night, and Mr. Stoddard Taylor looks for record crowds.

* * * *

Mrs. Fiske, who played here earlier in the season in repertoire, is now regaling the residents of the Gold Coast in Chicago with her rollicking comedy, "Ladies of the Jury." The play is housed in the new Blackstone Theater, and on the first night the old theatergoers who used to foregather at Hooley's Theater, a relic of World's Fair days, not only came out in force, but agreed that Mrs. Fiske is still the leading comedienne in the American theater.

* * * *

John Golden, whose life and works have just been published by the Samuel French Co. under the title, "Stage Struck John Golden," with a foreword by Irving Cobb and tributes by Ring Lardner and George Ade, has sailed for Cuba—to get away from it all. Before going, however, he signed contracts with Rachel Crothers for the production of her new play, "As Husbands Go," which may have a Washington opening in March.

* * * *

Jimmy Hughes, treasurer of the Belasco Theater, is having a sojourn for himself out at Mount Alto, the Veterans' Bureau Diagnosis Center on Wisconsin avenue. Mr. Hughes, who helped Uncle Sam make the world safe for democracy, is not in such serious shape that he can not have visitors—so the theater boys are getting up parties for him during his stay at the Mount.

* * * *

Tonight at the Jewish Community Center Cantor Josef Rosenblatt is making his first Washington appearance—and the local play reviewers are taking the night off to hear some real singing. The music editors will be there, too.

* * * *

Miss Francine Larrimore, here last week with "Storm Song," is still suffering from the illness that caused the play to be withdrawn from the boards of the National a week ago tonight. Her doctors, hope, however, to have her ready for an opening in the Flatbush Theater, Brooklyn, next Monday. After that "Storm Song" will spend another week on the Subway Circuit and then onto Broadway, maybe!

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood.—Movietown goins on:

It isn't the money but the urge to be doing something creative that brought Mae Murray back to the movies after nearly a year and a half away from them.

ERNEST TORRENCE

Playing a role with Lowell Sherman in "Bachelor Apartment," which he also is directing, Miss Murray says that in three years she made almost a half million dollars in personal appearances in all parts of the country and that her income from oil property and other investments is several thousand a week.

Art for art's sake, in other words.

Bela Lugosi, who has played only villainous parts, and extraordinarily heavy ones, since he came to the movies, was for many years Austria's foremost romantic actor. He began playing Shakespearean roles when he was 16, and was called the Don Juan of the stage in his country when he became older.

Gets Religion.

While Edmund Breese was attending a football game, a call came to his home from a studio asking for his immediate presence.

Mrs. Breese called the football stadium and asked if her husband could be paged. She was told that only ministers or doctors could be called to the phone.

A few minutes later she called back for the "Rev." Edmund Breese—and got him.

Film Brothers.

Until I was asked how many brothers were in the movies, it never occurred to me that there are nearly a dozen more or less well-known pairs and trios. The better-known are:

Wallace and Noah Beery, heavies; Eddie and Harry Gribbon, comedians, whose friends can hardly tell them apart; William and Cecil de Mille, directors; Buddy and Frank Rogers, the latter a newcomer; Victor, Leopold and Arthur McLaglen, and Charlie and Sidney Chaplin.

Then there are Edwin Carewe and Finis Fox; the Barrymores, John and Lionel, the latter a director; Matt, Owen and Tom Moore, all seen less frequently now than they used to be; Ernest and David Torrence, character players, and Ramon Novarro and one of his several brothers, a sound technician.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

BEYOND REACH.

One of the most frequent mistakes made by parents is that of offering rewards for standards of behavior and achievement which are quite beyond their children's capabilities.

Take, for instance, the very common practice of offering a child some coveted privilege or possession if he passes certain school subjects in which he has failed in the past.

School failure is seldom due chiefly to lack of effort. By simply offering a reward we are asking the child to play for high stakes in a game in which the odds are very much against him. His failure is fairly certain and will only serve further to discourage him.

If, on the other hand, everything is done to make the task set before him well within his reach, we may properly offer a reward for success.

With very young children mothers frequently resort to the use of rewards in the hope of curing thumb sucking, enuresis and similar difficulties. They do not realize that these matters are largely dependent upon past habit-training, for which they and not the children are responsible. Such habits can not be broken by a mere act of will. True, the child's will to cooperate is necessary, but by itself it is not enough.

When a mother is doing her share to develop good habits in place of bad ones, she can frequently stir her child to greater effort with the promise of a reward. Often, however, she makes the mistake of expecting complete success all at once. She demands a perfect record over a period of an entire week or month, forgetting that for a small child such sudden, complete and continuous self-control is impossible.

It would be much more efficacious to offer a reward for even partial success over much shorter periods of time.

Federal Official Lauds Advertising

McKelvie Asserts It Begets Stability and Insures Laborer His Job.

"Advertising begets stability in business and insures the laborer his job," Samuel R. McKelvie, grain representative on the Federal Farm Board, yesterday told the Advertising Club of Washington at a luncheon meeting at the National Press Club.

Society profits most from advertising, Mr. McKelvie said, explaining how "desire creates demand and demand is met by production." Labor, he said, represents approximately 75 per cent of the cost of all production.

"The outstanding industrial position of the country is only a counterpart of the social well-being of our country," the speaker said. "Indeed, there is no industrial progress worth while unless society is the beneficiary of it. Joy in honest labor results only when the laborer knows that the necessities and comforts of life are his."

OIL PRORATION PLAN RAPPED BY SINCLAIR

INCREASE IS ADVOCATED

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Harry F. Sinclair, chairman of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation, today said that proration as applied to the Oklahoma City pool "is a travesty on conservation."

Mr. Sinclair said he had been so constantly asked about his attitude regarding conservation that it seemed desirable to state his position "in terms that no one can misunderstand."

"From the beginning of the discussion of this subject," said the statement, "I have said, and now repeat, that in common with all reasonable men I am in favor of conservation of our natural resources.

"I am just as strongly of the opinion that proration as practiced in Oklahoma is not a measure of conservation. It is not even common sense and is working a great injustice to the people of the State.

"As applied to the Oklahoma City pool, it is a travesty on conservation. The practice there enforced, of limiting allowable production to a minute per cent of imaginary 'potential,' is resulting in ruin of the wells and the loss of a large part or all of the oil and gas. Raising the allowable production is not only a measure of justice to the owners of wells; it is necessary to save as much as possible of the oil for the benefit of the community as a whole.

"It is for this reason that I am in favor of the application for an increase of the percentage allowed to be produced in Oklahoma City. If an increase to 10 per cent is not sufficient to save the field, then it will have to be further increased."

"If more oil is produced than the market will absorb," the statement declared, "it will go where it has always gone—to storage. That would result in true conservation. It would result in activity, employment for thousands and help to bring about a return of prosperity.

Proration in Oklahoma, Mr. Sinclair said, had reduced production from 670,000 barrels in January, 1930, to about 440,000 barrels in January, 1931.

LANGDON'S LAWYER TO FIGHT RUM COUNT

Whelan's Motion to Claim Illegal Entry; Limerick Subpenas Issued.

MILKMAN WILL APPEAR

An attack on the indictment returned yesterday against Patrolman Robert F. Langdon by the grand jury for violating the Jones act, will be started today in the District Supreme Court where Harry T. Whelan will move that the evidence against his client be suppressed.

Langdon, who is being held with three others in connection with the murder of Beulah Limerick on December 31, was indicted on three counts after police found parts of a still while searching his home for evidence in the Limerick murder.

The various counts charged him with possession of a still, possession of property designed for the manufacture of liquor, and possession of whisky.

Reed Loses Gold.

Whelan, in a motion today, will contend that the police made an illegal entry into the Langdon home, that Mrs. Langdon could not give the officers permission to search legally the Langdon home, that the evidence was seized without a search warrant, and that the police exceeded the permission given by Langdon to recover guns he had in the house.

If the motion is granted, it will automatically quash the indictment pending against the officer.

James A. O'Shea, counsel for Vernon Limerick, Richard Reed and William E. Paddy, complained to authorities yesterday that a $5 gold piece and several small bills had been removed from Reed's wallet, which was in a pair of trousers in the Limerick home since the murder.

Police have been on guard at the Limerick home since the night that the murder was discovered. None has been permitted to enter who is not a policeman. Inspector Albert J. Headley is investigating the complaint.

Hearing on Monday.

Assistant United States Attorney Julien I. Richards yesterday ordered subpenas issued to ten police officers who have worked on the murder. They will be heard by the grand jury on Monday. Mr. Richards says he called these witnesses for the first day because he wished to lay the groundwork of the Government case against the four prisoners. J. Lyman Greene, a Casualty Hospital interne, is among the witnesses to be heard Monday.

Capt. Edward J. Kelly yesterday sent to Mr. Richards a list of 60 witnesses who will be heard by the grand jury. Included in this list is the name of Donald E. Boyer, a milkman, who said he heard two shots near the Limerick home between 4 a. m. and 4:30 a. m. on the morning of the murder.

Louis Calvert, an employe of Bland's lunch room, on Fourteenth street, near East Capitol street northeast, to whom Boyer said he told the story, was yesterday questioned by detectives and he could not recall that Boyer had mentioned the incident to him.

Governor on Oath To Fight No Duels

New South Carolina Executive Sworn In With Usual Exactions.

Columbia, S. C., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Ibra C. Blackwood, 54 years old, attorney from Spartanburg, today took the oath of office that made him the seventieth governor of South Carolina.

In a steady, calm voice, the new executive repeated after Chief Justice Eugene S. Blease, of the State Supreme Court, the promise to uphold the laws of the State and not to engage in dueling. The last part of the oath is a reminder of the days prior to 1881, when South Carolinians were wont to defend their honor in personal combat.

Gov. Blackwood succeeds John G. Richards, who defeated him four years ago in the race for the office. Both, like all other South Carolina officials, are Democrats. The new governor urged a program of strict economy.

American Labor Body Persists in Beer Aim

Miami, Jan. 20 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Taking the recommendations of a majority of the Wickersham Commission that the eighteenth amendment be modified as sustaining their demand that the Volstead act be amended to permit the brewing and salf of real beer, leaders of the American Federation of Labor tonight announced that they will persist in the campaign launched here last week.

"We will proceed with our program," said William Green, president of the Federation, declining to express a detailed opinion of the commission's findings pending an opportunity to examine the reports carefully.

Police Asked to Find Woman.

Police have been asked to search for Mrs. Jane Gannon, 66 years old. She was released from Gallinger Hospital January 13 and has not been seen since. The report was made by her daughter, Mrs. Jeanette M. Jones, 203 Oakmont avenue, Seat Pleasant, Md.

Neuritis!

There is no pain like Neuritis. There is nothing quite so torturing—so utterly unbearable as Neuritis. It robs life of all joy—and makes people desperate. But Neuritis is not hopeless—it responds to proper treatment. A well-known physician has written us, "Have been drinking Mountain Valley Water for six weeks for Neuritis, and am feeling better than I have for two years." Mountain Valley Mineral Water from Hot Springs, Arkansas, brings relief in Neuritis because it gets at the root of the trouble—it tends to neutralize the acids which are irritating the nerves and retards the further accumulation of these acids by aiding healthy, normal elimination through the kidneys. Renew your hope—learn how Nature can help you. Phone for our booklet today. Met. 1062.

FARM WOMAN BENEFITED

After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lickdale, Pa.—"Before I was married, my mother and sister and I did all the farming work on a 64-acre farm for eleven years. I married a farmer and now in addition to my housework and the care of my children I help him with the outside work on our farm. After my last child was born, I began to suffer as many women do. Finally our family doctor told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did and now I am a new woman and I know that good health is better than riches."—Mrs. Clyde I. HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

RADIUM INJECTIONS.

THE use of solutions of radium by injection into veins as well as hypodermically and by mouth has been on trial for many years. This use of the agent, called medical use, to distinguish it from the use of it to destroy tumors (called surgical use), was begun in Austria soon after large beds of the element were discovered in Bohemia. One factor that has served to restrain this internal use is the power of the element to destroy the life of the body cells.

Until we knew the limits of its destructive power, and the rate at which the body would eliminate it, everybody was timid about using it internally, and experimentation to discover whether it could aid in the cure of human diseases did not make much headway. That impediment has now been removed. The physiologists have proved the rate at which radium is absorbed, the tissues in the body in which it is stored, the rate at which it is eliminated, the variation in that rate at different times, the amount left behind for a long time. From these facts they can and have adduced how much can be given internally with safety.

The stage is set for experimentation and clinical trial to determine its value as a remedy. In other words, the physiologist has told us how much can be given with safety, at what dose it becomes unsafe. He has also told us something of the dose required to cause physiologic effects; in other words, the dose which must be taken to do good in the diseases for which it may be found suitable, or has been so found. He tells us how much should be given to maintain a certain amount in the tissues.

About 98 per cent of the amount taken internally is eliminated during the first week. The amount left after this first rapid elimination is fixed in the tissues and is eliminated very slowly. The amount that stays for a long time is too small to be harmful. It is possible to fix on a dose that will keep the radium of the tissues at about a certain level.

FIND UNDERLYING CAUSE.

Mrs. S. M. S. writes: Even in coldest weather my night clothes and pillow are drenched, and great beads of sweat are over face, neck and body. This seems to be worse at night than during day. My socks are always dripping wet from perspiration. My health is good. What can be done to correct these sweat baths?

REPLY.

Profuse sweating of itself does no particular harm. But back of it must lie some condition which calls for attention. Has the possibility of diabetes been investigated?

If there is an underlying cause in your case find it. Otherwise, let 'er go.

STOCKS' RISE AIDED BY SHORT COVERING

ADVANCES AVERAGE 2½

The advance, averaging about 2½ points, was regarded more as the result of the market's own technical condition than of outside developments, for the Wickersham report contained little that could be translated into stock market activity and the general easing of interest rates was of greater benefit to bonds than to equities.

Professional traders spent considerable time in scanning digests of the prohibition survey and impartially bid up beverage as well as alcohol stocks. Trading proceeded quietly, although the upward trend received a boost in the last hour, when the day's best prices were made. Sales totaled 1,329,200 shares, about 200,000 more than yesterday.

The belief of President Farrell, of U. S. Steel, that the bottom of the depression had been reached a month ago, together with reports that ingot production had expanded in the last week, may have contributed to the foundation on which the rally was built. But the small measure of success that has attended recent bearish operations and the fact that the list in the last week had reacted to the lows of the year without a sizable correction appeared to provide most of the impetus.

U. S. Steel Up 2 Points.

U. S. and Bethlehem steels rallied 2 points net, while National Biscuit, Loew's, Electric Power & Light, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American & Foreign Power, Sears-Roebuck, United Corporation, North American, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio and General Electric were up 1 to 1½ at the close. American Telephone, Johns-Manville and Westinghouse gained 3; New York Central, 4; American Can, 2¾; Auburn Auto, 5½, and Allied Chemical, 5¾.

Coca Cola and National Distilleries advanced 3. U. S. Industrial Alcohol 2 and Canada Dry 1. News that the Missouri-Kansas-Texas directorate had not considered the common dividend at today's meeting and that action would not be taken until the February session made the stock erratic. It closed slightly lower.

Reductions in the time loans, bankers' bills, and commercial paper told a story of money accumulations here. Banks are putting funds into long term investments, as the weekly condition statement again disclosed, but perhaps the flow into bonds is not so vigorous as some think it might be. There are indications that the central banking authorities are doing and plan to do everything to help the strengthening bond market, and Wall street is discussing the possibility of a lower reserve rediscount rate here.

Steel Mill Output Rises.

Freight loadings for the week ended January 10 show a gain of 98,869 cars over the previous week, which is about an average seasonal rise, although more extensive improvement would be welcome. Preliminary estimates of the steel corporation's activity place the past week's increase at 1 per cent, or nearly 48 per cent of capacity. An advance of roughly the same extent is anticipated for the industry as a whole.

Corn was subject to fairly wide fluctuations before and after publication of the Wickersham document. Futures ended the day about a cent lower, reflecting in part an easy Buenos Aires market and larger primary receipts. July wheat sagged nearly a cent, but other months were steadier. Cotton gained 3 to 13 points.

Sterling exchange remained just below the theoretical gold import point, but nothing was heard concerning shipments from London. Cables were unchanged at $4.85 5-16. Further improvement in the Canadian dollar was a feature of other foreign rates. Shanghai firmer with the slightly better tone in bar silver.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Bearish aspects of the Wickersham prohibition report tumbled grains downward today, especially corn. The fact that the report omitted any statement looking to changes which would indicate immediate enlargement of grains for beverage manufacture led to selling by traders whose hopes had been overthrown. Corn, which would be chiefly affected by resumption of beer making, underwent a maximum drop of 1¾ cents a bushel.

Corn closed unsettled, ⅞ to 1¼ cents lower, wheat at 1 cent decline to ⅛ advance, oats ¼ to ½ cent down, and provisions unchanged to 10 cents up.

Although grains came back a little from extreme low points, the majority of traders could see little basis for encouragement that the Wickersham report would soon bring about any increased outlet for farm products. The day's top prices on corn, though, were reached just after the first announcement of the contents of the report. This announcement said the Wickersham Commission had recommended a conditional proposal for revision of the eighteenth amendment to give Congress more flexible control of liquor traffic and allow Congress to return to the States the question of prohibition.

The transient bulge of ½ cent in corn was quickly followed, however, by rapid breaks in all grains except old-crop wheat supported by Government-sponsored agencies. Hurried study of details of the Wickersham report appeared to indicate that even if carried out the suggested legal revision of prohibition enactments would be too slow a process to form at present an uplifting market influence. Comment was general that the breaks in grains would have been sharper had not traders been expecting the report to be daily against prohibition modification and had acted accordingly beforehand.

Preceding the news regarding the Wickersham report, wheat and oats as well as corn had declined owing largely to downturns in wheat quotations at Liverpool, where Argentine wheat offerings were reported urgent and demand poor. Assertions also that Kansas reports implied much smaller use of wheat as feed than had been looked for attracted notice, but a counterbalance was talk that domestic millers with export flour orders planned to borrow old-crop wheat from the Grain Stabilization Corporation and later replace the borrowings by new-crop wheat.

CUT IN TIME MONEY RATES HELPS BONDS

SEASONED RAIL LIST UP

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—New strength was fused into the bond market, which has been stagnant the past few days, by the reduction of time money rates, and other cuts in the price of credit today.

Liberty bonds reached new high prices for the current rise, domestic investment issues were buoyant while foreign loans displayed some irregularity.

The dullness of yesterday's session proved only temporary and the day's turnover expanded. Seasoned railroad bonds in the class legal for savings banks profited most from the improved inquiry and gains ranged from large fractions to more than a point, with some attaining new high prices for the last two years.

Cleveland and Pittsburgh 3½s advanced 6 points to a new high and Cincinnati Union Terminal 4½s, issued last year, climbed to a new peak at 105¾, up 1¼ on the day. Other especially strong issues included St. Paul 4¾s F, Northwestern 4½s, Delaware & Hudson 4s, Erie 5s, Hocking Valley 4½s, at a new high; Louisville & Nashville 4½s, Morris & Essex 5s, New York Central 4½s, Pennsylvania 5s and Union Pacific 4s.

Canadian National Railway bonds were again soft, easing further in response to the prospective sale of $70,000,000 4½s. Three syndicates instead of two as in the past have been invited to submit bids tomorrow. The bonds are guaranteed by the Canadian Government.

Investment obligations of communications and electric companies were firm. American Telephone bonds moved within a fraction of the 1930 highs. High grade industrials joined the advance, and stock privilege issues made some headway, as stocks moved upward.

Offerings tomorrow will include $1,500,000 City of Grand Rapids, Mich., 4s. A syndicate headed by the First National Bank has purchased $3,000,000 Province of Alberta 4 per cent treasury bills. The Southern California Gas Co. is planning to sell $12,500,000 4½s.

WASHINGTON: WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 21, 1931. 17

Indians Give Joe Sewell Release

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Joe Sewell, who came up from the minor leagues to help the Cleveland Indians win a world baseball championship in 1920 today was given his unconditional release after fifteen other major league clubs had waived on his services.

Sewell was cast in one of the most difficult roles ever given a rookie when called from New Orleans in the Southern Association late in 1920 to replace Ray Chapman, one of the best shortstops in the game, who was killed by a pitched ball thrown by Carl Mays, of the New York Yankees.

Sewell was on his way to a major league record for durability when his continuous string of games was broke at 1,102 by an attack of influenza last spring. He was ambitious to beat Everett Scott's string of 1,307 straight games.

Speed and Batting Eye Deserting Him.

Joe, whose brother Luke has been catching for the Indians for nearly as many seasons, never got going after that illness. His speed of foot and keenness of eye, which had made him a sure .300 plus hitter and top-notch infielder, were deserting him. This was the reason given by the club for making him a free agent.

Sewell was notified by letter to his home in Tuscaloosa, Ala., of the club's action. It was not known whether he would seek a berth with a minor league club or retire.

Chicago and Boston Bid for Services.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cleveland, Jan. 20.—Joe Sewell has be neunconditionally released by the Indians, but the keenest pair of eyes in baseball will not pass out of the major leagues. It has been reliably reported that the Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox will bid for the services of th eformer Cleveland star.

Chicago and Boston both need batting strength, and Sewell, although he has slowed up in the field and on the bases, still packs a hefty wallop at the plate.

Sewell won distinction during his long career with Cleveland as the hardest man in the American League to strike out. One season he missed the third strike only three times, while the next season only four pitchers managed to fool him in that respect.

Boston has a young team and could use a veteran like Sewell to bolster the infield. The Red Sox also could use his timely bingles in the pinches.

Indians Deem Salary Too Great.

Chicago has been trying to get a third baseman since Willie Kamm began to fade, and Sewell is still good enough to keep many a rookie on the bench. He has been drawing one of the largest salaries paid to any infielder in the big leagues, $13,500 for the last few seasons, and it was this large salary that caused the Indians to release him.

Sewel played shortstop until the middle of the 1929 season, when he was shifted to third. He played at the "hot corner" most of last season, but late in the campaign he was benched to give two Cleveland rookies a chance to perform during a regular game.

Hadley Sig snTerms With Bonus Clause

President Clark Griffith, of the Nationals, seems to be getting a signed contract a day from his players—or maybe, he is holding back on the fans. Yesterday he announced receipt of the signed papers from Pitcher Irving Hadley, from his home in Lynn, Mass.

As stated in The Post recently, Griffith hopes to develop Hadley into a big winner during the coming season, and, as an incentive, is giving him a fair basic salary with a bonus clause, which will let the young pitcher more than double it, provided he has an exceptional year. For the 1930 season, Hadley was offered $500 for every game he won over the 15 mark.

"Dark Horses" Lead In 3-Cushion Tourney

Chicago, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The "dark horse" faction in the current world's three-cushion billiard championship gained a two-tone edge over the seeded stars today by splitting even in the second and third matches of the tournament.

Arthur Thurnblad, of Chicago, Northern sectional champion, upset the veteran Tiff Denton, of Kansas City, former title holder, 50 to 40, in 67 innings, while Allen Hall, of Chicago, one of the ranking favorites and seeded stars, crushed D. J. Jacobs, of St. Louis, 50 to 22, in 44 innings. Thurnblad's victory gave the "dark horses" the edge, as Frank Scoville, of Buffalo, a rank outsider, upset Johnny Lahton, the defending champion, 50 to 35, in 55 innings in the inaugural match last night.

Chicago Stadium Acts To Block Title Battle

Chicago, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Directors of the Chicago Stadium Corporation made moves today to block the efforts of the Madison Square Garden Corporation of Illinois to promote the heavyweight championship fight between Max Schmeling and Young Stribling in Chicago.

The directors appeared before the Illinois State Athletic Commission. Guy Peters, attorney representing the Stadium, set forth the belief that the commission was favoring the New York organization in its attempt to bring the fight here, and that Madison Square Garden, although it holds a charter in this State, has no right to promote. Any attempt to do so, Attorney Peters said, would be met by legal action.

George Getz, a member of the commission, said that if the Chicago Stadium failed to land the match, he would encourage the Madison Square interests to bring the fight to Chicago.

Schmeling to Referee Wrestling Match Here

The eleven weeks' exhibition tour of Max Schmeling through the South, Midwest and Southwest will include an engagement in Washington, where he is scheduled to referee a wrestling match to be promoted by Joe Turner at the Auditorium on February 13.

The holder of the world's heavyweight championship has mapped out an extensive itinerary which provides for his tour to start in Baltimore on February 10. In most of the cities, Schmeling will box exhibitions with sparring partners in connunction with regularly scheduled fight shows.

Schmeling was a visitor in Washington a year ago before winning the championship on a foul by Jack Sharkey last summer. He visited the White House and was the guest of the German Ambassador.

U. S.-Owned Jumper Wins at Leicester

Leicester, Eng., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—J. H. Whitney's Grand National candidate, Easter Hero, won the Wigston steeplechase over a 2-mile course today from eight other jumpers. The American sportsman's big timber topper, the short-priced favorite, won as he pleased. He had a margin of twelve lengths over the second horse, F. W. Keen's Brave May, which was far ahead of the rest of the field. Lord Stalbridge's Trump Card was third. Easter Hero carried top weight of 169 pounds.

The race had a value of £100 sterling ($500). Easter Hero paid 1 to 3 to win, Brave May was priced 4 to 1 and Trump Card 20 to 1.

24 BRITISH PROS NAMED.

London, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Twenty-four British professionals were named today by the selection committee of the Professional Golfers Association on a list from which will be selected the team to defend the Ryder Cup against the United States next summer.

Extra Periods Bring G. W. Victory

GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY'S Basket Ball Team eked out a 51-42 victory over the invading Randolph-Macon quintet, of Ashland, Va., last night in a game that was decided only after two thrill-packed extra periods had been tacked onto a throbbing finish of the regulation game.

Defeat stared George Washington in the face with a minute left to play and Randolph Macon leading by two points as a result of a basket by King, but Zahn staved off disaster with a field goal that tied the score and sent the contest into the first extra period.

The game took on an even more ominous aspect for George Washington in the first overtime period when Woods, the 6-foot-3 center of the invaders put them ahead twice on pretty field goals but Conner's ability from the foul line tied the score on one occasion and Burgess' cleverness in the same respect deadlocked it again. But Woods would not be suppressed and he sent Randolph Macon into teh lead again with a two-pointer with 40 seconds to play only to see Capt. Jack Conner rescue the ball game with a field goal that tied the score again.

With the game forced into another extra period, George Washington assumed command. Zahn put the Colonials ahead with a field goal, but Woods countered with another two-pointer to deadlock matters. Then competition dropped out of the contest. In quick succession, Burgess, Fenlon and Chambers contributed field goals that sent the Colonials too far in the van to be overtaken as the minutes ebbed away.

Soccer Body Names Cup-Tie Officials

At a meeting of the Washington and Southeaster Soccer Association held last night to make plans for Sunday's cup-tie final between Washington-Concord and Marlboro next Sunday, Leo Leckey was named as referee, with the linesmen duties being assigned to Ben Kail and Ed Kruse.

These two crack teams will meet on the Silver Spring Giants' Field Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The Washington Post trophy will be awarded the winner.

Rogers, D. C., Director Of Power Boat Body

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—After a heated discussion and with the vote divided, the annual meeting of the National Outboard Association today voted to retain the plan to have all sanctions for racing issued only through mediums of the American Power Boat Association or the Mississippi Valley Power Boat Association.

The petition of the outboard association's racing commission to be awarded such power was turned down.

Seven new directors, who will act as the nominating committee and name officers for the association to vote on tomorrow were elected. They included A. T. Griffiths, Peoria, Ill., Ardiel, William A. Rogers, Washington, D. C., George Eddy, Manistee, Mich., and W. B. Boyer, Milwaukee, Wis.

Day, 15-Year-Old Star, Enters Quarterfinals

Miami, Fla., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Placing long chip shots dead to the pin, Win Day, Chicago youth, today advanced to the quarter final play of the Glen Curtiss Amateur Trophy golf tournament by defeating Harcourt Brice, Miami, 3 and 2. The 15-year-old champion of the Miami midwinter amateur tourney took a lead on the return trip of today's eighteen hole match. Brice has two legs on the three-victory trophy.

Other first flight results:

Maj. M. R. Smith, Kansas City (medalist), won, 2 and 1, from C. S. Bazley, Akron, Ohio; A. P. Lawton, Providence, R. I., defeated G. A. Brown, Akron, Ohio, 3 and 2; J. D. Ryerson, Copperstown, N. I.; Ken Berry, Miami, won 1 up, in nineteen holes, from Earl Christensen, Miami; G. C. Kirkland, Miami, won, 6 and 4, from Henry Smith, Schenectady, N. Y.

LAST LEAGUE SURRENDERS TO DRAFT

International Agrees to Majors' Terms, Ending Strife.

By HERBERT W. BARKER.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Baseball's major internal problem, the universal draft question, has been settled by the unconditional surrender of the minor leagues.

Bereft of the support of its class AA brethren, the American Association and the Pacific Coast League, the International League today announced its capitulation to the majors' demands.

All Recalcitrants Now in Fold.

Thus all five of the so-called non-draft leagues have agreed to accept the universal draft by which the majors gain the right to draft or "select" any player in any minor league at a fixed price.

The American Association was the first of the big minors to wave the "white flag." By a vote of 5 to 2, Louisville and Kansas City dissenting and Minneapolis abstaining from voting the association voted recently to abandon its fight against the joint demands of the National and American leagues.

A few days later the Pacific Coast League, by a majority vote, also decided to accept the majors' demands without reservations. The class A Western and class B Three-Eye leagues, smaller circuits, also had agreed to terms.

This left the International League standing alone in the fight, and directors of this Eastern circuit evidently felt that the odds were too great.

International Last to Accept Draft.

At Baltimore today Charles Knapp, president of the league, announced that a telegraphic poll of the club owners had developed a majority in favor of accepting the draft. Although he declined to reveal how the individual clubs had voted, he did say that the decision was not unanimous.

Montreal and Buffalo have been two of the league's most bitter opponents of the draft and may have held out against the majors' demands to the end.

Bill Mehlhorn's 66 Manila Course Mark

Manila, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—"Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, American professional, broke the Manila Golf Club course record today with a 66 for eighteen holes, 2 under par, while playing in a foursome. The former record was 67.

Board Takes No Action On Heeney 'Short Count'

New York, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The New York State Athletic Commission today discussed the battle of the "short count" in which Max Baer, of California, received a technical knockout decision over Tom Heeney after a mix-up in counting at Madison Square Garden, but took no action.

Although taking no official action, the commission explained that the referee has supreme power in the ring and Jack Dempsey, the third man in the ring, could have waived the two fighters back together. In an effort to avoid any future trouble over a fighter falling out of the ring, the commission ordered that all rings be extended 2½ feet from the ropes.

Hurley to Receive Cup Won by Poloists Today

With the Argentina Ambassador, Dr. Don Manuel E. Malbren, and members of his staff present, Secretary of War Hurley this morning at 10:30 o'clock will receive, as custodian, the cup recently won by a team representing the United States Army in a polo series with the Argentine Army team.

Col. Willis V. Morris, captain of the American victors, will tender the cup to Mr. Hurley. At the same time, Col. Morris also will give the Secretary a cup emblematic of the junior championship of the United States, which was won by the Army team last year.

Special to The Washington Post.

Southpaw Strikeout King Scouted by Giant Pilot.

By G. D. (MONITOR) DALEY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19 (N.Y.W.N.S.). Whenever there was a severe windstorm in the South Atlantic, or "Sally" League, country last summer, the farm folk, if observing clear skies and no sign of rain, were accustomed to remark, "They must have Jim Mooney pitching up there at Charlotte again."

For they had noted that whenever Jim Mooney pitched, the terrific paddling the air received at the Charlotte ball yard, through the futile swinging of the bats of the opposition, produced a disturbance which was felt from the Dan to the Yadkin.

Strange Phenomena Puzzles Weather Bureau.

The United States Weather Bureau was considerably upset by the strange phenomena for some time, until the heaving wind currents were trailed to their source. And then Jim Mooney's 185 strike-outs came in for their just due.

For John J. McGraw, none other, traveled post haste to Charlotte and "scouted" Jim Mooney and signed him to a contract with the New York Giants. He will be at San Antonio in the spring, and probably a succession of chill winds will be noted over old Mexico and the Panhandle and points farther west.

It is an honor for any left-hand pitcher to be signed for a trial by the Giants, but it is doubly an honor for one to be scouted and signed by John McGraw in person. Jim Mooney, as far as the archives of the Giants go, is alone in this distinction.

McGraw never saw Rube Marquard until he was dragged in from Indianapolis with Bull Durham, and for some time McGraw wished he never had set eyes on the Rube. Slim Sallee, Rube Benton, Art Nehf, the long line of left-handers who followed Marquard, were all known to McGraw when he bought them. Perhaps he did scout Ferdie Schupp.

Mooney Already O.K.'d By McGraw.

But Master Mooney has the McGraw stamp of approval right now, and if we can believe the Sally League folk, he will keep it. Here, they say, is a Nap Rucker, a Bill Hallahan and a Nehf rolled in one package. His curve curled and quivered to such purpose last summer that in 197 innings pitched, in the course of 28 games, he fashioned his 185 strikeouts.

None of the country's pitchers, Dazzy Vance and Bob Grove included, came anywhere near him.

James Irving Mooney was born at Mooresburg, Tenn., in 1906. He first played on his State normal school team and turned pro in 1927, when he won four and lost four for Chattanooga. Wildness caused his release by Chattanooga after the 1929 season, when he won only two and lost nine.

At Charlotte, he regained control and after a bad start came through to win eleven and lose eleven. He gave only 76 passes in his 197 innings, which is pretty good for a young left-hander.

TWIN BILL FOR OLMSTEDS.

Olmsted Grill basketers will play a double-header in the Macfarland Junior High Gym tonight, tackling the Georgetown A. C. at 8 o'clock, and the Columbia A. C. an hour later.

Lucas' 17 Points Feature School Basket Ball Upset; Central Bows to Western

By BOB CONSIDINE.

BUSINESS HIGH SCHOOL, mostly in the form of Bobby Lucas, half a gill of controlled T.N.T., threw a monkey wrench into the smooth order of the scholastic basketball series yesterday afternoon at Tech before 2,000 rabid fans by beating the hitherto unbeaten Eastern High Team by the score, 28-24, in the most spectacular game thus far.

Somewhat before this Western had caused a mild demonstration by achieving a 27-to-21 victory over Central, a feat which kept Western in the high school series and dropped Central down to a position whence it must display miraculous basket ball to win the title.

Things at the top of the list underwent a change, Eastern being forced to share its first place berth with Tech, which crept into Eastern's compartment in surreptitious fashion by remaining idle.

Brilliant Despite Good Guarding.

Afforded the finest guarding obtainable, that of Eastern's Dallas Shirley, Lucas turned in a brilliant bit of shooting, passing, pivoting and the other embellishments of a first rate basket ball player. Lucas, with 17 points beside his name hung up the higest shooting record for the series, never taking an unnecessary or outlandish shot and at all times concentrating more on holding his wavering team together than doing the scoring which every Business rooter screamingly importuned him to do.

Business won going away at the end, after Capt. Barney Kane of Eastern had deadlocked the score at 21-21 by an unbelievable backward shot which he followed up presently with a good snowbird, giving Eastern the lead at 23-21 with but three minutes to play. But Lucas, in almost a frenzy of competitive fury, evaded Shirley in the remaining minutes of the game to account for 5 of Business' 7 more points, while only Kane's free toss showed up on Eastern's score clock.

Lucas Figures in Every Tussle.

Business was aggressive in a fair style throughout, snatching the ball repeatedly off the backstop out of the hands of the taller and better organized Eastern team. Other than Lucas, Business showed many rough edges, especially in shooting. His work alone won the game. He was deep in every tussle for the ball, a sensation in dribbling, and yesterday, at least, possessed more than finite powers of shooting.

Eastern was upset at the start and never recovered the poise it seems to need to win games. Starting without the services of Bill Noonan, ace of the Lincoln Park crew, Eastern seemed irked by the fact that Business began to freeze the ball at the very start of the game, after gaining a 5-2 lead. This was irksome because Eastern presented a zone defense, which it stuck to until the half, when the count was tied, 13-13.

Noonan, showing the effects of a heavy cold, entered the game late in the third period, but could do nothing to better the plight of his team. Eastern tied the score at the start of the second quarter, at the half, and near the end, trailing at all other times behind Lucas and his four confreres.

Central Is Ragged In Defeat.

Central just could not click against Western, which may tell the whole story, but comment should be made on the flexibility of Western's various modes of attack. Faced with a man-for-man defense, such as Central uses, Western resorted to new tricks of the trade to keep possession of the ball and at the same time jockey for an opening down the floor.

It was a ragged game at times, with Central the chief offender. The Blue and White seemed to miss Gene Swift, its brick-thatched guard, whose play against Tech was noteworthy. Swift, out with a broken rib, was understudied by Frank Cumberland, who conducted himself in good fashion.

An out of the ordinary one-handed shot by Rice, a long potshot by Burke and two accurate free tosses by Rice enabled Central to tie the score deep in the third quarter, but it proved to be a flash in the pan for Central and a needed reactivation for Western, who was never headed thereafter.

Buscher Scores Fifteen Points.

For the first time since he has played interhigh basket ball Everett Buscher, hefty Western forward, remained in an entire game. His deadline is usually the half, which ordinarily is time enough for him to chalk up four fouls to his credit, but yesterday his play was pure enough to suit the officials and he scored 15 points for his side by reason of it.

Roy Yowell, Western center, not only frequently outjumped the taller Rice, but stamped himself as the most improved all-round player of the series.

Alexandrians Conquer Emerson Five, 22-7

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., Jan. 20.—Emerson Institute, of Washington, was outclassed here tonight by the Alpha Delta Omega quintet on the Armory Court by a 22-to-7 score.

The fraternity team, led by Williams and Dreifus, was much too clever for the Washington scholastics and presented a defense which held Emerson to two field goals. Alpha Delta is one of the favorites in the Alexandria A. A. U. championship tournament.

MARYLAND U. SCHEDULES 3 DUAL BOXING MEETS

18 Candidates Seek Berths On Team

Old Liners Benefited by Maryland Law Approving Fees.

UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND will enter competition in intercollegiate boxing during the winter with three bouts with Southern Conference opponents already scheduled and others expected to be added.

Boxing at the College Park school has been conducted only informally for the past two years, but under the direction of William R. Whipp, athletic director of the Racquet Club here, the Old Liners will plunge into open competition.

The debut of the Maryland team is scheduled for January 31 when the Old Liners engage Washington and Lee at College Park, in the first of a home-and-home match. The Generals and the Old Liners clash again at Lexington, Va., on February 28. On February 7, Virginia Military Institute's leather pushers will invade College Park.

Maryland Aided
By Boxing Law.

Maryland holds an advantage over other schools of the Capital group inasmuch as boxing in Maryland is legalized and admission fees may be charged. Attempts of Catholic University and Georgetown University to foster boxing have suffered due to the lack of revenue as a result of the antiboxing laws of the District.

Eighteen candidates are now battling for berths on the Maryland team and among these Coach Whipp is blessed with a trio whom he expects to be consistent winners. Bernard Keener, a 144-pounder from Raspeburg, Md.; Francis Holloway, heavyweight from Hebron, Md., and Karl Mech, 165-pounder from Baltimore, have shown much talent.

Old Liners Won 50, Lost 36 Dual Events in 1930

Maryland University teams scored 50 victories in 87 dual events during 1930, a survey of the past year in sports at the Old Line institution reveals.

The lacrosse team, with nine victories against one defeat, showed the best record, and the track team, which won only one of six dual meets, the worst. The 1930 record of the teams follows:

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

THE HALF-WAY SIGN—Kearney, Nebr.

WHEN the chief of a Kapuas tribe dies, his fellow natives select a huge banyan tree and hollow out a space in the trunk large enough to hold his body. Then with all due ceremony, the body of the Kapua chief is inserted within this "living tomb" and packed with earth and moss. After this the opening is sealed and the bark replaced.

"Tiny," the dwarf cow, is 3 years old and in spite of her diminished stature, seems to be a contented cow. As a milk giver, however, Tiny has been a failure. Perhaps her fondness for cigarettes stunted her growth. After a satisfying meal of oats or grass, Tiny likes an after-dinner "fag," which she chews contentedly.

Strange As It Seems, you can take the fence from around a field inclosing 4 acres, extend it about a 640-acre field and still have 33 feet left over! Figure it out for yourself. The trick is to make your 4-acre field only a rod wide.

Boots and Saddles

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Miami Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

SMALL fields prevail today at the Miami track, but they are well balanced. Featuring the card is the Little River Handicap, for 3-year-olds and up, at six furlongs. The filly, ST. AGNES, beaten last out by Gosling, from the C. V. Whitney stable, by a nose in 1:12 1-5, should win the purse of $1,200.

While this filly has just rounded into a 3-year-old, she is conceded much weight, getting 102 pounds, which should make her easily best. PROMETHEUS, with 119, is rated the contender, although he was beaten last week by WHISP, which again is to start, carrying 120 pounds. The WHISP race was a fifth of a second slower than the ST. AGNES race, and was won by a head. WHISP picks up two pounds and PROMETHEUS one pound over that race.

An older horse in the race, DR. PARRISH, which was second to Perkins last week and favorite over that horse, will be heavily backed and has a chance, with 118. This seems to be a toss-up race, but the early speed of the Harrison filly, formerly a winner in Maryland for Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords, should land the prize.

FIRST RACE—POLITEN, regarded a good 2-year-old last year on the Florida tracks, which has failed to deliver so far this season, is dropped down in a cheaper class in the first race and should win. RUNINLITE, a winner at St. Johns, should be the contender, while AERIE should figure in the contest. POLITEN is the class, and likes the Florida track. He was regarded as a stake juvenile last year, but did not justify that kind of racing.

SECOND RACE—WESTERN PRINCESS is picked for the second race. She ran Nealon Kay to a nose finish a few days ago, and that horse appears a harder rival than the present field offers. UPSET LAD, a recent winner, whose victories in his entire career have been few, may be the favorite on that winning effort, in which he beat Boris, but second seems the proper placing for him. The time was faster on the Nealon Kay race. CANDY PIG is the class of the race, but he needs another test before his present form becomes convincing. He won at Bowie, but was unplaced in his last start there.

THIRD RACE—ESSIE appears best in the third race. In a short dash of five and a half furlongs, the daughter of Westy Hogan has the early speed of this field. She was unplaced in her last start at New Orleans, but was favorite in the race, which was won by Marydale. MISS ROSEDALE also is a consistent mare, and suited to sprint distances. If the distance was further, RED CROSS SISTER would be the favorite, but she is a slow beginner. OBJIBWAY was a fast sprinter last year in the East.

FOURTH RACE—OSLO should repeat in the fourth race, the Aladdin City purse for 3-year-olds. He beat a cheap field Monday in 1:13 2-5, and there seems no horse in this field against him which can beat that race. COCK ROBIN, a St. Johns winner, may be the contender, but UPSWEEP has a chance t the whole jackpot. He made a very poor showing in the Hialeah inaugural, but that was a different class of horses.

SIXTH RACE—Cheap ones go in the sixth race for older horses at five and a half furlongs. WAVE TOP is a quick beginner and is chosen to beat STUPENDOUS, probably a better horse. WAVE TOP ran with better horses in Maryland but was only third to Ocora in her last start at Bowie. STUPENDOUS will have POINCIANA, recent winner, to battle with over the place money. This is the largest field on the card.

SEVENTH RACE—CROYDEN looks like a standout in the seventh race at a mile and a sixteenth. He won two races at St. Johns and is in trim, but has uncertain legs. WOOLORAC is best of the other platers. He also was a St. Johns winner, but that form is not to be seriously considered.

"INSANITARY METHODS In Cigar Making Are Indecent"

Says

CARL T. POMEROY C. P. H.

Health Officer, Montclair, New Jersey

TOWN OF MONTCLAIR
NEW JERSEY

CARL T. POMEROY, C. P. H.
HEALTH OFFICER

June 10th, 1930

American Cigar Company,
111 Fifth Avenue,
New York City.

Dear Sirs:

As a public health officer, I cannot help but recognize the fact that your campaign to eliminate the evils resulting from promiscuous spitting and the spit-tipping method of cigar making is commendable and in line with the health work done by my own department.

I see that you call it a "Crusade of Decency". Certainly insanitary methods in cigar making are indecent. An advertising campaign like yours, which exposes such indecency and points the way to the cleansing of your industry, deserves the support of my department.

While I express no preference for your cigar over any other, I am pleased to inform you that I do endorse your campaign to show the public the advantages of avoiding insanitary practices.

You are free to publish that fact or, if you wish, to publish this letter over my signature.

Very truly yours,
Carl T. Pomeroy

Every smoker, every wife whose husband smokes cigars, should read Health Officer Pomeroy's letter.

"Who are the friends of 'Spit'?"

YOU MAY WELL ASK THIS QUESTION WHEN 56 IMPORTANT HEALTH OFFICIALS HAVE WRITTEN SO STRONGLY AGAINST THE EVILS OF SPIT OR SPIT-TIPPING.

The war against spit is a crusade of decency. Join it... Smoke Certified Cremo—a really wonderful smoke—mild—mellow—nut-sweet! Every leaf entering the clean, sunny Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture.

V. P. I. QUINT ON CAROLINA INVASION

Special to The Washington Post.

BLACKSBURG, Va., Jan. 20.—Carolina courts this week will be the battleground for V. P. I. Basket Ball Team. The Tech tossers must face teams from four of North Carolina's Big Five institutions on successive nights.

The tour will open tomorrow against North Carolina State at Raleigh. Coach Rhodes will take his team to Wake Forest Thursday for the first contest in several years with a Deacon quintet. The big team of 6-footers of the University of North Carolina will be met Friday at Chapel Hill, and Davidson will be the scene of the finale on Saturday.

Wildcats Won Last Two Against V. P. I.

In the final tilt with the Wildcats, the Tech team will seek revenge for two straight court defeats at the hands of the wards of Monk Younger, wily Davidson coach.

V. P. I. will send a whole batch of sophomores in to Tarheel gyms. Five new varsity men made their debut on the winning combination against Virginia here last week, and the coming invasion, during which they must face some of the strongest court talent in the South Atlantic sector, is a big test for the Tech youngsters. These tossers will face their Tarheel rivals with but one game, a 28-to-21 win over Virginia, to their credit.

Coach Rhodes mixed criticism with praise for both veteran and sophomore combinations after the Virginia game. The first team to face the Cavaliers included four veterans—Capt. Baker, Yaggi, Jenkins and Donaldson—showed nice passing ability. The vets were trailing by one point when the coach sent his sophomore combination of Joe Boaley and Bus Hall as forwards, Byron Belote at center and Benny Palmer and Paul Wolfe as guards into the fray.

Poly Coach Seeks More Precision.

This quintet guarded well, permitting but two goals from the floor in 27 minutes of play. Coach Rhodes is seeking more precision and teamwork in the practice sessions this week.

Twelve players, accompanied by Coach Rhodes and Manager Ben Woodson, will probably make the trip. The squad includes Capt. Baker, Bosley, Tibbs, Hall and Jenkins, forwards; Belote, Seamon and Donaldson, centers; Wolfe, Palmer, Yaggi and Kasun, guards.

Woodward Five Bows To Hyattsville, 14 to 9

In a low-scoring game, due partially to good guarding and partially to inability of the sharpshooters of each team to find the basket, the Hyattsville High five defeated the Woodward School basketers, 14 to 9.

During the first half, which found Woodward leading, 6 to 4, two field goals by Evans represented the Hyattsville attack, but the Suburbanites managed to hold their foes to but 3 points in the final half while scoring 10 themselves. Evans, with 7 points, was high scorer.

PLANNING FOR BASEBALL.

The Cardinal Redbirds, made up of former Sterling and Southern players, are planning for the coming season and will hold a dance at the Knights of Columbus Hall on February 7 to help raise funds to outfit the 1931 team, which will enter the senior section of the Capital City League.

Alexandria Sports

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Jan. 20.—Hugh Travers, star guard of the Alexandria High School Basket Ball Team, has been elected as captain for the 1931 campaign. He has played three years with the team and this season makes his fourth.

The Alexandria High girls' team at a meeting named Miss Roberta Ray as captain. Miss Edith Spaulding was elected manager. The girls play all preliminary games to the varsity five.

It was announced by Athletic Director Given that his boys would play two games this week. On Friday, they will trek to Fredericksburg for a game with the Yellow Jackets, a district contest, while on Saturday Eastern High, of Washington, will invade this city.

The third game in the Alexandria City series will be played on Thursday night at 8:30 o'clock in Armory Hall when the Alpha Delta Omega tossers tie up with the fast St. Mary's Lyceum Club. If the fraters win the series will be in a deadlock. This game is attracting considerable interest.

The R., F. & P. Basket Ball Team will meet the Northerns in a game here on Sunday afternoon. This contest will be played in Schuler's Hall on King street. The Celtics used this place for all games last season.

Billy Schwartz, Alexandria boxer, is not down-hearted over his defeat in New York last Friday. The bakker boy has started training again and expects to enter in several bouts in this section. He is under the management of Frankie Mann, Washington promoter.

The Clover Athletic Club traveled to Fort Myer last night and won an extra-period game from the Company A team, 21-19. Foote starred for the winners. The Clovers are entered in the junior city series.

Chairman Owen Creegan, of the Alexandria junior city series, requests managers of teams submit all eligibility lists to him by 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night so that final action can be taken on the names. The series will open on Thursday, when the Central A. C. and the Boy Scouts clash.

Charlie Grant, manager of the Alexandria Health Center, is making arrangements for the organization of a city bowling league. Managers of local teams will meet with him this week to discuss plans.

TULANE GRID DRILLS IN RELAYS

Squad to Report Few at a Time for Spring Work.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Coach Bernie Bierman, of Tulane University, plans to do his spring football coaching in relays. Starting February 2, the Greenie grid aspirants will report to Bierman in relays every two weeks until the entire roster is accounted for. The veteran coach of the Green Wave hopes to place Tulane as a top ranking team in 1931 for the third successive year.

The new men report first. Bierman will spend a fortnight teaching fundamentals to them before his squad is enlarged by the assembling of all other players, except letter men. The second group will gather February 19. March 2 has been set as the date for the letter men to answer the call and their practice will continue for five weeks.

Late May Calls for Lengthy Signal Drill.

Bierman also plans ten hours of nothing but signal drill late in May after all other sports are concluded.

Tulane is tackling its most difficult schedule in recent years and Bierman hopes to have his varsity in great shape next fall by getting off to a fast start this spring.

Wofford, of South Carolina, S. I. A. A. basket ball leader, faces real opposition tomorrow night in Erskine. The flying fleet from due west ranked as one of the best in the association last year, and is going strong now after a wobbly start.

Kentucky has its work cut out for it in clashing with Vanderbilt tomorrow night at Nashville. North Carolina State meets Virginia Polytechnic Institute at Raleigh in another important conference engagement.

Rappahannock Trials Scheduled for March 12

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 20.—At yesterday's meeting of the board of governors of the Rappahannock Amateur Field Trial Association, it was decided to hold the annual spring puppy trials on Thursday, March 12.

The coming event, the sixth annual one, promises to be the best ever sponsored by the association as many exceptionally promising puppies are due to compete.

SILVERDALE SCORES AT MIAMI

HIALEAH RACE TRACK, Miami, Fla., Jan. 20 (A.P.).—The shore Crest Handicap, one mile feature, which attracted only three horses here this afternoon, resulted in a hollow victory for E. B. McLean's Silverdale.

Four lengths back came Son O' Battle, flying the silks of J. F. Byers, with the Keenland stud's Jean Val Jean an equal distance behind, third and last. The mile was covered in the good time of 1:38 2-5 and the winner paid $4.10 for $2 after a heavy late play.

Son O' Battle was poorly ridden by McNamee, who did not let his mount down until too late, when Silverdale had the race stowed away. Ambrose broke Silverdale on his toes and let the 5-year-old horse step into a lead of two lengths, going easily, while Jean Val Jean and Son O' Battle raced closely aligned to the far turn. There McNamee allowed Son O'Battle to hit his full stride, but Silverdale was only breezing along in front and his margin was widened to five lengths down the stretch. Son O' Battle had no trouble beating Jean Val Jean for the place.

Half Day Outruns Field of Sprinters.

George D. Widener's Half Day, under perfect handling, easily accounted for the third event in which some high class sprinters met over the six furlong route. Gosling was second and Noah Joyce third.

Half Day broke first but was eased back and Noah Joyce went out to set the pace, leading to the final furlong where Half Day took command and won by two lengths. Gosling, slow to strike her best stride, beat Noah Joyce half a length for the place.

Jockey T. Malley escaped injury when his mount, Owney M., fell just after turning into the stretch. The boy walked back to the jockey quarters.

Virginia Lacrossers Await Good Weather

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 20.—Candidates for Virginia's lacrosse team are awaiting a favorable change in the weather and a call from Coach Gus Welch, former Carlisle star. Practices are likely to start in the near future in order to prepare for the seven-game schedule which includes such teams as Georgia Tech, Pennsylvania and St. John's.

Facing the loss of Gildea, the goal keeper, and practically all of the attack men, including such players as Harrison, Vielbig, Andrews, Jones, Crothers and Golden, Coach Welch will devote much of his time toward perfecting players to replace these creditable performers. Smith, Belaval, Cameron, DeButts, St. Clair, Brittingham and Evans are among the lettermen who will be present for the opening guns of the new season.

April 4, Randolph-Macon, here; 10, Pennsylvania, here; 22, St. John's, here.
May 1, University of Georgia, at Athens; 2, Georgia Tech, at Atlanta; pending, Washington College, date yet unsettled.

Duke Five Sees Action But Once This Week

Special to The Washington Post.

Durham, N. C., Jan. 20.—The only Duke sports teams in action this week, the Blue Devil varsity and freshmen basket ball outfits, will break the two-week examination period by meeting the State College teams at Raleigh Saturday night.

Back from their Northern trip after dropping the first two games, only to come back and whip the strong Navy Team, Duke's cagers during the time they are not taking examinations, will be at the gym preparing to defend their State title against the Wolfpack.

Despite his injured leg, Joe Croson, Duke's lanky center, made a great showing on the recent trip. In the three games he scored 33 points. Incidentally, the Duke center has averaged over 10 points a game in two years of playing for Duke. This season he is a fraction under that mark, having scored 75 points in 8 games.

TAKOMA-S. S. FIVE WINS.

Takoma-Silver Spring High tossers won as they pleased from Gaithersburg High yesterday afternoon, 27 to 7. The losers scored but once from the floor. The winners, anticipating an easy game, used many substitutes and never extended themselves.

In a preliminary, the Silver Spring girls took a 26-to-25 thriller from the Gaithersburg sextet, Miss Rawlings' last-minute goal being decisive.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

FREIGHT RATE CUTS HELPFUL IN FAIRFAX

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

Fairfax County Agricultural Agent H. B. Darr, in summing up the reports of the amount of savings on freight charge reductions handled through his office during the drought period, states that the benefits that accrued to the farmers of this section due to the lower charges last fall have been much greater than any reports he could give, owing to lack of official information.

According to the financial statement furnished Mr. Derr by G. C. Baggatt, traffic manager of the Washington & Old Dominion railroad, at seventeen of the stations along that railroad, between Rosslyn and Bluemont, 553 cars of freight were handled with a tonage of 19,646,624 pounds. The normal freight charges would have amounted to $100,391.36 but due to the emergency freight reductions the charges were only $53,695.64. This means a saving of $46,695.72 to the farmers along that railroad.

Of the above total the five stations in Fairfax County handled 194 cars, totaling 3,370 tons or about one-third of the total amount of feed hauled by the Washington & Old Dominion Railway, at a saving of $15,397.69 to the farmers and dairymen in the northern section of the county. Not all of this material was sold to Fairfax County farmers, as some of it was purchased by farmers in the adjoining counties on arrival.

County Agent Derr said "When we consider that this amount was handled by one railroad alone what would the total be if the traffic handled by the Southern and the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroads was included. If this saving accrued to a road that handled only 26 per cent of the total shipped into Fairfax County what would the total amount be if the data on the other 74 per cent were available at this time. It is hoped that this information can be obtained from the other railroads in the near future."

The Blessed Virgin Sodality of the St. James' Catholic Church, at West Falls Church, will hold its meeting this evening in the Little Sisters Chapel of the church.

The travelogue of national forests and parks that was to have been given tomorrow evening by the Rev. Royal A. Rice, in the Southern Methodist Church at Fairfax, has been postponed until a later date so as not to conflict with the arrangements of the women of the Lewis Guild of Zion Episcopal Church to serve a chicken and oyster supper tomorrow evening in the rooms behind Taylor's Pharmacy, on Main street, in Fairfax.

The program to be broadcast from 12:15 until 12:45 o'clock this afternoon under the direction of Fairfax County Agricultural Agent H. B. Derr will include a talk on emergency crop production and the outlook reports for the State of Virginia for the ensuing year. The statistics have been prepared by the Department of Agriculture and are based upon experiences of former years. They contain advice for the farmers in planting their crops, and for the past several years these predictions have been found to be exceptionally accurate and invaluable to farmers who have followed them.

Another feature of the broadcast will be an address by the Rev. Royal A. Rice, of the Southern Methodist Church at Fairfax, who will speak on what the county pastor can do to help the farmers. He will also explain the plans for a county pastors' conference in the near future to map out a campaign for relief work among the farmers of Fairfax County.

The Young People's Service League of the Holy Comforter Church at Vienna has elected the following officers for the ensuing term: Miss Jacquelain Pfalzgraf, president; Miss Lois Poole, vice president; Miss Agnes Porch, secretary, and Miss Adele Pfalzgraf, treasurer. The standing committees were named as follows: Devotionals, Mrs. John Virts; hospitality, Miss Agnes Porch, Miss Violet Ziegler and Miss Irene Manvell; entertainment, Miss Adele Pfalzgraf, Edwin Linstrong, Harold Brown and Mrs. John Virts; refreshments, Mrs. John Virts, Mrs. F. Kerns and Miss Agnes Porch; publicity, J. Owens Berry.

The Ladies' Social Club of St. John's Catholic Church at El Nido will hold its meeting tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Wade Burns at Vanderwerken.

Benjamin Middleton, of Floris, will be one of the sixteen farmers of the State of Virginia to be honored with the Master Farmers degree this evening at a banquet given in their honor in the Hotel Richmond, at Richmond, Va. He will also receive a gold medal for his work for the advancement of the farmers. He will be introduced at the banquet by Fairfax County Agricultural Agent H. B. Derr.

Mr. Middleton owns a large dairy farm near Floris, shipping milk into Washington. His stock are consistent winners in the show rings and he sells registered cattle in the foreign markets. His herd is also a consistent winner in the dairy herd association for high-grade and quantity production.

It has been stated that "the Master Farmer movement is to recognize those who present remarkable examples of success in building up a thoroughly well-rounded, well-balanced farm and a modern farm home, and who have helped as good citizens in building up their local communities." The Master Farmers awards will be made in Virginia every five years, this year being the first. These awards are based on the operation and organization of the farm; second, business methods and ability; third, general farm appearance and upkeep; fourth, home life, and fifth, citizenship.

Divorce Asked; Couple Live in Same Home

Although they continue to reside in the same house in Takoma Park, Md., Walter J. Wilkins, 269 Park avenue, yesterday asked for a limited divorce from Mrs. Annie R. Wilkins, alleging desertion and cruelty. Through Attorney Kenneth Lyddane, of Rockville, the husband asks the circuit court at Rockville to grant him a limited divorce and custody of their three children.

The husband tells the court that the couple was married in May, 1918, at Bristol, Tenn. He charges that the wife treated him with extreme cruelty on several occasions and at one time threatened his life with a butcher knife. He tells the court that although both remain in the same house the wife has taken another section of the house for her use.

RETIRED WATCHMAN TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

Former Greenhouse Employe Shoots Self at Scene of 30 Years' Service.

HELD TOO OLD TO WORK

Too old to work and tired of the tedium of enforced inactivity, George W. Cutshall, 74 years old yesterday shot himself to death beside the Department of Agriculture greenhouses, where he had worked for 30 years.

Mr. Cutshall had been retired from his position as watchman on the last day of last year, after he had been granted two two-year extensions of time by the Government. Yesterday he visited the greenhouses for the last time. He walked through to Twelfth street, drew a revolver, and fired two shots into the ground.

Men standing nearby tried to restrain him, but he ran to a clump of shrubbery, and, placing the muzzle of the revolver in his mouth, he fired. He was pronounced dead by an Emergency Hospital physician and his body ordered to the Morgue.

Mr. Cutshall roomed at 1209 North Capitol street at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Berkley Payne. He had been a canal boat captain on the old Chesapeake & Ohio Canal, and had served in the United States Army. He was a native of Washington County, Md., and was a member of the "President's Own Garrison," Army and Navy Union. He is survived by a stepson, William LaMont, of Rhode Island avenue northeast, near Third street.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

ANOTHER GOLF DECISION.

("Court holds that golfer whose drive hit a fellow player was under no obligation to cry 'Fore!'—News item.

THIS is an action in which the plaintiff contends that he was ipso faction beaned by a golf ball driven by the defendant who had not yet passed out of range and without benefit of the protection customarily afforded by the shout of "Fore!"

"Fore," it is conceded by both parties to this litigation, is the equivalent of the exclamatory warnings, "Hey!" "Look out!" "Duck!" "Get outa there!" etcetera.

The defendant's attitude on the stand was admittedly somewhat amazing. Far from denying that a ball driven by him hit a man in the fairway 160 yards away, the defendant seemed quite proud of the fact, as the following examination will show:

Question by the court: Is it not possible that the ball which struck the plaintiff in this action was driven by some one else?

Answer: Oh, no sir! It was absolutely my drive, your honor. Nobody can take that away from me!

Question by the court: What makes you so positive?

Answer: It was the longest drive I had had in weeks and the first time I had been on the fairway that round.

* * * *

THE defendant, thus insisting that it was his ball that hit the plaintiff, contended:

(a) That while it has become common practice on the better links for a golfer to shout "Fore!" before driving when there are players ahead, it is no longer regarded as a fundamental rule of the game.

(b) That there are many courses today where the cry is never heard.

(c) That as golf is now played any man who engages in the pastime is deliberately participating in a hazardous occupation.

(d) That he is under the obligation to protect himself at all times.

(e) That failure to do so entails acceptance of the consequences.

* * * *

The plaintiff, on the other hand, contends that the driving of a golf ball by one player before another player is out of range constitutes a criminal act. In weighing this point the court has been compelled to consider the question, to wit: When may a player be said to be out of range of another player's drive?

* * * *

CAREFUL testimony from many golfers supported the court's theory that what constituted being out of range of one golfer's drive might constitute being well within the range of another's. The courts have indeed held (Swiffle vs. Sedgepodd) that a man might be well out of the range of certain golfers when but 20 yards from the tee, and that there are cases where a golfer would be safe standing a club's length away.

The preponderance of evidence submitted here was that practically all members of the defendant's club have always proceeded on the assumption that they were out of range of his drive when they had taken a dozen steps from the tee. Supporting this theory is the testimony of the defendant himself.

Question by the court: Don't you ever cry "Fore!" before hitting a ball when there are players in front of you?

Answer: I used to at first, but I found that nobody ever paid any attention to me.

* * * *

COUNTY NAMES TWO TO WORK OUT BILLS

Cissel and Whiteford Will Prepare Montgomery's Assembly Program.

STREET WIDENING ASKED

In preparation for submission of measures to the general assembly, the Montgomery County commissioners yesterday designated Capt. Joseph C. Cissel, counsel to the board, and Roger J. Whiteford as advisory counsel, to prepare bills and programs of legislation. The bills will be prepared as desired by State Senator Robert G. Hilton and members of the county delegation to the House of Delegates, and with the approval of the county commissioners.

The program to be prepared will lay especial stress upon the legislation which was scheduled for passage at the 1929 session and which was killed when Senator Eugene Jones boited the organization faction and enlisted under the antiadministration banner.

Street improvements in Gaithersburg were asked by two delegations which appeared before the commissioners. A group headed by Hobart Ransdell requested that the Rockville-Gaithersburg-Frederick road be widened at the overhead bridge in Gaithersburg in order that a better vision could be permitted. Improvement and widening of Diamond avenue was urged and attention was called to the authorization of a zoning survey for the town, given by Mayor William McBain and the town council. A second delegation headed by E. C. Gartner asked for the same improvements.

County Commissioned John B. Diamond, jr., has succeeded in having the Potomac Electric Power Co. promise to extend its service lines to Travilah and Hunting Hill, he announced at the meeting. Commissioner Diamond has received a letter from S. R. Bowen, vice president and general counsel of the company, giving assurance that the power lines will be extended within a short time.

H. A. Brooks, commercial manager of the company, has recommended the construction of the extension after an exhaustive survey of the situation, Mr. Bowen stated. The survey determined that hte number of subscribers would be sufficient to make unnecessary the deposit usually required for new service. Mr. Bowen said that work on the project would begin promptly.

A group of residents from the Travilah neighborhood had petitioned the county commissioners for a charter to establish an independent company to furnish lighting and power current to the section. The Potomac Electric Power Co. protested and argued that it could furnish better service at lower cost. Commissioners up held the protset.

Stedman Prescott, State's attorney for Montgomery County and legal adviser for the gaithersburg, has been authorized to draw up a zoning plan for the town, which will be presented to the legislature for enactment.

The town council also has been asked to cooperate with the Chamber of Commerce in securing widening of the approaches to the recently constructed overhead bridge.

Work of the Montgomery County Social Service League was explained to the quarterly group missionary meeting of the Washington District of the Southern Methodist Conference yesterday at the Rockville M. E. Church by Mrs. Martin Codell, league worker. The group represents missionary societies of eight churches. Mrs. Nellie F. Clark, district secretary, presided.

Mrs. Ida Groover and Mrs. J. R. Jacobs, both of Washington, superintendents of young people's work, also spoke. Lunch was served by the Rockville Missionary Society. The churches represented are Rockville, Gaithersburg, Poolesville, Bethesda, Colesville, Emory of Oakdale, Gashen, and Brunswick, all of Montgomery County, and Francis Asbury and St. Paul's of Washington. The afternoon session was devoted to reports.

HIGHWAY REQUESTS REFERRED TO BOARD

Commissioners to Hand All Petitions for Work to Prince Georges Group.

TWO FLEE FROM JAIL

Taking the stand that the establishment and maintenance of county roads was a matter for the decision of the district road supervisors, the board of commissioners of Prince Georges County yesterday voted to refer such requests to the district authorities.

Under Maryland law county road funds are allotted to election districts and administered by a road board. While the commissioners have the right to open a new road, they feel that this responsibility should be borne by the district road board.

Several requests for the county to take over roads already established were received yesterday. One of these, a request for the county to pave about a mile of streets in Columbia Park, had been held over for about three weeks. This asks that a county road be continued through the town along a specified route.

Other Requests for Streets.

Other requests were for several streets in College Park and for the county maintenance of about 2 miles along the Old Farm road.

Asking for more time to consider the project, the board failed to take any definite action on a request that they support the bill providing for more county aid for the volunteer fire departments. A delegation appeared yesterday before the board to ask its approval of a plan which would raise the county's contribution from $5,000 to $17,500.

T. Wesley Scott was spokesman for the county association. He was accompanied by Karl Young, president of the group; Andrew Gasch, chief of the rescue squad, and George Wiseman. The delegation pointed out that Montgomery County's aid to its volunteer fire departments amounted to $36,000, and that Anne Arundel County gave its $25,000.

A protest was received from the Stephens Citizens Association, of East Riverdale, against the board's refusal to take over certain streets in that town. The matter of replacing a culvert at the corner of the Defense highway and the old Branchville road was referred to the local engineer for the State Roads Commission. The culvert was removed when the highway was widened.

May Buy Typewriter.

A request from the General Outdoor Advertising Co. for a 10 per cent depreciation allowance on its signs in the county was refused, and a new typewriter for the office of the county prosecutor, if the old one could not be repaired, was allowed.

Cheverly and Riverdale Hills asked for more police protection to check a wave of petty larcenies. G. Watson Lambert, secretary of Cheverly Citizens Association, asked for another policeman for protecting Bladensburg and Decatur Heights.

B. L. Berman was the representative from Riverdale Hills, asked that John P. Sampson be sworn in as deputy sheriff.

Sawing through the bars with hacksaw blades, two men early yesterday escaped from the Bladensburg Jail, to make the third escape in six week. In the three deliveries, eight persons have escaped and only one has been recaptured.

Yesterday's fugitives were Fred Johnson and James Robertson, Negoes, arrested on liquor charges. Several more prisoners did not take advantage of the opportunity to escape, and one of them left through the opening to carry news of the break to Jailer George Wiseman.

As no warden is on duty all the time, friends of prisoners have had no difficulty in smuggling saws to inmates. The three escapes will probably mean that all prisoners will either be taken to the jail at Marlboro when they are arrested, or that a jailer will be kept on duty 24 hours.

At the time of the last break, Mr. Wiseman, jokingly, told reporters that another one would happen about the 15th or 20th of the month. Yesterday was the 20th, and the break came off according to schedule.

Prince Georges County shares with St. Marys the dubious honor of having the worst poorhouse in the State of Maryland, according to the annual report of the committee on almhouses. Ten of the fourteen county establishments in the Western Shore are in very bad condition, the report says.

The committee also suggested that county establishments be abandoned, and all inmates sent to a central poorhouse somewhere in the western part of the State. This suggestion has been the subject of considerable study in recent years, but no definite steps have been taken. The central almshouse would be financed by a bond issue, charged to the counties on the basis of their assessed value, and they would support it on a per capita basis.

A five-year program for Maryland farmers tending toward the production of crops for human consumption was suggested yesterday by Dr. T. B. Symons, director of extension work in the State, as he addressed the annual conference of extension workers in Maryland.

Prosperity for Maryland farmer lies in their producing truck crops and dairy products rather than other fram produce which will stand shipment. Being near Baltimore and Washington, they have an ample market for such products.

Dr. Symons' speech opened the four-day session being held at the University of Maryland. County agents and county home demonstration agents throughout the State are attending.

The chief matters to be discussed are measures for meeting conditions brought about by the drought, various phases of adult education, and the five-year program.

Speakers at yesterday's session included Dr. Raymond A. Pearson, president of the University, John D. Willard, of the American Association for Adult Education, C. J. Galpin, farm economist of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, J. W. Sprowls, associate professor of farm management, and C. W. Warburton, director of extension work of the Department of Agriculture.

Lesson in Slump Seen by Firestone

Edison, in Richmond, on Way South, Refuses to Talk on Situation.

Richmond, Jan. 20 (A.P.).—Harvey S. Firestone sees a silver lining in the business slump. "We need something like this," he said, discussing the depression today, "to show us how lucky we are. I believe the depression has served to demonstrate to the American people that they can only be really happy when helping others."

Mr. Firestone and Thomas A. Edison paused here briefly en route South. The inventor, unlike Mr. Firestone, shied from answering questions on business.

"Why should I rush and say anything as to when the depression will end?" Mr. Edison asked. "These other fellows are rushing in. I don't think I'll do it. I've passed through six of their depressions and I've got sense enough not to try to make too many predictions."

GEN. FRIES ATTACKS COMMUNIST PARTY

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 875.

Gen. Amos A. Fries, U. S. Army, retired, former chief of the Chemical Warfare Service, was the speaker at the meeting of the Rotary Club yesterday and took as his subject the Communist situation in this country.

Gen. Fries declared that the country is facing a crisis which has taken years to develop. He traced the history of communism from its inception, and told of the first meeting of the internationale in 1840, and of the strides made since then. He outlined the activities of Florence Kelley in America, and spoke of the defeat of the child labor amendment, a communistic measure.

So long as the American Legion, the Reserve Officers' Training Camps, the high school cadets and other military organizations retain their efficiency, the United States will be able to combat this menace, he said, and urged that there be no let down in military preparation. The efforts of antiwar organizations were scored by the speaker.

The present Soviet conditions and the iron rule of Stalin over millions of people were described, and he said that communism stands for the abolition of property rights, which means the doom of civilization. More than three millions of Russians have been slain because of their opposition to communistic laws, without trial, he said, and that the way to help Russia is to refuse to purchase Russian goods, which would place the food supplies, such as wheat and other products, in the hands of the Russian people instead of on the markets.

Gen. Fries was introduced by Col. Clarence Deems, U. S. A., retired, a member of the Rotary Club, who was a classmate at West Point of the speaker.

At the conclusion of the address, George F. Downham introduced a resolution opposing the curtailment of funds for military training in the schools.

Fred C. Goodnow, vice president of the club, presided in the absence of President William S. Snow. Several visiting Rotarians were introduced.

The issuing of city licenses to business and professional men, by Commissioner of Revenue Charles H. Callahan, is now well under way, after having been delayed by the failure to receive the forms necessary to be used. Automobile licenses also are included.

No final date for the procuring of automobile licenses has been set, owing to the delay in starting the issue, but it is expected that several weeks will elapse before hte final date is announced.

Dog licenses are also due and payable at the office of the city treasurer, and the last day on which these may be procured without incurring a penalty is February 1, after which those owning or harboring dogs will be subject to a fine if they fail to procure the licenses. It is the duty of the game warden to cite delinquents to appear in Police Court and explain their failure. It is estimated that there are approximately 1,500 dogs in Alexandria, and so far only 169 licenses have been issued by the city treasurer.

She was placed in a cell at police headquarters, and when arraigned in Police Court yesterday she told Acting Judge Harry F. Kennedy that a friend brought her lunch each day, and that Monday there was a half pint of corn whisky wrapped in paper and accompanied the lunch.

She was acquitted of the charge, and will continu eto serve out her original sentence. Had she been convicted it would have meant a third offense.
